This water quality assessment report (commonly referred to as the 1994 305(b) Report) is a description of the status of water quality in Arizona, including the nature, extent and causes of groundwater and surface water quality problems. The Arizona Department of Environmental Quality prepared this report as Arizona's designated lead state agency for all purposes of the federal Clean Water Act. The process of developing this report entailed reviewing existing programs designed to control water pollution, determining their success, and suggesting appropriate revisions of priorities within these programs. This report fulfills biennial reporting requirements of the United States Environmental Agency contained in sections (305(b), 303(d), and 314(a) of the Clean Water Act. Other requirements of the Clean Water Act satisfied by this report include: a list of "water quality limited" waters (Section 303(d), status trends report of publicly owned lakes (Section 314), and an update of waters impaired by nonpoint sources (Section 319).
