ARTICLE 12. VOLUNTARY EMISSIONS BANK

R18-2-1201. Definitions

In addition to the definitions contained in Article 1 of this Chapter, and A.R.S. § 49-401.01, the following definitions apply to this Article:

"Account holder" means any person or entity who has opened an account in the emissions bank under R18-2-1206.

"Certification authority" means the Department or the county or multi-county district to which the Department has delegated authority to certify emission reduction credits under A.R.S. § 49-410(C).

"Certified credit" means an emission reduction credit that has been issued under R18-2-1203(C)(2), R18-2-1204(B), or R18-2-1205(E)(3).

"Conditional credit" means an emission reduction credit for a reduction in emissions by a plan generator that the certification authority has issued under R18-2-1205(D)(2) but the Administrator has not yet approved under R18-2-1205(E)(3).

"Emissions bank" means the system created by the Department to record and make publicly available information on the issuance, certification, transfer, retirement, and use of emission reduction credits.

"Emission reduction credit" or "credit" means a reduction in qualifying emissions expressed in tons per year for which the generator has submitted an application under R18-2-1203, R18-2-1204, or R18-2-1205 and which has not been withdrawn from the emissions bank under R18-2-1208(B)(5) or (C).

"Emission reduction plan" means a plan submitted under R18-2-1205 for assuring that reductions in qualifying emissions by a plan generator are permanent, quantifiable, surplus, enforceable, and real.

"Enforceable" means that specific measures for assessing compliance with an emissions limitation, control, or other requirement are established in a permit, offset-creation rule, or emission reduction plan in a manner that allows compliance to be readily determined by an inspection of records and reports.

"Form" means a paper document or online form provided through a web portal.

"Generator" means any permitted source or other activity that has made or proposes to make reductions in qualifying emissions.

"Issue," with respect to emission reduction credits, means to create and provide evidence of the creation of conditional credits or certified credits in the form or manner prescribed by the Department.

"Offset-creation rule" means a state, county, or multi-county district rule that has been approved into the state implementation plan and provides a method for allowing emission reductions from specific activities to qualify as offsets. Rule 242 of the Maricopa County Air Pollution Control Regulations is an example of an offset-creation rule.

"Offsets" means reductions in emissions required under R18-2-404 or the equivalent rule of a county or multi-county district.

"Pending credits" means emission reduction credits for which an application has been submitted under R18-2-1203, R18-2-1204, or R18-2-1205 but that have not yet been issued as conditional or certified credits.

"Permanent" means that the reduction in qualifying emissions are long-lasting and unchanging for the remaining life of the relevant activity.

"Permitted generator" means a generator that is a stationary source subject to a permit, other than a general permit, issued under A.R.S. § 49-426 or 49-480 and that seeks credits for reductions that are or will be made enforceable through permit condition.

"Plan generator" means a generator that intends to achieve or has achieved reductions in qualifying emissions in compliance with an emission reduction plan under R18-2-1205.

"Planning authority" means the organization responsible for preparing the state implementation plan for an area under A.R.S. § 49-404 or 49-406.

"Qualifying emissions" means emissions of any conventional air pollutant, other than elemental lead, or any precursor of a conventional air pollutant from any activity. Qualifying emissions does not include emissions from a fleet of motor vehicles if the fleet operates outside of a nonattainment area. A.R.S. § 49-410(H)(2).

"Quantifiable" means that the amount, rate, and characteristics of a reduction in qualifying emissions can be measured through reliable, replicable methods.

"Real" means that a reduction in qualifying emissions is a reduction in actual emissions released to the air resulting from a physical change or change in the method of operations of a generator.

"Regulatory generator" means a generator that has achieved reductions in qualifying emissions in compliance with an offset-creation rule.

"Surplus" means that a reduction in qualifying emissions is not otherwise required by an applicable requirement and not relied upon in the state implementation plan.

"Ton" includes fraction of a ton as necessary to reflect the total amount of emissions reductions achieved or to be achieved by a generator.

D. Operational Standards.

1. Process equipment and control device operations. At all times, including periods of startup, shutdown, and malfunction, the owner or operator shall, to the extent practicable, maintain and operate smelter processes and associated emission capture and/or control equipment in a manner consistent with good air pollution control practices for minimizing lead emissions to the level required by subsection (C). Determination of whether acceptable operating and maintenance procedures are being used shall be based on all information available to the Department and EPA Region IX, which may include, but is not limited to, monitoring results, review of operating and maintenance procedures and records, and inspection of the relevant equipment.
2. Capture system and control device operations and maintenance plan. The owner or operator shall develop and implement an operations and maintenance plan for each capture system and/or control device used to ventilate or control process gas or emissions from the flash furnace, including matte tapping, slag skimming and slag return operations; converter primary hoods, converter secondary hoods, tertiary ventilation system; and anode refining operations. The operations and maintenance plan must address the following requirements as applicable to each capture system and/or control device.
   a. Monitoring devices. The plan shall provide for installation, operation, calibration, and maintenance of appropriate monitoring devices to measure and record operating limit values or settings at all times the required capture and control system is operating, except during periods of monitor calibration, repair, and malfunction. The initial plan shall provide for volumetric flow monitoring on the vent gas baghouse (inlet or outlet), each converter primary hood, each converter secondary hood, the tertiary ventilation system, and the anode furnace baghouse (inlet or outlet). All monitoring devices shall be accurate within +/- 10 percent and calibrated according to manufacturer's instructions. If direct measurement of the exhaust flow is infeasible due to physical limitations or exhaust characteristics, the owner or operator may propose a reliable equivalent method for approval. Initial monitoring may be adjusted as provided in subsection (D)(2)(e). Dampers that are manually set and remain in the same position while the capture system is operating are exempt from these monitoring requirements. Capture system damper position setting or settings shall be specified in the plan.
   b. Operational limits. The owner or operator shall establish operating limits in the operations and maintenance plan for the capture systems and/or control devices that are representative and reliable indicators of the performance of the capture system and control device operations. Initial operating limits may be adjusted as provided in subsection (D)(2)(e). Initial operating limits shall include the following:

i. A minimum air flow for the furnace ventilation system and associated damper positions for each matte tapping hood or slag skimming hood when operating to ensure that the operation or operations are within the confines or influence of the capture system.
ii. A minimum air flow for the secondary hood baghouse and associated damper positions for each slag return hood to ensure that the operation is within the confines or influence of the capture system's ventilation draft during times when the associated process is operating.
iii. A minimum air infiltration ratio for the converter primary hoods of 1:1 averaged over 24 converter Blowing hours, rolled hourly measured as volumetric flow in primary hood less the volumetric flow of tuyere Blowing compared to the volumetric flow of tuyere Blowing.
iv. A minimum secondary hood exhaust rate of 35,000 SCFM during converter Blowing, averaged over 24 converter Blowing hours, rolled hourly.

ix. The anode furnace charge mouth shall be kept covered when the tuyeres are submerged in the metal bath except when copper is being charged to or transferred from the furnace.

c. Preventative maintenance. The owner or operator shall perform preventative maintenance on each capture system and control device according to written procedures specified in the operations and maintenance plan. The procedures must include a preventative maintenance schedule that is consistent with the manufacturer's or engineer's instructions, or operator's experience working with the equipment, and frequency for routine and long-term maintenance. This provision does not prohibit additional maintenance beyond that required by the plan.
d. Inspections. The owner or operator shall perform inspections in accordance with written procedures in the operations and maintenance plan for each capture system and control device that are consistent with the manufacturer's, engineer's, or operator's instructions for each system and device.

Any plan or plan revision shall be consistent with this Section, shall be designed to ensure that the capture and control system performance conforms to the attainment demonstration in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS, and shall be submitted to the Department for review. Any plan or plan revision submitted shall include the associated manufacturer's, engineer's or operator's recommendations and/or instructions used for capture system and control device operations and maintenance.
ii. The owner or operator shall submit the initial plan to the Department no later than May 1, 2018 and shall include the initial volumetric flow monitoring provisions in subsection (D)(2)(a), the initial operational limits in subsection (D)(2)(b), the preventative maintenance procedures in subsection (D)(2)(c), and the inspection procedures in subsection (D)(2)(d).
iii. The owner or operator shall submit to the Department for approval a plan revision with changes, if any, to the initial volumetric flow monitoring provisions in subsection (D)(2)(a) and initial operational limits in subsection (D)(2)(b) not later than six months after completing a fugitive emissions study conducted in accordance with Appendix 14. The Department shall submit the approved changes to the volumetric flow monitoring provisions and operational limits pursuant to this subsection to EPA Region IX as a SIP revision not later than 12 months after completion of a fugitive emissions study.
iv. Other plan revisions may be submitted at any time when necessary. All plans and plan revisions shall be designed to achieve operation of the capture system and/or control device consistent with the attainment demonstration in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS. Except for changes to the volumetric flow monitoring provisions in subsection (D)(2)(a) and operational limits in subsection (D)(2)(b), which shall require prior approval, plans and plan revisions may be implemented upon submittal and shall remain in effect until superseded or until disapproved by the Department. Disapprovals are appealable Department actions.

3. Flash Furnace Area Capture Improvements.
a. The owner or operator shall install additional hooding and interceptor walls (the "Uptake Improvement System") to improve the capture of fugitive emissions from the flash furnace area, matte tapping and slag skimming areas, route them to the existing converter secondary hood baghouse for fabric filter and high surface area lime injection control, and then to the annulus of the main stack.
b. The Uptake Improvement System shall have a design evacuation rate of 50,000 to 60,000 ACFM hourly average and shall operate when the flash furnace is in operation except for brief periods when slag is being returned to the flash furnace using the slag launder return. At those times, the ventilation for this system shall be switched to the slag return capture system and then switched back automatically to the Uptake Improvement System at the conclusion of the slag return cycle.

c. Establishment of Operational Ranges.
   i. The owner or operator shall establish a range of damper positions based upon the secondary hood baghouse flow monitor that provides reasonable assurance that the Uptake Improvement System exhaust flow is within the design range specified in subsection (D)(3)(b). The ranges shall be established and verified by a stack test no later than 180 days after smelter restart and may be revised thereafter in the same fashion. The proposed ranges, stack test verifying evacuation rates compliant with subsection (D)(3)(b) and proposed revision to Table 1 shall be submitted to the Department within 45 days of the stack test. If the Director concurs that the proposed damper position ranges assure an exhaust flow compliant with subsection (D)(3)(b), the Director shall issue a revised Table 1 reflecting the new damper position range. Thereafter, the owner or operator shall comply with the approved Table 1 range. Until the first submittal is approved, the owner or operator shall use ranges specified by the air pollution control designer. The current ranges can be found in Table 1 of the attachment labeled "Hayden Smelter Site-Specific SIP Requirements," to the current Class I permit.
   ii. The owner or operator shall establish a timed interlock on the slag return launder such that when slag is returned to the flash furnace the ventilation air from the Uptake Improvement System is switched to the slag return capture system for a defined period of not less than five minutes nor more than 10 minutes and then returns to the Uptake Improvement System automatically. The owner or operator shall optimize the period within the five to 10-minute range during the initial 60-day optimization period by observation and analysis and thereafter as necessary. The first analysis, proposed time period, and proposed revisions to Table 2 shall be submitted no later than 75 days after smelter restart. The Director shall approve any period that falls within both the five to 10-minute range and a range between the mean and mean plus one standard deviation of observed slag return durations. If the Director concurs that the proposed range meets these requirements, the Director shall issue a revised Table 2. All analyses shall be submitted and approved by the Director. Until the first report is approved, the owner or operator shall use ranges specified by the air pollution control designer. The current ranges are specified in Table 2 of the attachment labeled "Hayden Smelter Site-Specific SIP Requirements" to the current Class I permit.

d. Operational requirements.
   i. The owner or operator shall operate the Uptake Improvement/Launder Return combined damper in accordance with the approved Table 1 range or ranges at all times the flash furnace is operating and at all times matte tapping, slag skimming or slag returning is occurring.
   ii. The owner or operator shall operate the timed interlock in accordance with the approved Table 2 value. Operators shall trigger the interlock prior to starting slag return and may trigger the timed interlock again if slag is still returning at the end of the interlock cycle to minimize emissions.
   iii. The owner or operator shall inspect the Uptake Improvement System during each scheduled maintenance downturn to ensure that the hooding and walls are in proper position and that there are no visible accretions of material in the mouth of the hooding that would preclude efficient operation. The owner or operator shall quarterly, evaluate the damper controlling air between the Uptake Improvement System and the slag return capture system to ensure it is operating properly. Records of these inspections shall be maintained for five years.

4. Converter and Material Transfer Area Capture Improvements.
   a. The owner or operator shall install a hood and interceptor walls (the "Fuming Ladle Capture System") to provide a system for the capture of fugitive emissions from fuming ladles in the converter aisle and material transfer areas, route them to the existing converter secondary hood baghouse for fabric filter and high surface area lime injection control, and then to the annulus of the main stack.
   b. The Fuming Ladle Capture System shall have a design evacuation rate of 40,000 to 50,000 ACFM when a ladle is present within the hooded area. The capture system shall run until the ladle is removed or for at least 20 minutes after the ladle is placed in the containment. Fuming ladles shall not be removed from the fuming Ladle Capture System containment unless transported directly to the tunnel or within the capture area of a secondary hood.
   c. The owner or operator shall, whenever a fuming ladle is detected, promptly move the fuming ladle into the Fuming Ladle Capture System, the tunnel or within the capture area of a secondary hood.
      i. The owner or operator shall develop training for its employees responsible for ladle movement on identification of fuming ladles. The training shall be developed within 60 days of smelter restart. Existing employees shall be trained within 90 days of smelter restart and any new employees shall be trained before working ladle operations unsupervised by a trained operator. Employees shall be retrained once every five years. Training records for the operators shall be kept for five years. The training and records shall be available for inspections.
      ii. The training program curriculum required for subsection (D)(4)(b)(i) above shall include:
         (1) Identification of fuming ladles, including oral description from experienced operators, written descriptions and, after smelter restart, photographs and video of fuming and nonfuming ladles;

(2) Procedures on observing ladles to determine when they are fuming;
(3) Instruction on when marginal ladles may be moved to the matte tunnels or a secondary hood for control and when they should be moved to the Fuming Ladle Capture System (FLCS);
(4) Prompt movement of ladles to, placement in, and operation of the FLCS;
(5) When and how ladles may be removed from the FLCS;
(6) Steps to take if a ladle remains fuming after initial time out of the FLCS; and

iii. The owner or operator shall submit the curriculum required under subsection (D)(4)(b)(ii) above and any written and photographic/video training materials to the Department within 10 days of development of the curriculum and thereafter shall provide the curriculum and materials to inspectors upon request.
iv. The owner or operator shall keep a log of the occurrences of fuming ladle events. The log shall include the date of the event, duration of the event, severity of the fuming ladle, and the time elapsed between identification of the fuming ladle and the operator moving the fuming ladle into the Fuming Ladle Capture System, within a secondary hood or into the matte tunnel.
v. Training records for the operators shall be kept for five years. The training and records shall be available for inspection.

d. The owner or operator shall conduct an initial flow test within 180 days of smelter restart to verify that the system achieves the design flow. The results of this flow test shall be reported to the Department within 45 days of completion of the test.
e. The owner or operator shall inspect the Fuming Ladle Capture System during each scheduled maintenance downturn to ensure that it is actuating properly, that the hoods and walls are in proper position, and there are no visible accretions of material in the mouth of the hood that would preclude efficient operation. Records of these inspections shall be maintained for five years.

5. Anode Furnace Secondary Hood Capture Control System.
a. The owner or operator shall install secondary hoods around each of the anode furnaces to improve the capture of fugitive emissions from the anode furnaces during charging, holding and processing, route the emissions to a new anode secondary hood baghouse for fabric filter control, and then to the annulus of the main stack. This is the Anode Secondary Hood system.
b. The Anode Secondary Hood System.
i. The Anode Secondary Hood System shall have an overall design evacuation rate for the total system of 150,000 ACFM hourly average.
ii. The anode secondary hood baghouse shall have a maximum design particulate matter emission rate of 0.002 gr/scf.
iii. Each secondary hood shall be equipped with dampers that can close completely and operate with a range from 20 to 100 percent to modulate flows to the individual anode furnace.
iv. The Anode Secondary Hood System shall be operated to achieve balanced flows (± 15 percent) on the two operating anode furnaces when neither are charging. When one anode furnace is charging, the Anode Secondary Hood System shall be balanced so that the charging furnace achieves a minimum of 100,000 ACFM and the other operating furnace gets the balance.
c. The owner or operator shall establish a range of damper positions and total flow conditions based upon the anode secondary hood baghouse flow monitor that provides reasonable assurance that the Anode Secondary Hood system exhaust flow is within the design range. These ranges and flow conditions shall be verified during a performance test within 180 days of smelter restart and may be revised thereafter in the same fashion. The proposed ranges and flow conditions, stack test verifying evacuation rates compliant with subsection (D)(5)(b)(iii) and subsection (D)(5)(b)(iv) and proposed revision to Table 3 shall be submitted to the Department within 45 days of the stack test. If the Director concurs that the proposed damper position and flow ranges assure an exhaust flow compliant with subsection (D)(5)(b)(iii) and subsection (D)(5)(b)(iv), the Director shall issue a revised Table 3 reflecting the new approved Table 3 ranges. Until the first performance test, the owner or operator shall use ranges specified by the air pollution control designer. The current flows shall be specified in Table 3. Damper positions shall be logged and the logs kept for five years.
d. Operational requirements.
i. The owner or operator shall operate the Anode Secondary Hoods in accordance with the approved Table 3 range or ranges at all times the anode furnaces are operating.
ii. The owner or operator shall inspect the Anode Secondary Hood System during which scheduled maintenance down turn to ensure that the dampers are working properly, the hoods and walls are in proper position and that there are no visible accretions of material in the mouth of the hoods that would preclude efficient operation. Records of these inspections shall be maintained for five years.

6. Emissions from the anode furnace baghouse stack shall be routed to the Main Stack.

E. Performance Test Requirements.

   d. Proposed limit or limits including sample calculations, for the selected parameters that would be an enforceable demonstration of acceptable performance. Upon the Department's approval within 180 days of the effective date in subsection (A)(2), this limit shall take effect and be enforceable thereafter until changed in accordance with this subsection.
3. The owner or operator shall monitor the pressure drop across the anode secondary hood baghouse.

   a. No later than 180 days after the effective date of this rule, the owner or operator shall submit to the Department for review and approval a proposed Installation, Certification, and Quality Assurance/ Quality Control (Installation, Certification, and QA/ QC) Protocol, developed in consultation with the PM CEMS vendor or vendors, for the PM CEMS required on the anode secondary hood baghouse in subsection (F)(4).
   b. The Installation, Certification, and QA/QC Protocol shall include a schedule and specifically describe a proposed testing plan that is designed to maximize the likelihood of successful certification of the PM CEMS. If certification is not approved, then the owner or operator shall consult with the PM CEMS vendor and the Department. Within 60 days of completion of the PS-11 testing (including receipt of the results) that was conducted pursuant to the original Installation, Certification, and QA/QC Protocol for that PM CEMS, the owner or operator shall submit a revised Installation, Certification, and QA/QC Pro-

e. In the event that no PM CEMS is successfully certified after the first round of testing, the owner or operator shall, within 90 days of certification failure, submit an updated Installation, Certification and QA/QC Protocol to EPA and the Department for review and approval. Upon completion of the second round of PS-11 testing (including receipt of the results), if the PM CEMS fails to certify, the owner or operator shall submit an alternative PM monitoring plan for such gas streams or stream for review and approval by the EPA and the Department. The alternative monitoring plan shall propose a methodology for using data from the PM CEMS as a continuous parametric monitoring system (CPMS) and stack performance test to ensure continuous compliance with operational limits in (D)(5). Upon approval by the EPA and Department, the owner or operator shall continuously operate the PM CEMS as a CPMS.

f. The owner or operator shall use reasonable efforts to keep each PM CEMS running and producing data whenever any gas at that location is being exhausted to the atmosphere. If operation of the PM CEMS cannot be maintained for a minimum of 12 months, the owner or operator may submit a demonstration to the Department and EPA that identifies the cause or causes of and explanation or explanations why the PM CEMS is infeasible to operate. The demonstration shall include an alternative PM monitoring plan for review and approval by the Department and the EPA. Operation of the PM CEMS shall be considered infeasible if:

i. The PM CEMS cannot be kept in working condition for sufficient periods of time to produce reliable, adequate, or useful data consistent with the Quality Assurance/Quality Control protocol (including, without limitation, PS-11 and Procedure 2); or

ii. Recurring, chronic, or unusual equipment adjustment, servicing, or replacement needs in relation to other types of continuous emission monitors cannot be resolved through reasonable expenditures of resources. If the Department and the EPA approve the owner or operator's demonstration that it is infeasible to continue operating a PM CEMS, the owner or operator shall be entitled to discontinue operation of and remove the PM CEMS. At that point, the owner or operator shall comply with the approved alternative PM monitoring plan. The Department's and the EPA's disapproval of the owner or operator's demonstration or alternative monitoring plan shall constitute and appealable agency action.

a. The studies shall be completed according to the updated Fugitive Emissions Study Protocol submitted to the EPA on January 20, 2017 and approved by the EPA on May 31, 2017. The owner or operator may submit modifications to the protocol six months prior to each study for EPA approval and Department comment. Upon EPA approval, the modified protocol shall take effect.

b. The first fugitive study shall commence no later than six months after smelter restart or three months after EPA approval of a modified protocol. The owner or operator shall complete 12 months of monitoring and submit a report to the Department and EPA no later than three months after the conclusion of the study. The study shall evaluate the effectiveness of MiniVol samplers in providing high quality, replicable data; compare the MiniVol sampler data to estimates derived from lb/ton emission factors or other process parameters or surrogates; evaluate the accuracy and cost effectiveness of various monitoring approaches; and recommend either a new lb/ton concentrate emission factor or a SIP revision to incorporate an improved monitoring methodology. If the study concludes that the lb/ton concentrate emission factor should be retained, the owner or operator shall submit a justification for why an improved monitoring methodology (e.g., MiniVols) is not feasible and a justification for the selected lb/ton concentrate factor and how it may be revised to maintain accuracy representativeness. If the study concludes that a new methodology should be proposed, the owner or operator shall submit a petition to the Department to revise the SIP within 90 days after submitting the report unless either EPA or the Department provides comments upon the report, in which case the deadline is 60 days after the receipt of the final comments but no earlier than 90 days after the report submittal.

c. The second fugitive study shall be commenced within the same calendar quarter, but five years after, the date of commencement of the first study or three months after EPA approval of the protocol, if later, and shall run for 12 months. The second fugitive study shall evaluate whether the monitoring methodology remains appropriate. The owner or operator shall submit a report to EPA and the Department on the adequacy of the monitoring methodology within 90 days after completion of the fugitive monitoring. Based upon the study results, the owner or operator may petition the Department for a SIP revision. The Department or EPA may require the owner or operator to submit a revised monitoring methodology if, based upon the second fugitive study or other credible evidence, the then-current methodology underestimates emissions by 15 percent or more or overestimates emissions by 20 percent or more.

G. Compliance Demonstration Requirements.

1. For purposes of determining compliance with the Main Stack emission limit in subsection (C)(1), the owner or operator shall calculate the combined lead emissions in pounds per hour from the gas streams identified in subsection (E)(1) based on the most recent performance tests conducted in accordance with subsection (E). Continuous compliance with the emission limit in subsection (C)(1) is demonstrated if the most recent performance test under (E)(1) was 0.683 lbs/hr or less.

2. The owner or operator shall determine compliance with the requirements in subsection (D)(2) as follows:
   a. By maintaining and operating the emissions capture and control equipment in accordance with the capture system and control device operations and maintenance plan required in subsection (D)(2) and recording operating parameters for capture and control equipment as required in subsection (D)(2)(b); and
   b. By conducting a fugitive emissions study in accordance with Appendix 14 starting not later than six months after smelter restart or three months after EPA approval of a modified protocol. The fugitive emissions study shall demonstrate, as set forth in Appendix 14, that fugitive emissions from the smelter are consistent with estimates used in the attainment demonstration in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS.
3. The owner or operator shall include periods of startup, shutdown, malfunction, or other upset conditions when determining compliance with the emission limit in subsection (C).
4. Proper operation of the control and capture system shall be verified as follows:
   a. For each outlet identified in subsection (E)(1) that is equipped with a certified PM CEMS, a 30-day average of PM CEMS mg/dscm shall be calculated based on the average of all valid hour data during the prior 30 operating days for each outlet and then across all outlets on a flow-weighted basis using the following equation:

$$E = \frac{\left(\sum_{i=1}^{n} C_i \times VF_i\right)}{\sum_{i=1}^{n} VF_i}$$

   Where:
   E = Main stack concentration PM, mg/dscm.
   i = ith certified PM CEMS identified in (G)(1).
   n = number of certified PM CEMS covered by (G)(1).
   C = 30-day average of PM CEMS i, mg/dcsm.
   VF1 = 30-day average of volumetric flow measured at PM CEMS i, dscm.
   b. For each outlet identified in subsection (E)(1) that is not equipped with a certified PM CEMS, a 30-day average of the continuous parametric data shall be calculated based on the approved alternative monitoring rate.
   c. Proper operation of the control and capture system is verified if "E" in subsection (G)(4)(a) is 23 mg/dscm or less, and any outlet subject to an approved alternative monitoring plan is in compliance.

   b. Until the fugitive study required under subsection (F)(5) is completed, by the fifth working day of each month, the owner or operator shall calculate rates of process fugitive lead emissions by multiplying the tons of concentrate processed through the flash furnaces during the three prior calendar months by 0.0018 lb lead/ton of concentrate and then dividing that value by the number of operating hours during the same three calendar months, where an operating is defined as 24 hours for each operating day as defined in R18-2-B1302(B)(2) less any maintenance downturn hours during an operating day in that month, with compliance demonstrated if the calculated value is 0.326 lb/hr or less. The lb/ton concentrate factor provisions in (G)(5) shall remain in effect until a SIP revision replacing them is approved, as modified by subsection (G)(5)(c).
   c. After the fugitive emissions studies described in subsection (F)(5) are completed, by the fifth working day of each month, the owner or operator shall calculate rates of process fugitive lead emissions by multiplying the tons of concentrate processed during the three prior calendar months by the factor for lead that is developed in the most recent fugitive study and then dividing that value by the number of operating hours, as defined in subsection (F)(5), in the same three calendar months to calculate an average pound/hour with compliance demonstrated if the calculated value is 0.326 lb/hr or less.

At any time that visible emissions from the non-smelting process sources covered by this Section appear to exceed 15 percent opacity, the owner or operator shall take prompt corrective action to identify the source of the emissions and abate such emissions, with the corrective action starting within 30 minutes after discovery. For any non-smelting process source that produces visible emissions that appear to exceed 15 percent opacity, the owner or operator shall perform an analysis of the root cause, and implement a strategy designed to prevent, to the extent feasible, the ongoing recurrence of the source of visible emissions. D. Operational Standards.

1. Process equipment and control device operations. At all times, including periods of startup, shutdown, and malfunction, the owner or operator shall, to the extent practicable, maintain and operate smelter processes and associated emission capture and/or control equipment in a manner consistent with good air pollution control practices for minimizing SO_2 emissions to the levels required by subsection (C). Determination of whether acceptable operating and maintenance procedures are being used will be based on all information available to the Director and EPA Region IX, which may include, but is not limited to, monitoring results, review of operating and maintenance procedures and records, and inspection of the relevant equipment.
2. Capture system and control device operations and maintenance plan. The owner or operator shall develop and implement an operations and maintenance plan for each capture system and/or control device used to ventilate or control process gas or emissions from the flash furnace including matte tapping, slag skimming, and slag return operations; converter primary hoods, converter secondary hoods, tertiary ventilation system, and anode refining operations. The operations and maintenance plan must address the following requirements as applicable to each capture system and/or control device.
   a. Monitoring devices. The plan shall provide for installation, operation, calibration, and maintenance of appropriate monitoring devices to measure and record operating limit values or settings at all times the required capture and control system is operating, except during periods of monitor calibration, repair and malfunction. The initial plan shall provide for volumetric flow monitoring on the vent gas baghouse (inlet or outlet), each converter primary hood, each converter secondary hood, the tertiary ventilation system and the anode furnace baghouse (inlet or outlet). All monitoring devices shall be accurate within +/- 10 percent and calibrated according to manufacturer's instructions. If direct measurement of the exhaust flow is infeasible due to physical limitations or exhaust characteristics, the owner or operator may propose a reliable equivalent method for approval. Initial monitoring may be adjusted as provided in subsection (D)(2)(e). Dampers that are manually set and remain in the same position while the capture system is operating are exempt from these monitoring requirements. Capture system damper position setting or settings shall be specified in the plan.

b. Operational limits. The owner or operator shall establish operating limits in the operations and maintenance plan for the capture systems and/or control devices that are representative and reliable indicators of the performance of the capture system and control device operations. The initial operating limits may be adjusted as provided in subsection (D)(2)(e). Initial operating limits shall include the following:
   i. Identification of those modes of operation when the double dampers between the flash furnace vessel and the vent gas system will be closed and the interstitial space evacuated to the acid plant.
   ii. A minimum air flow for the furnace ventilation system and associated damper positions for each matte tapping hood or slag skimming hood when operating to ensure that the operation or operations are within the confines or influence of the capture system.
   iii. A minimum air flow for the secondary hood baghouse and associated damper positions for each slag return hood to ensure that the operation is within the confines or influence of the capture system's ventilation draft during times when the associated process is operating.
   iv. A minimum air infiltration ratio for the converter primary hoods of 1:1 averaged over 24 converter Blowing hours, rolled hourly measured as volumetric flow in primary hood less the volumetric flow of tuyere Blowing compared to the volumetric flow of tuyere Blowing.
   v. A minimum secondary hood exhaust rate of 35,000 SCFM during converter Blowing, averaged over 24 converter Blowing hours, rolled hourly.
   vi. A minimum secondary hood exhaust rate of 133,000 SCFM during all non-Blowing operating hours, averaged over 24 non-Blowing hours, rolled hourly.

   ix. Fan amperes or minimum air flow for the anode furnace baghouse and associated damper positions for each anode furnace hood to ensure that the anode furnace off-gas port is within the confines or influence of the capture system's ventilation draft during times when the associated furnace is operating.
   x. The anode furnace charge mouth shall be kept covered when the tuyeres are submerged in the metal bath except when copper is being charged to or transferred from the furnace.
   xi. The temperatures of the acid plant catalyst bed, which shall at minimum, meet the manufacturer's recommendations.
   xii. The acid plant catalyst replenishment criteria, which shall at minimum, meet the manufacturer's recommendations.

c. Preventative maintenance. The owner or operator must perform preventative maintenance on each capture system and control device according to written procedures specified in the operation and maintenance plan. The procedures must include a preventative maintenance schedule that is consistent with the manufacturer's or engineer's instructions, or operator's experience working with equipment, and frequency for routine and long-term maintenance. This provision does not prohibit additional maintenance beyond that required by the plan.

d. Inspections. The owner or operator must perform inspections in accordance with written procedures in the operations and maintenance plan for each capture system and control device that are consistent with the manufacturer's, engineer's or operator's instructions for each system and device.

e. Plan development and revisions.
   i. The owner or operator shall develop and keep current the plan required by this Section. Any plan or plan revision shall be consistent with this Section, shall be designed to ensure that the capture and control system performance conforms to the attainment demonstration in the Final SIP Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS, and shall be submitted to the Department for review. Any plan or plan revision submitted shall include the associated manufacturer's recommendations and/or instructions used for capture system and control device operations and maintenance.
   ii. The owner or operator shall submit the revised plan to the Department within 180 days of smelter restart and shall include the initial volumetric flow monitoring provisions in subsection (D)(2)(a), the initial operational limits in subsection (D)(2)(b), the preventative maintenance procedures in subsection (D)(2)(c), and the inspection procedures in subsection (D)(2)(d).
   iii. The owner or operator shall submit to the Department for approval a plan revision with changes, if any, to the initial volumetric flow monitoring provisions in subsection (D)(2)(a) and initial operational limits in subsection (D)(2)(b) not later than six months after completing a fugitive emissions study conducted in accordance with Appendix 14. The Department shall submit the approved changes to the volumetric flow monitoring provisions and operational limits pursuant to this subsection to EPA Region IX as a SIP revision not later than 12

iv. Other plan revisions may be submitted at any time when necessary. All plans and plan revisions shall be designed to achieve operation of the capture system and/or control device consistent with the attainment demonstration in the Final SIP Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS. Except for changes to the volumetric flow monitoring provisions in subsection (D)(2)(a) and operational limits in subsection (D)(2)(b), which shall require prior approval, plans and plan revisions may be implemented upon submittal and shall remain in effect until superseded or until disapproved by the Department. Disapprovals are appealable Department actions.

3. Flash Furnace Area Capture Improvements.
   a. Prior to smelter restart after issuance of Significant Permit Revision No. 96410, the owner or operator shall install additional hooding and interceptor walls (the "Uptake Improvement System") to improve the capture of fugitive emissions from the flash furnace area, matte tapping and slag skimming areas, route them to the existing converter secondary hood baghouse for fabric filter and high surface area lime injection control, and then to the annulus of the main stack.
   b. The Uptake Improvement System shall have a design evaluation rate of 50,000 to 60,000 ACFM hourly average and shall operate when the flash furnace is in operation except for brief periods when slag is being returned to the flash furnace using the slag launder return. At those times, the ventilation for this system shall be switched to the slag return capture system and then switched back automatically to the Uptake Improvement System at the conclusion of the slag return cycle.
   c. Establishment of Operational Ranges.
      i. The owner or operator shall establish a range of damper positions based upon the secondary hood baghouse flow monitor that provides reasonable assurance that the Uptake Improvement System exhaust flow is within the design range specified in (D)(3)(b). The ranges shall be established and verified by a stack test no later than 180 days after smelter restart and may be revised thereafter in the same fashion. The proposed ranges, stack test verifying evacuation rates compliant with (D)(3)(b) and proposed revision to Table 1 shall be submitted to the Department within 45 days of the stack test. If the Director concurs that the proposed damper position ranges assure an exhaust flow compliant with (D)(3)(b), the Director shall issue a revised Table 1 reflecting the new damper position range. Thereafter, the owner or operator shall comply with the approved Table 1 range. Until the first submittal is approved, the owner or operator shall use ranges specified in Table 1 of Appendix I of Significant Permit Revision 96410. The current ranges shall be specified in Table 1 of the "Hayden Smelter Site-Specific SIP Requirements" attachment to the Class I Air Quality Permit for the smelter.
      ii. The owner or operator shall establish a timed interlock on the slag return launder such that when slag is returned to the flash furnace the ventilation air from the Uptake Improvement System is switched to the slag return capture system for a defined period of not less than 5 minutes nor more than 10 minutes and then returns to the Uptake Improvement System automatically. The owner or operator shall optimize the period within the five to 10-minute range established during the initial 60-day optimization period by observation and analysis and thereafter as necessary. The first analysis, proposed time period, and proposed revisions to Table 2 shall be submitted no later than 75 days after the smelter restart. The Director shall approve any period that falls within both the five to 10-minute range and a range between the mean and mean plus a standard deviation of the observed slag return durations. If the Director concurs that the proposed range meets these requirements, the Director shall issue a revised Table 2. All analyses shall be submitted and approved by the Director. Until the first report is approved, the owner or operator shall use ranges specified in Table 2 of Appendix I of Significant Permit Revision No. 96410. The current ranges shall be specified in Table 2 the "Hayden Smelter Site-Specific SIP Requirements" attachment to the Class I Air Quality Permit for the smelter.
   d. Operational requirements.
      i. The owner or operator shall operate the Uptake Improvement/Launder Return combined damper in accordance with the approved Table 1 range or ranges at all times the flash furnace is operating and at all times matte tapping, slag skimming or slag returning is occurring.
      ii. The owner or operator shall operate the timed interlock in accordance with the approved Table 2 value. Operators shall trigger the interlock prior to starting slag return and may trigger the timed interlock again if slag is still returning at the end of the interlock cycle to minimize emissions.
      iii. The owner or operator shall inspect the Uptake Improvement System during each scheduled maintenance downturn to ensure that the hooding and walls are in proper position and that there are no visible accretions of material in the mouth of the hooding that would preclude efficient operation. The owner or operator shall quarterly, evaluate the damper controlling air between the Uptake Improvement System and the slag return capture system to ensure it is operating properly. Records of these inspections shall be maintained for five years.
4. Converter and Material Transfer Area Capture Improvements.
   a. Prior to smelter restart after issuance of significant Permit Revision No. 96410, the owner or operator shall install a Fuming Ladle Capture System, which shall have a design evacuation rate of 40,000 to 50,000 ACFM when a ladle is present within the hooded area. The capture system shall run until the ladle is removed or for at least 20 minutes after the ladle is placed in the containment. Fuming ladles shall not be removed from the fuming Ladle Capture System containment unless fuming has stopped or the ladle is transported directly to the tunnel or within the capture area of a secondary hood.

b. The owner or operator shall develop training for its employees responsible for ladle movement on identification of fuming ladles. The training shall be developed within 60 days of smelter restart. Existing employees shall be trained within 90 days of smelter restart and any new employees shall be trained before working ladle operations unsupervised by a trained operator. Employees shall be retrained once every five years. Training records for the operators shall be kept for five years. The training and records shall be available for inspections.

c. The owner or operator shall, whenever a fuming ladle is detected, promptly move the fuming ladle into the Fuming Ladle Capture System.

d. The owner or operator shall conduct an initial flow test within 180 days of smelter restart to verify that the system achieves the design flow. The results of this flow test shall be reported to the Department within 45 days of completion of the test.

e. The owner or operator shall inspect the Fuming Ladle Capture System during each scheduled maintenance downturn to ensure that it is actuating properly, that the hoods and walls are in proper position, and there are no visible accretions of material in the mouth of the hood that would preclude efficient operation. Records of these inspections shall be maintained for five years.

5. Anode Furnace Secondary Hood Capture Control System.

a. Prior to smelter restart after issuance of Significant Permit Revision No. 96410, the owner or operator shall install secondary hoods around each of the anode furnaces to improve the capture of fugitive emissions from the anode furnaces during charging, holding and processing, route the emissions to a new anode secondary hood baghouse for fabric filter control, and then to the annulus of the main stack. This is the Anode Secondary Hood system.

b. The Anode Secondary Hood System.

i. The Anode Secondary Hood System shall have an overall design evacuation rate for the total system of 150,000 ACFM hourly average.

ii. The anode secondary hood baghouse shall have a maximum design emission rate of 0.002 gr/scf.

iii. Each secondary hood shall be equipped with dampers that can close completely and operate with a range from 20 to 100 percent to modulate flows to the individual anode furnace.

iv. The Anode Secondary Hood System shall be operated to achieve balanced flows (± 15 percent) on the two operating anode furnaces when neither are charging. When one anode furnace is charging, the Anode Secondary Hood System shall be balanced so that the charging furnace achieves a minimum of 100,000 ACFM and the other operating furnace gets the balance.

c. The owner or operator shall establish a range of damper positions and total flow conditions based upon the anode secondary hood baghouse flow monitor that provides reasonable assurance that the Anode Secondary Hood system exhaust flow is within the design range. These ranges and flow conditions shall be verified during a performance test within 180 days of smelter restart and may be revised thereafter in the same fashion. The proposed ranges and flow conditions, stack test verifying evacuation rates compliant with (D)(5)(b)(i) and (D)(5)(b)(iv) and proposed revision to Table 3 of Appendix 1 shall be submitted to the Department within 45 days of the stack test. If the Director concurs that the proposed damper position and flow ranges assure an exhaust flow compliant with (D)(5)(b)(i) and (D)(5)(b)(iv), the Director shall issue a revised Table 3 of Appendix 1 reflecting the new approved Table 3 ranges. Until the first performance test, the owner or operator shall use ranges specified by the air pollution control designer in Table 3 of Attachment I of Significant Permit Revision 96410. The current flows shall be specified in Table 3 of Appendix 1 of the "Hayden Smelter Site-specific SIP attachment" to the Class I air quality permit for the smelter. Damper positions shall be logged and the logs kept for five years.

d. Operational requirements. The owner or operator shall operate the Anode Secondary Hoods in accordance with the approved Table 3 range or ranges at all times the anode furnaces are operating.

e. The owner or operator shall inspect the Anode Secondary Hood System during scheduled maintenance down turn to ensure that the dampers are working properly, the hoods and walls are in proper position and that there are no visible accretions of material in the mouth of the hoods that would preclude efficient operation. Records of these inspections shall be maintained for five years.

3. For purposes of this Section, continuous monitoring means the taking and recording of at least one measurement of SO_2 concentration and stack gas flow rate reading from the effluent of each affected stack, outlet, or other approved measurement location in each 15-minute period when the associated process units are operating. Fifteen-minute periods start at the beginning of each clock hour, and run consecutively. All CEMS required by subsection (E)(1) shall complete at least one cycle of operation (sampling, analyzing, and data recording) for each successive 15-minute period.
4. The owner or operator shall demonstrate that the CEMS required by subsection (E)(1) meet all of the following requirements:

The CEMS on the anode furnace baghouse stack and tertiary ventilation system shall complete an initial Relative Accuracy Test Audit (RATA) in accordance with Performance Specification 2. The RATA runs shall be tied to when the anode furnace is in use and, for the tertiary system, when the converters are in operation and/or material is being transferred in the converter aisle. Asarco may petition the Department and EPA Region IX on the criteria for subsequent RATAs for the anode furnace baghouse stack or tertiary ventilation system CEMS. The petition shall include submittal of CEMS data during the year.
   b. The SO_2 CEMS installed and operated under this Section meets the quality assurance requirements of 40 CFR 60, Appendix F.

Annual stack testing shall commence no later than the one year after the date the continuous emission monitoring system was removed. The owner or operator shall submit a test protocol to the Department at least 30 days in advance of testing. The protocol shall provide for three or more 24-hour runs unless the owner or operator justifies a different period and the Department approves such different period. Reports of testing shall be submitted to the Department no later than 60 days after testing or 30 days after receipt, whichever is later. The report shall provide an emissions rate, in the form of a pound per hour or pound per unit of production factor, that shall be used in the compliance demonstration in subsection (H)(1). The inlet concentration shall be documented in the operating log.

H. Compliance Demonstration Requirements.

1. For purposes of determining compliance with the emission limit in subsection (C)(1) the owner or operator shall calculate emissions for each operating day as follows:
   a. Sum the hourly pounds of SO_2 vented to each uncontrolled shutdown ventilation flue and through each monitoring point listed in subsection (E)(1) for the current operating day and the preceding 13-operating days to calculate the total pounds of SO_2 emissions over the 14-operating day averaging period, as applicable.
   b. Divide the total amount of SO_2 emissions calculated from subsection (H)(1)(a) by 336 to calculate the 14-operating day average SO_2 emissions.
2. When no valid hour or hours of data have been recorded by a continuous monitoring system required by subsections (E)(1) and (E)(2) and the associated process unit is operating, the owner or operator shall calculate substitute data for each such period according to the following procedures:
   a. For a missing data period less than or equal to 24 hours, substitute the average of the hourly SO_2 concentrations recorded by the system for the hour before and the hour after the missing data period.
   b. For a missing data period greater than 24 hours, substitute the greater of:
      i. The 90th percentile hourly SO_2 concentrations recorded by the system during the previous 720 quality-assured monitor operating hours.
      ii. The average of the hourly SO_2 concentrations recorded by the system for the hour before and the four hours after the missing data period.
   c. Notwithstanding subsections (H)(3)(a) and (H)(3)(b), the owner or operator may present any credible evidence as to the quantity or concentration of emissions during any period of missing data.
3. The owner or operator shall determine compliance with the requirements in subsection (D)(2) as follows: maintaining and operating the emissions capture and control equipment in accordance with the capture system and control device operations and maintenance plan required in subsection (D)(2) and recording operating parameters for capture and control equipment as required in subsection (D)(2)(b).

D. Operational Standards.

1. Process Equipment and control device operations. At all times, including periods of startup, shutdown, and malfunction, the owner or operator shall, to the extent practicable, maintain and operate smelter processes and associated emission control devices in a manner consistent with good air pollution control practices for minimizing SO_2 emissions from the process gases associated with the IsaSmelt® furnace, electric furnace, and converters at least to the levels required by subsection (C). Determination of whether acceptable operating and maintenance procedures are being used will be based on information available to the Director and EPA Region IX, which may include, but is not limited to, monitoring results, review of operating and maintenance procedures and records, and inspection of the relevant equipment.
2. Capture system and control device operations and maintenance plan. The owner or operator shall develop and implement an operations and maintenance plan for each capture system and control device used to ventilate or control process gas or emissions associated with the IsaSmelt® furnace, electric furnace, and converters. The owner or operator shall submit the initial plan to the Department and EPA Region IX for review and approval by July 1, 2017.
   a. The operations and maintenance plan must address the following requirements as applicable to each capture system and control device:
      i. Monitoring devices. The plan shall provide for installation, operation, calibration, and maintenance of appropriate monitoring devices to measure and record operating limit or range values at all times the required system is operating. Dampers that are manually set and remain in the same position while the capture system is operating are exempt from these monitoring requirements.

ii. Operational limits and ranges. The owner or operator shall establish operating limits and ranges in the plan for each capture system and control device that are representative and reliable indicators of capture system performance and control device operation. If selected as an operational limit or range, capture system damper position settings shall be specified in the plan.

iii. Preventative maintenance. The owner or operator must perform preventative maintenance for each capture system and control device according to written procedures in the plan. The procedures must include a preventative maintenance schedule that is consistent with the manufacturer's or engineer's instructions and specified frequency for routine and long-term maintenance.

iv. Inspections. The owner or operator must perform inspections in accordance with written procedures in the plan for each capture system and control device, including position verification of any manual damper settings specified in the plan, that are consistent with the manufacturer's or engineer's instructions for each system and device.

b. The owner or operator shall operate and maintain each capture system and each control device in accordance with the plan required by subsection (D)(2) and as approved by the Department and EPA Region IX, except as provided herein. Until receiving initial approval of the plan, the owner or operator shall operate and maintain each capture system and each control device in accordance with the plan as initially submitted pursuant to subsection (D)(2). The owner or operator shall submit plan revisions for review by the Department and EPA Region IX. At any time, the Department and/or EPA Region IX may require the owner or operator to revise the plan if determined to be inconsistent with subsection (D)(2)(a). Within 60 days of receiving written notification from the Department or EPA Region IX specifying such inconsistency, the owner or operator shall submit a proposal to the Department and EPA Region IX that addresses the inconsistency. The owner or operator shall maintain a current copy of the plan onsite and available for review and inspection upon request.

E. Monitoring.

1. To determine compliance with subsection (C), the owner or operator shall install, calibrate, maintain, and operate continuous monitoring systems to monitor and record SO_2 concentrations and stack gas volumetric flow rates at the following locations.
   a. The acid plant tail gas stack;
   b. The vent fume stack;
   c. The aisle scrubber stack; and
   d. The bypass stack.
2. To determine compliance with the emission limit in subsection (C), the owner or operator shall install, calibrate, maintain, and operate a continuous monitoring system to monitor and record fugitive SO_2 concentrations at the Miami Smelter roofline.
3. Except during periods of continuous monitoring system breakdown, repairs, maintenance, out-of-control periods, calibration checks, and zero and span adjustments, the owner or operator shall continuously monitor SO_2 concentrations and stack gas volumetric flow rates at each location specified in subsection (E)(1) and use the monitored concentrations and volumetric flow rates when demonstrating compliance with the SO_2 emission limit in subsection (C) in accordance with subsection (F).
4. Except during periods of continuous monitoring system breakdown, repairs, maintenance, out-of-control periods, calibration checks and zero and span adjustments, the owner or operator shall continuously monitor fugitive SO_2 emissions at the Miami Smelter roofline and use the monitored concentrations and volumetric flow rates when demonstrating compliance with the SO_2 emission limit in subsection (C) in accordance with subsection (F).
5. For purposes of subsections (E)(3) and (E)(4), continuous monitoring means the taking and recording of at least one measurement of SO_2 concentration and stack gas flow rate reading from the effluent of each affected stack, outlet, or other approved measurement location in each 15-minute period when the associated process units are operating. Fifteen-minute periods start at the beginning of each clock hour, and run consecutively. All continuous monitoring systems required by subsection (E)(1) shall complete at least one cycle of operation (sampling, analyzing, and data recording) for each successive 15-minute period.
6. If the owner or operator can demonstrate to the Director and EPA Region IX that measurement of stack gas volumetric flow rate in the outlet of any particular piece of SO_2 control equipment would yield inaccurate results or would be technologically infeasible, then the Director and EPA Region IX may allow measurement of the flow rate at an alternative sampling point.
7. The owner or operator shall demonstrate that the continuous monitoring systems required by subsection (E)(1) meet all of the following requirements:
   a. Each SO_2 continuous monitoring system shall meet the specifications under 40 CFR 60, Appendix B, Performance Specification 6.
   b. Each SO_2 continuous monitoring system installed and operated under this Section shall also meet the quality assurance requirements of 40 CFR 60, Appendix F, Procedure 1.
   c. The owner or operator shall notify the Director in writing at least 30 days in advance of the start of the relative accuracy test audit (RATA) procedures performed on each continuous monitoring system.
   d. The Director shall approve the location of all sampling points for monitoring SO_2 concentrations and stack gas volumetric flow rates in writing before installation and operation of measurement instruments.
   e. The span of each continuous monitoring system for the acid plant tail stack, vent fume stack, and aisle scrubber stack shall be set at a SO_2 concentration of zero to 0.20% by volume.
   f. The span of the continuous monitoring system for the bypass stack shall be set at a SO_2 concentration of zero to 20% by volume.
   g. The zero (or low-level value between 0 and 20% of the span value) and span (50% to 100% of span value) calibration drifts shall be checked at least once each operating day in accordance with a written procedure. The zero and span must, at a minimum, be adjusted whenever either the 24-hour zero drift or the 24-hour span drift exceeds two times the limit in 40 CFR Part 60, Appendix B, Performance Specification 2. The system must allow the amount of the excess zero and span drift to be recorded and quantified.

h. The owner or operator shall maintain on hand and ready for immediate installation sufficient spare parts or duplicate systems for the continuous monitoring system equipment required by this Section to allow for the replacement within six hours of any monitoring system equipment part that fails or malfunctions during operation.

8. The owner or operator shall develop and implement a roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan for the continuous monitoring system required by subsection (E)(2). The owner or operator shall submit the initial plan to the Department and EPA Region IX for review and approval by July 1, 2017.
   a. The roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan must address the following requirements:
      i. The continuous monitoring system required by subsection (E)(2) must include measurement of fugitive emissions from, at a minimum, the Converter, Electric Furnace, Anode Furnace, and IsaSmelt® systems that is representative of total fugitive emissions.
      ii. Each measurement system shall include at least one SO_2 analyzer and sufficient sampling locations that ensure collection of a representative sample along the roof monitor for each monitor system. The number of sample probes and their locations for each monitoring system shall account for the physical configuration of the vent, the locations of emitting activities relative to the vent, and heat generated by the equipment served by the vent.
      iii. Each measurement system shall include validation of adequate velocity for flow measurements and sufficient flow and temperature sensors to ensure calculation of representative exhaust flows through each vent. The number of such sensors and their locations for each monitoring system shall account for the physical configuration of the vent, the locations of emitting activities relative to the vent, and heat generated by the equipment served by the vent.
      iv. Each measurement system shall include an on-site data collection system that continuously logs and stores the measured SO_2 concentration, the measured flow velocity, and the measured temperature.
      v. An appropriate range for zero-span drift shall be established for all SO_2 analyzers to ensure proper calibration and operation. Unless otherwise provided in the roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan required by subsection (E)(8), the zero (or low-level) value determination shall be made using a gas containing between zero to 20% of the span value for SO_2 and the span (or high-level) value determination shall be made using a certified gas with a value between 50% and 100% of the span value for SO_2. For each SO_2 analyzer, a daily zero-span check shall be performed by introducing zero gas and a known concentration of span gas to the analyzer. If the zero or span drift for an analyzer is greater than 5% of the span gas concentration for five consecutive days or greater than 10% of the span gas concentration for one day, the analyzer shall be found to be operating improperly and appropriate measures shall be taken to return the analyzer to proper operation. The zero-span check shall be repeated after any such corrective action is taken.
      vi. All SO_2 analyzers shall be inspected quarterly by the owner or operator and inspected annually by an independent auditor. The inspections shall be conducted in accordance with the data accuracy assessment requirements of 40 CFR 60, Appendix F, Procedure 1, Section 5 or as otherwise provided in the roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan required by subsection (E)(8). The quarterly inspections consist of two certified concentrations of SO_2 to each sample probe system and comparing the known concentrations to the concentrations logged by the corresponding on-site data collection system to generate a relative error for each system.
      vii. The flow and temperature data shall be checked daily for proper operation of flow and temperature sensors in accordance with the roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan required by subsection (E)(8). If a flow or temperature sensor is found to be operating improperly, appropriate measures shall be taken to return the sensor to proper operation.
      viii. All temperature sensors shall be inspected annually. The inspection shall be conducted according to the manufacturer's specification. A temperature sensor tolerance range representative of proper sensor operation shall be established in the roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan required by subsection (E)(8). If a temperature sensor is found to measure outside of an established tolerance range, the sensor shall be found to be operating improperly and appropriate measures shall be taken to return the sensor to proper operation.
      ix. All flow sensors shall be calibrated semi-annually with calibration tools according to the manufacturer's specifications. A calibration tool range representative of proper sensor operation shall be established in the roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan required by subsection (E)(8). If a flow sensor is found to measure outside of an established range, the sensor shall be found to be operating improperly and appropriate measures shall be taken to return the sensor to proper operation.
   b. The owner or operator shall operate and maintain the continuous monitoring system required by subsection (E)(2) in accordance with the roofline fugitive emissions monitoring plan required by subsection (E)(2) and as approved by the Department and EPA Region IX, except as provided herein. Until receiving initial approval of the plan, the owner or operator shall operate and maintain the continuous monitoring system required by subsection (E)(2) in accordance with the plan as initially submitted pursuant to subsection (E)(2). The owner or operator shall keep the plan current and consistent with subsection (E)(8)(a). The owner or operator shall maintain a current copy of the plan onsite and available for review and inspection upon request. The Department and/or EPA Region IX may require the owner or operator to revise the plan if determined to be inconsistent with subsection (E)(8)(a). Within 60 days of receiving written notification from the Department or EPA Region IX specifying such inconsistency, the owner or operator shall submit a proposal to the Department and EPA Region IX that addresses the inconsistency.

F. Compliance Demonstration Requirements.

1. Within 180 days of the effective date set forth in subsection (A)(2), the owner or operator shall demonstrate compliance with the emission limit in subsection (C) by calculating SO_2 emissions for each operating day as follows:
   a. Sum the hourly pounds of SO_2 measured by the continuous monitoring systems required by subsection (E)(1) and (E)(2) for the current operating day and the preceding 29 operating days to calculate the total pounds of SO_2 emissions over the 30-operating day averaging period.
   b. Multiply the operating days occurring during a 30-day averaging period by 24 to calculate the total operating hours over the most recent 30-operating day period.
   c. Divide the total amount of SO_2 emissions calculated from subsection (F)(1)(a) by the total operating hours calculated from subsection (F)(1)(b) to calculate the 30-day rolling hourly average SO_2 emissions.
2. For the continuous monitoring systems required by subsections (E)(1) and (E)(2), hourly emissions shall be computed as follows:
   a. Except as provided under subsection (F)(2)(c), for a full operating hour (any clock hour with 60 minutes of unit operation), at least four valid data points are required to calculate the hourly average, i.e., one data point in each of the 15-minute quadrants of the hour.
   b. Except as provided under subsection (F)(2)(c), for a partial operating hour (any clock hour with less than 60 minutes of unit operation), at least one valid data point in each 15-minute quadrant of the hour in which the unit operates is required to calculate the hourly average.
   c. For any operating hour in which required maintenance or quality-assurance activities are performed:
      i. If the unit operates in two or more quadrants of the hour, a minimum of two valid data points, separated by at least 15 minutes, is required to calculate the hourly average; or
      ii. If the unit operates in only one quadrant of the hour, at least one valid data point is required to calculate the hourly average.
   d. If a daily calibration error check is failed during any operating hour, all data for that hour shall be invalidated, unless a subsequent calibration error test is passed in the same hour and the requirements of subsection (F)(2)(c) are met, based solely on valid data recorded after the successful calibration.
   e. For each full or partial operating hour, all valid data points shall be used to calculate the hourly average.
   f. Data recorded during periods of continuous monitoring system breakdown, repair, maintenance, out of control periods, calibration checks, and zero and span adjustments shall not be included in the data averages computed under subsection (F)(3).
   g. Either arithmetic or integrated averaging of all data may be used to calculate the hourly average. The data may be recorded in reduced or non-reduced form.
3. When no valid hour or hours of data have been recorded by a continuous monitoring system required by subsections (E)(1) and (E)(2) and the associated process unit is operating, the owner or operator shall calculate substitute data for each such period according to the following procedures:
   a. For a missing data period less than or equal to 24 hours, substitute the average of the hourly SO_2 concentrations recorded by the system for the hour before and the hour after the missing data period.
   b. For a missing data period greater than 24 hours, substitute the greater of:
      i. The 90th percentile hourly SO_2 concentrations recorded by the system during the previous 720 quality-assured monitor operating hours; or
      ii. The average of the hourly SO_2 concentrations recorded by the system for the hour before and the hour after the missing data period.
4. The owner or operator shall include periods of startup, shutdown, malfunction, or other upset conditions when determining compliance with the emission limit in subsection (C).

G. Recordkeeping.

c. If needed, restrict vehicles from traveling over the bulk material until such time as the material can be removed from the travel lanes of the paved public roadway pursuant to subsection (C)(2)(a). In the event unsafe travel conditions would result from restricting traffic and:

i. Removal of such material isn't possible within 72 hours due to a weekend or holiday condition; or

ii. After reasonable effort, the owner or operator of the property is unable to obtain state or local agency approval to restrict vehicle traffic and removal of such material isn't possible within 72 hours, the provisions of subsection (C)(2)(a) may be extended upon notification to and approval of the Director.

d. The removal of carryout and trackout from paved public roads does not exempt an owner/operator from obtaining state or local agency permits which may be required for the cleanup of bulk material on paved public roads.

Pollutant concentrations to be estimated should be based on the total emissions burden which may result from the implementation of a single, specific project, summed together with future background concentrations (which can be estimated using the ratio of future to current traffic multiplied by the ratio of future to current emission factors) expected in the area. The total concentration shall be estimated and analyzed at appropriate receptor locations in the area substantially affected by the project. Hot-spot analysis assesses impacts on a scale smaller than the entire nonattainment or maintenance area, including, for example, congested roadway intersections and highways or transit terminals, and uses an air quality dispersion model to determine the effects of emissions on air quality.

The applicable implementation plan for an ozone nonattainment area may also designate a motor vehicle emissions budget for oxides of nitrogen (NO_x) for a reasonable further progress milestone year if the applicable implementation plan demonstrates that this NO_x budget will be achieved with measures in the implementation plan (as an implementation plan must do for VOC milestone requirements). The applicable implementation plan for an ozone nonattainment area includes a NO_x budget if NO_x reductions are being substituted for reductions in volatile organic compounds in milestone years required for reasonable further progress.

The transitional period lasts until EPA takes final approval or disapproval action on the control strategy implementation plan submission or finds it to be incomplete. The precise beginning and end of the transitional period is defined in R18-2-1428.
47. "Transportation control measure (TCM)" means any measure that is specifically identified and committed to in the applicable implementation plan that is either one of the types listed in § 108 of the CAA, or any other measure for the purpose of reducing emissions or concentrations of air pollutants from transportation sources by reducing vehicle use or changing traffic flow or congestion conditions. R18-2-1402. Applicability

A. Except as provided for in subsection (F) or R18-2-1434, conformity determinations are required for all of the following:
1. The adoption, acceptance, approval, or support of transportation plans developed pursuant to 23 CFR 450 or 49 CFR 613 by an MPO or USDOT.
2. The adoption, acceptance, approval, or support of TIPs developed pursuant to 23 CFR 450 or 49 CFR 613 by an MPO or USDOT.
3. The approval, funding, or implementation of FHWA or FTA projects.

B. Conformity determinations are not required under this Article for individual projects which are not FHWA or FTA projects. However, R18-2-1429 applies to such projects if they are regionally significant.

C. The provisions of this Article shall apply in all nonattainment and maintenance areas for transportation-related criteria pollutants for which the area is designated nonattainment or has a maintenance plan.

D. The provisions of this Article apply with respect to emissions of the following criteria pollutants: ozone, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, and particles with an aerodynamic diameter less than or equal to a nominal 10 micrometers (PM_{10}).

E. The provisions of this Article apply with respect to emissions of the following precursor pollutants:
1. Volatile organic compounds and nitrogen oxides in ozone areas (unless the Administrator determines under § 182(f) of the CAA that additional reductions of NO_x would not contribute to attainment).
2. Nitrogen oxides in nitrogen dioxide areas.
3. Volatile organic compounds, nitrogen oxides, and PM_{10} in PM_{10} areas if either of the following apply:
   a. During the interim period, the EPA Regional Administrator or the Director of ADEQ has made a finding (including a finding in an applicable implementation plan or a submitted implementation plan revision) that transportation-related precursor emissions within the nonattainment area are a significant contributor to the PM_{10} nonattainment problem and has so notified ADOT or the MPO where one exists and USDOT.
   b. During the transitional, control strategy, and maintenance periods, the applicable implementation plan or implementation plan submission establishes a budget for such emissions as part of the reasonable further progress, attainment, or maintenance strategy.

F. Projects subject to this Article for which the NEPA process and a conformity determination have been completed by FHWA or FTA may proceed toward implementation without further conformity determinations if one of the following major steps has occurred within the most recent three-year period: NEPA process completion; formal start of final design; acquisition of a significant portion of the right-of-way; or approval of the plans, specifications, and estimates. All phases of such projects which were considered in the conformity determination are also included, if those phases were for the purpose of funding, final design, right-of-way acquisition, construction, or any combination of these phases.

G. A new conformity determination for the project will be required if there is a significant change in project design concept and scope, if a supplemental environmental document for air quality purposes is initiated, or if no major steps to advance the project have occurred within the most recent three-year period.

Historical Note
Adopted effective June 15, 1995 (Supp. 95-2).

R18-2-1403. Priority

When assisting or approving any action with air quality-related consequences, FHWA and FTA shall give priority to the implementation of those transportation portions of an applicable implementation plan prepared to attain and maintain the NAAQS. This priority shall be consistent with statutory requirements for allocation of funds among states or other jurisdictions.

Historical Note
Adopted effective June 15, 1995 (Supp. 95-2).

R18-2-1404. Frequency of Conformity Determinations

A. Conformity determinations and conformity redeterminations for transportation plans, TIPs, and FHWA or FTA projects shall be made according to the requirements of this Section and the applicable implementation plan.

B. Each new transportation plan shall be found to conform before the transportation plan is approved by the MPO or accepted by USDOT.

C. All transportation plan revisions shall be found to conform before the transportation plan revisions are approved by the MPO or accepted by USDOT, unless the revision merely adds or deletes exempt projects listed in R18-2-1434 and has been made in accordance with the notification provisions contained in R18-2-1405. The conformity determination shall be based on the transportation plan and the revision taken as a whole.

D. An existing conformity determination shall lapse unless conformity of existing transportation plans is redetermined:
1. By May 25, 1995, unless previously redetermined consistent with 40 CFR 51, subpart T.
2. Within 18 months after EPA approval of an implementation plan revision which either:
   a. Establishes or revises a transportation-related emissions budget (as required by CAA §§ 175A(a), 182(b)(1), 182(c)(2)(A), 182(c)(2)(B), 187(a)(7), 189(a)(1)(B), and 189(b)(1)(A); and §§ 192(a) and 192(b), for nitrogen dioxide); or
   b. Adds, deletes, or changes TCMs.
3. Within 18 months after EPA promulgation of an implementation plan which establishes or revises a transportation-related emissions budget or adds, deletes, or changes TCMs.

E. In any case, conformity determinations shall be made no less frequently than every three years, or the existing conformity determination will lapse.

F. A new TIP shall be found to conform before the TIP is approved by the MPO or accepted by USDOT.

G. A TIP amendment requires a new conformity determination for the entire TIP before the amendment is approved by the MPO or accepted by USDOT, unless the amendment merely adds or deletes exempt projects listed in R18-2-1434 and has been made in accordance with the notification procedures under R18-2-1405.

H. After an MPO adopts a new or revised transportation plan, TIP conformity shall be redetermined by the MPO and USDOT within six months from the date of adoption of the plan, unless the new or revised plan merely adds or deletes exempt projects listed in R18-2-1434. Otherwise, the existing conformity determination for the TIP shall lapse.

I. In any case, TIP conformity determinations shall be made no less frequently than every three years or the existing TIP conformity determination shall lapse.

J. FHWA or FTA projects shall be found to conform before they are adopted, accepted, approved, or funded. Conformity shall be redetermined for any FHWA or FTA project if none of the following major steps has occurred within the most recent three-year period:
1. NEPA process completion,
2. Start of final design,
3. Acquisition of a significant portion of the right-of-way,
4. Approval of the plans, specifications, and estimates.

Historical Note
Adopted effective June 15, 1995 (Supp. 95-2).

K. Each lead agency subject to a consultation process under this Section, including any federal agency, shall provide or notice the availability of each final document that is the product of the consultation process, together with all supporting information, to each other agency and members of the public that have participated in the consultation process within 15 days of adopting or approving the document or making the determination. An agency may supply a checklist of available supporting information, which other participating agencies or the public may use to request all or part of the supporting information, in lieu of generally distributing all supporting information.

L. A meeting that is scheduled or required for another purpose may be used for the purposes of consultation if the conformity consultation purpose is identified in the public notice for the meeting.

M. A consultation process involving an MPO where one exists, ADEQ, a county air pollution control agency where one exists, ADOT, a transit authority where one exists, local and regional transportation agencies, EPA, USDOT, and the public shall be undertaken for the following:

1. Evaluating and choosing each model and associated methods and assumptions to be used in hot-spot analyses and regional emissions analyses including vehicle miles traveled (VMT) forecasting. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.
2. Determining whether the responsible agency identified in R18-2-1433 has demonstrated that the requirements of R18-2-1416, R18-2-1418 and R18-2-1419 are satisfied without a particular mitigation or control measure. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by the responsible agency.
3. Making a determination, as required by R18-2-1429(C)(2), whether the project is included in the regional emissions analysis supporting the currently conforming TIP's conformity determination, even if the project is not included in the TIP for the purposes of MPO project selection or endorsement, and whether the project's design concept and scope have changed significantly from those which were included in the regional emissions analysis, or in a manner which would significantly impact use of the facility. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by the MPO. In nonattainment areas where no MPO exists, ADOT shall initiate the consultation process for making a determination, as required by R18-2-1429(C)(2), whether a project that is outside of a TIP is included in the regional emissions analysis, and whether the project's design concept and scope have changed significantly from those which were included in the regional emissions analysis, or in a manner which would significantly impact use of the facility.
4. Determining pursuant to subsection (R) which minor arterials and other transportation projects should be considered "regionally significant" for the purposes of regional emissions analysis and which projects should be considered to have a significant change in design concept and scope from the transportation plan or TIP. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by the MPO. In nonattainment areas where no MPO exists, ADOT shall initiate the consultation process for determining pursuant to subsection (R) which minor arterials and other transportation projects should be considered "regionally significant" for the purposes of regional emissions analysis.
5. Evaluating whether exempt projects as described in R18-2-1434 and R18-2-1435 should be treated as non-exempt in cases where potential adverse emissions impacts may exist for any reason. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.
6. Making a determination, as required by R18-2-1413, whether past obstacles to implementation of TCMs which are behind the schedule established in the applicable implementation plan have been identified and are being overcome, and whether state and local agencies with influence over approvals or funding for TCMs are giving maximum priority to approval or funding for TCMs. This consultation process shall also consider whether delays in TCM implementation necessitate revisions to the applicable implementation plan to remove TCMs or to substitute TCMs or other emission reduction measures. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.
7. Identifying, as required by R18-2-1431, projects located at sites in PM_{10} nonattainment areas which have vehicle and roadway emission and dispersion characteristics which are essentially identical to those at sites which have violations verified by monitoring, and therefore require quantitative PM_{10} hot-spot analysis. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.
8. Notification of transportation plan or TIP revisions or amendments which merely add or delete exempt projects listed in R18-2-1434. Notice shall be provided by the MPO and need not be provided prior to final action. Notice shall be provided by ADOT for revisions and amendments affecting the state transportation plan and the state TIP. The public involvement process described in subsection (P) is not required for the purposes of this subsection.
9. Project-level conformity determinations pursuant to R18-2-1416. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by the recipient of the funds designated under 23 U.S.C. or the Federal Transit Act.

N. A consultation process involving the MPO, ADEQ, a county air pollution control agency where one exists, ADOT, appropriate political subdivisions, regional transportation agencies, if any, and the public shall be undertaken for the following:

1. Evaluating events which will trigger new conformity determinations in addition to those triggering events established in R18-2-1404 and including any changes in planning assumptions that may trigger a new conformity determination. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.

2. Consulting on emissions analysis for transportation activities which cross the borders of MPOs or nonattainment areas or air basins. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists. The public involvement process described in subsection (P) is not required for the purposes of this subsection.
3. Where the metropolitan planning area does not include the entire nonattainment or maintenance area, a consultation process involving the MPO and ADOT for cooperative planning and analysis for purposes of determining conformity of all projects outside the metropolitan area and within the nonattainment or maintenance area. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT. The public involvement process described in subsection (P) is not required for the purposes of this subsection.
4. The design, schedule, and funding of research and data collection efforts and regional transportation model development. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.
5. Determining that a conforming project approved with mitigation no longer requires mitigation. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.

O. The following consultation processes involve recipients of funds designated under 23 U.S.C. or the Federal Transit Act:

1. A consultation process involving the MPO, ADEQ, a county air pollution control agency where one exists, ADOT, recipients of funds designated under 23 U.S.C. or the Federal Transit Act and any agency created under state law that sponsors or approves transportation projects shall be undertaken to assure that plans for construction of regionally significant projects which are not FHWA or FTA projects, including projects for which alternative locations, design concept or scope, or the no-build option are still being considered, are disclosed as soon as practicable to ADOT or the MPO where one exists, so as to assure that any significant changes to the design concept or scope of those plans are disclosed as soon as practicable. The political subdivision having authority to adopt or approve a regionally significant transportation project, and any agency that becomes aware of any such project through applications for approval, permitting, funding, or otherwise shall disclose such project to ADOT or the MPO if one exists as soon as practicable. To help assure timely disclosure, the political subdivision having authority to adopt or approve any potential regionally significant transportation project shall disclose to ADOT or the MPO on a schedule prescribed by ADOT or the MPO, whichever is appropriate, each project for which alternatives have been identified through the NEPA process and, in particular, any preferred alternative that may be a regionally significant project. The consultation process shall include assuming the location, design concept, and scope of the project, where the sponsor has not yet decided these features, in sufficient detail to allow ADOT or the MPO to perform a regional emissions analysis. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.
2. A consultation process involving the MPO, ADEQ, a county air pollution control agency where one exists, ADOT, recipients of funds designated under 23 U.S.C. or the Federal Transit Act, any agency created under state law that sponsors or approves transportation projects, and the public shall be undertaken for the development of procedures as described in R18-2-1429. The consultation process pursuant to this subsection shall be initiated by ADOT or the MPO where one exists.

P. Public involvement processes shall be conducted according to the requirements of this subsection.

1. ADOT or the MPO, where one exists, when making conformity determinations on transportation plans, programs, and projects shall establish and continuously implement a proactive public involvement process which provides opportunity for public review and comment prior to taking formal action on a conformity determination for all transportation plans and TIPs, that meets the following minimum requirements:
   a. Includes a process that provides complete information, timely public notice, full public access to key decisions and supports early and continuing involvement of the public in developing plans and TIPs.
   b. Requires a minimum public comment period of 45 days before the public involvement process is initially adopted or revised.
   c. Provides timely information about transportation issues and processes to citizens, affected public agencies, representatives of transportation agency employees, private providers of transportation, other interested parties and segments of the community affected by transportation plans, programs, and projects, including but not limited to central city and other local jurisdiction concerns.
   d. Provides reasonable public access to technical and policy information used in the development of plans and TIPs and open public meetings where matters related to the federal-aid highway and transit programs are being considered.
   e. Requires adequate public notice of public involvement activities and time for public review and comment at key decision points, including, but not limited to, approval of plans and TIPs and approval of changes in plans and TIPs. In nonattainment areas classified as serious and above, the comment period shall be at least 30 days for the plan, TIP, and major amendments. Public notice shall include mailing of notice to a list of all persons who have requested notice of actions covered by this Article.
   f. Demonstrates explicit consideration and response to public input received during the planning and program development processes.
   g. Seeks out and considers the needs of those traditionally underserved by existing transportation systems, including but not limited to low-income and minority households.
   h. When significant written and oral comments are received on a draft transportation plan or TIP, including the financial plan, as a result of the public involvement process or the consultation process required by this Section, a summary, analysis, and report on the disposition of comments shall be made part of the final plan and TIP.

i. If the final transportation plan or TIP differs significantly from the one which was made available for public comment by the MPO and it raises new material issues which interested parties could not reasonably have foreseen from the public involvement efforts, an additional opportunity for public comment on the revised plan or TIP shall be made available.
j. ADOT or the MPO where one exists shall specifically address in writing all public comments that known plans for a regionally significant transportation project which is not receiving FHWA or FTA funding or approval have not been properly reflected in the emissions analysis supporting a proposed conformity finding for a transportation plan or TIP.
k. Public involvement processes shall be periodically reviewed by ADOT or the MPO in terms of their effectiveness in assuring that the process provides full and open access to all.
l. These procedures will be reviewed by the FHWA and the FTA during certification reviews for TMAs, and as otherwise necessary for all MPOs, to assure that full and open access is provided to MPO decisionmaking processes.
m. Metropolitan public involvement processes shall be coordinated with statewide public involvement processes wherever possible to enhance public consideration of the issues, plans, and programs and to reduce redundancies and costs.

2. Local and regional transportation agencies when making conformity determinations on regionally significant transportation projects shall establish and implement a public involvement process which meets, at a minimum, the following requirements:
a. Provides to the affected agencies and interested members of the public information describing the upcoming decision process.
b. Distributes or provides access to draft documents and all information needed for meaningful input.
c. Solicits early and continuing input from interested agencies and the public.
d. Provides an opportunity for informal question and answer on the draft document or proposed decision.
e. Provides an opportunity for formal written comment.
f. Provides for writing and distributing both a response to comments and the final document or decision. The response to comments shall consider the views of each agency and the public. The response to comments shall be made in a timely, substantive written manner prior to taking any final action and shall be made part of the record of any action.

Q. Any conflict among state agencies or between state agencies and an MPO shall be escalated to the Governor if the conflict cannot be resolved by the directors of the involved agencies. In the first instance, such entities shall make every effort to resolve any differences, including personal meetings between the directors of such entities or their policy-level representatives, to the extent possible. Within 14 calendar days after ADOT or the MPO has notified ADEQ of its decision, ADEQ may appeal a proposed determination of conformity, or other policy decision under this Article, to the Governor. ADEQ must provide notice of any appeal under this subsection to ADOT or the MPO. If ADEQ does not appeal to the Governor within 14 days, ADOT or the MPO may proceed with the final determination or decision. If ADEQ appeals to the Governor, the final conformity determination or policy decision shall have the concurrence of the Governor. The Governor may delegate to another official or agency within the state the role of hearing any appeal under this subsection and of deciding whether to concur in the determination or decision but may not delegate these functions to the director or staff of ADEQ, to any local air quality agency, to ADOT, to any state transportation commission or board, to an MPO, or to any agency that has responsibility for any of these functions.

R. The following procedures shall govern the consultation process regarding regionally significant transportation projects as defined in R18-2-1401(37):

1. By September 1, 1995, ADOT or the MPO where one exists shall develop and make available, for each nonattainment or maintenance area, consistent with A.R.S. § 49-408(A), the following:
a. A map of the highway or transit facilities in the nonattainment or maintenance area that serve regional transportation needs.
b. Guidance on which undertakings to implement or modify a highway facility are not transportation projects as defined in this Article, because they are not of sufficient length to address environmental matters on a broad scope.
c. Guidance on which types of transportation projects are normally included in the regional transportation model.

2. The map and guidance described in subsection (R)(1) shall be produced only after consultation with ADEQ, a county air pollution control agency where one exists, ADOT, a transit authority where one exists, local and regional transportation agencies, and the public. The map developed pursuant to subsection (R)(1) shall be updated prior to the commencement of the next TIP or STIP development cycle, unless no changes have occurred. The guidance developed pursuant to subsection (R)(3) shall be revised as necessary to reflect changes in the regional transportation model.

3. ADOT or the MPO where one exists shall develop and initiate the consultation process described in subsection (H) for a proposed list of transportation projects to be considered regionally significant. The consultation process shall include the MPO where one exists, ADEQ, a county air pollution control agency where one exists, ADOT, a transit authority where one exists, local and regional transportation agencies, EPA, USDOT, and the public. The list shall include information supporting the proposed classification.

4. In determining whether a facility serves regional transportation needs, ADOT or the MPO where one exists shall consider at a minimum whether the facility:
a. Would be classified as a principal arterial based on average daily traffic or other factors, if not for limitations that the USDOT places on the percentage of streets that can be so classified.
b. For all other roadways, whether the facility:
i. Serves regional mobility needs, as opposed to local access.
ii. Carries regional traffic from one principal arterial to another.

iii. Is a modification that expands a facility such that it would serve regional transportation needs.

5. For the purposes of this Article, a street with a lower classification than a collector street, as specified in the most recent federal classification map for the region, does not serve regional transportation needs.
6. None of the following attributes, by itself, shall require a transportation project to be included in the modeling of a metropolitan area's transportation network:
   a. The connection of a facility that does not serve regional transportation needs to a facility that does serve regional transportation needs.
   b. The addition or modification of a lane other than a through lane.

S. An agency having a role or responsibility under this Section may delegate that role or responsibility to another entity pursuant to the applicable state law but shall notify all other parties to the consultation process of this fact when the delegation occurs and shall also provide to the other parties the name, address, and telephone number of one or more contact persons representing the entity that is accepting the delegated role or responsibility.

T. The provisions of this Section apply only to TIP and STIP planning cycles beginning with the cycles next following the effective date of this Section. The provisions of 40 CFR 51, Subpart T, continue to apply to all TIP and STIP planning cycles in progress at the time of the effective date of this Section. The provisions of this Section apply to consultation on projects and TIP amendments as of the effective date of this Section.

Historical Note
Adopted effective June 15, 1995 (Supp. 95-2).

R18-2-1406. Content of Transportation Plans

A. For transportation plans adopted after January 1, 1995, in serious, severe, or extreme ozone nonattainment areas and in serious carbon monoxide nonattainment areas, the following shall apply:
1. The transportation plan shall specifically describe the transportation system envisioned for certain future years which shall be called horizon years.
2. The agency or organization developing the transportation plan, after consultation pursuant to R18-2-1405, may choose any years to be horizon years, subject to the following restrictions:
   a. Horizon years may be no more than 10 years apart.
   b. The first horizon year may be no more than 10 years from the base year used to validate the transportation demand planning model.
   c. If the attainment year is in the time span of the transportation plan, the attainment year shall be a horizon year.
   d. The last horizon year shall be the last year of the transportation plan's forecast period.
3. For these horizon years all of the following apply:
   a. The transportation plan shall quantify and document the demographic and employment factors influencing expected transportation demand, including land-use forecasts, in accordance with implementation plan provisions and R18-2-1405.
   b. The highway and transit system shall be described in terms of the regionally significant additions or modifications to the existing transportation network which the transportation plan envisions to be operational in the horizon years. Additions and modifications to the highway network shall be sufficiently identified to indicate intersections with existing regionally significant facilities and to determine their effect on route options between transportation analysis zones. Each added or modified highway segment shall also be sufficiently identified in terms of its design concept and design scope to allow modeling of travel times under various traffic volumes, consistent with the modeling methods for area-wide transportation analysis in use by the MPO. Transit facilities, equipment, and services envisioned for the future shall be identified in terms of design concept, design scope, and operating policies sufficiently to allow modeling of their transit ridership. The description of additions and modifications to the transportation network shall also be sufficiently specific to show that there is a reasonable relationship between expected land use and the envisioned transportation system.
   c. Other future transportation policies, requirements, services, and activities, including intermodal activities, shall be described.

B. Ozone or CO nonattainment areas which are reclassified from moderate to serious shall meet the requirements of subsection (A) within two years from the date of reclassification.

C. Transportation plans for other areas shall meet the requirements of subsection (A) at least to the extent it has been the previous practice of the MPO to prepare plans which meet those requirements. Otherwise, transportation plans shall describe the transportation system envisioned for the future specifically enough to allow determination of conformity according to the criteria and procedures of R18-2-1409 through R18-2-1427.

D. The requirements of this Section supplement other requirements of applicable law or regulation governing the format or content of transportation plans.

6. "Burn plan" for the purposes of this Article means the ADEQ online database form as provided by the director that includes information on the conditions under which a burn will occur with details of the burn and smoke management prescriptions.
7. "Burn prescription" means, with regard to a burn project, the pre-determined area, fuel, and weather conditions required to attain planned resource management objectives.
8. "Burn project" means an active or planned prescribed burn.
9. "Daily Burn Request" means the online database form as provided by the director that allows burners to request for permission to ignite on a single specific day, submitted under an acknowledged Burn Plan.
10. "Daily Burn Authorization Process" means the daily process by which ADEQ reviews and approves, approves with conditions, or disapproves "Daily Burn Requests" for the following day.
11. "Director" means the Director of ADEQ.
12. "Duff" means forest floor material consisting of decomposing needles and other natural materials.
13. "Emission reduction techniques (ERT)" means methods for controlling emissions from prescribed fires to minimize the amount of emission output per unit of area burned.
14. "Federal land manager (FLM)" means any department, agency, delegee, or agent of the federal government, including the following:
    a. United States Forest Service,

b. United States Fish and Wildlife Service,

18. "New Burn Plan" means a Burn Plan that has never been submitted to ADEQ.
19. "Non-burning alternatives to fire" means techniques that replace fire for at least five years as a means to treat activity fuels created to achieve a particular land management objective (e.g., reduction of fuel-loading, manipulation of fuels, enhancement of wildlife habitat, and ecosystem restoration). These alternatives are not used in conjunction with fire. Techniques used in conjunction with fire are referred to as emission reduction techniques (ERTs).

Each F/SLM planning a prescribed burn shall complete and submit to ADEQ the "Burn Plan" form supplied by ADEQ no later than 14 days before the date on which the F/SLM requests permission to burn. ADEQ shall consider the information supplied on the Burn Plan Form as binding conditions under which the burn shall be conducted. A Burn Plan shall be maintained by ADEQ until notification from the F/SLM of the completion of the burn project. The Burn Plan provisions listed in A.A.C. R18-2-1504(1) through (5), may be revised no later than 2:00 p.m. the business day before the burn. Any other revision to the Burn Plan for a burn project shall be submitted in writing no later than 14 days before the date on which the F/SLM requests permission to burn. ADEQ shall not act on the Daily Burn Request until the Burn Plan is submitted by the F/SLM and acknowledged as complete by ADEQ. To facilitate the Daily Burn Authorization Process under R18-2-1505, the Burn Plan Form shall include:

1. An emergency telephone number that is answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week;
2. Burn prescription;
3. Smoke management prescription;
4. The name of the person submitting the Burn Plan on behalf of the F/SLM;

6. The total number of acres in the project to be burned, the quantity and type of fuel, type of burn, and the ignition technique to be used;
7. The land management objective or purpose for the burn such as restoration or maintenance of ecological function and indicators of fire resiliency;
8. A map depicting the potential impact of the smoke unless waived either orally or in writing by ADEQ. The potential impact shall be determined by mapping both the daytime and nighttime smoke path and down-drainage flow for 15 miles from the burn site, with smoke-sensitive areas delineated. The map shall use the appropriate scale to show the impacts of the smoke adequately;
9. Modeling of smoke impacts unless waived either orally or in writing by ADEQ, for burns greater than 250 acres per day, or greater than 50 acres per day if the burn is within 15 miles of a Class I Area, an area that is nonattainment for particulates, a carbon monoxide nonattainment area, or other smoke-sensitive area. In consultation with the F/SLM, ADEQ shall provide guidelines on modeling.

A. Each F/SLM conducting a prescribed burn shall implement as many Emission Reduction Techniques and Smoke Management Techniques as are feasible subject to economic, technical, and safety feasibility criteria, and land management objectives.

B. Emission Reduction Techniques include:

1. Reducing biomass to be burned by use of techniques such as yarding or consolidation of unmerchandisable material, multi-product timber sales, or public firewood access, when economically feasible;
2. Reducing biomass to be burned by fuel exclusion practices such as preventing the fire from consuming dead snags or dead and downed woody material through lining, application of fire-retardant foam, or water;
3. Using mass ignition techniques such as aerial ignition by helicopter to produce high intensity fires of high fuel density areas such as logging slash decks;
4. Burning only fuels essential to meet resource management objectives;
5. Minimizing consumption and smoldering by burning under conditions of high fuel moisture of duff and litter;

6. Minimizing fuel consumption and smoldering by burning under conditions of high fuel moisture of large woody fuels;
7. Minimizing soil content when slash piles are constructed by using brush blades on material-moving equipment and by constructing piles under dry soil conditions or by using hand piling methods;
8. Burning fuels in piles or windrows;
9. Using a backing fire in grass fuels;
10. Burning fuels with an air curtain incinerator, as defined in R18-2-101, operated according to manufacturer specifications and meeting applicable state or local opacity requirements;
11. Extinguishing or mopping-up of smoldering fuels;
12. Chunking of piles and other consolidations of burning material to enhance flaming and fuel consumption, and to minimize smoke production;
13. Burning before litter fall, green-up of fuels, recently cut large fuels cure in areas with fuels reduction activity, and just before precipitation to reduce fuel smoldering and consumption;
14. Reduce the area burned, by only burning a portion of the area within a designated perimeter or through mosaic burning.

C. Smoke management techniques include:
1. Burning from March 15 through September 15, when meteorological conditions allow for good smoke dispersion;
2. Igniting burns under good-to-excellent ventilation conditions;
3. Suspending operations under poor smoke dispersion conditions;
4. Considering smoke impacts on local community activities and land users;
5. Burning piles when other burns are not feasible, such as when snow or rain is present;
6. Using mass ignition techniques such as aerial ignition by helicopter to produce high combustion efficiency with short duration impacts;
7. Using all opportunities that meet the burn prescription and all burn locations to spread smoke impacts over a broader time period and geographic area;
8. Burning during optimum mid-day dispersion hours, with all ignitions in a burn unit completed by 3:00 p.m. to prevent trapping smoke in inversion or diurnal windflow patterns;
9. Providing information on the adverse impacts of using green or wet wood as fuel when public firewood access is allowed;
10. Implementing maintenance burning in a periodic rotation to shorten prescribed fire duration and reduce excessive fuel accumulations that could result in excessive smoke production in a wildfire; and
11. Using fire-management strategies to shift smoke into more favorable smoke dispersion seasons.

M. Silt Content Test Method. The purpose of this test method is to estimate the silt content of the trafficked parts of commercial farm roads, as defined in R18-2-610. The higher the silt content, the more fine dust particles that are released when cars and trucks drive on commercial farm roads.
1. Equipment:
   a. A set of sieves with the following openings: 4 millimeters (mm), 2mm, 1 mm, 0.5 mm and 0.25 mm and a lid and collector pan
   b. A small whisk broom or paintbrush with stiff bristles and dustpan 1 ft. in width. (The broom/brush should preferably have one, thin row of bristles no longer than 1.5 inches in length.)
   c. A spatula without holes A small scale with half ounce increments (e.g. postal/package scale)
   d. A shallow, lightweight container (e.g. plastic storage container)
   e. A sturdy cardboard box or other rigid object with a level surface
   f. Basic calculator
   g. Cloth gloves (optional for handling metal sieves on hot, sunny days)
   h. Sealable plastic bags (if sending samples to a laboratory)
   i. Pencil/pen and paper
2. Step 1: Look for a routinely-traveled surface, as evidenced by tire tracks. [Only collect samples from surfaces that are not wet or damp due to precipitation, dew or watering.] Use caution when taking samples to ensure personal safety with respect to passing vehicles. Gently press the edge of a dustpan (1 foot in width) into the surface four times to mark an area that is 1 square foot. Collect a sample of loose surface material using a whisk broom or brush and slowly sweep the material into the dustpan, minimizing escape of dust particles. Use a spatula to lift heavier elements such as gravel. Only collect dirt/gravel to an approximate depth of 3/8 inch or 1 cm in the 1 square foot area. If you reach a hard, underlying subsurface that is < 3/8 inch in depth, do not continue collecting the sample by digging into the hard surface. In other words, you are only collecting a surface sample of loose material down to 1 cm. In order to confirm that samples are collected to 1 cm. in depth, a wooden dowel or other similar narrow object at least 1 foot in length can be laid horizontally across the survey area while a metric ruler is held perpendicular to the dowel. At this point, you can choose to place the sample collected into a plastic bag or container and take it to an independent laboratory for silt content analysis. A reference to the procedure the laboratory is required to follow is in subsection (10) below.
3. Step 2: Place a scale on a level surface. Place a lightweight container on the scale. Zero the scale with the weight of the empty container on it. Transfer the entire sample collected in the dustpan to the container, minimizing escape of dust particles. Weigh the sample and record its weight.
4. Step 3: Stack a set of sieves in order according to the size openings specified above, beginning with the largest size opening (4 mm) at the top. Place a collector pan underneath the bottom (0.25 mm) sieve.
5. Step 4: Carefully pour the sample into the sieve stack, minimizing escape of dust particles by slowly brushing material into the stack with a whisk broom or brush. (On windy days, use the trunk or door of a car as a wind barricade.) Cover the stack with a lid. Lift up the sieve stack and shake it vigorously up, down and sideways for at least 1 minute.
6. Step 5: Remove the lid from the stack and disassemble each sieve separately, beginning with the top sieve. As you remove each sieve, examine it to make sure that all of the material has been sifted to the finest sieve through which it can pass; e.g. material in each sieve (besides the top sieve that captures a range of larger elements) should look the same size. If this is not the case, re-stack the sieves and collector pan, cover the stack with the lid, and shake it again for at least 1 minute. (You only need to reassemble the sieve(s) that contain material which requires further sifting.)
7. Step 6: After disassembling the sieves and collector pan, slowly sweep the material from the collector pan into the empty container originally used to collect and weigh the entire sample. Take care to minimize escape of dust particles. You do not need to do anything with material captured in the sieves -- only the collector pan. Weigh the container with the material from the collector pan and record its weight.
8. Step 7: If the source is an unpaved road, multiply the resulting weight by 0.38. If the source is an unpaved parking lot, multiply the resulting weight by 0.55. The resulting number is the estimated silt loading. Then, divide by the total weight of the sample you recorded earlier in Step 2 and multiply by 100 to estimate the percent silt content.
9. Step 8: Select another two routinely-traveled portions of the unpaved road or unpaved parking lot and repeat this test method. Once you have calculated the silt loading and percent silt content of the three samples collected, average your results together.
10. Step 9: Examine Results. If the average silt loading is less than 0.33 oz/ft&sup2, the surface is STABLE. If the average silt loading is greater than or equal to 0.33 oz/ft&sup2, then proceed to examine the average percent silt content. If the source is an unpaved road and the average percent silt content is 6% or less, the surface is STABLE. If the source is an unpaved parking lot and the average percent silt content is 8% or less, the surface is STABLE. If your field test results are within 2% of the standard (for example, 4%-8% silt content on an unpaved road), it is recommended that you collect three additional samples from the source according to Step 1 and take them to an independent laboratory for silt content analysis.
11. Independent Laboratory Analysis: You may choose to collect 3 samples from the source, according to Step 1, and send them to an independent laboratory for silt content analysis rather than conduct the sieve field procedure. If so, the test method the laboratory is required to use comes from the from the following text: Procedures For Laboratory Analysis Of Surface/Bulk Dust Loading

A9. Appendix 9. Monitoring Requirements

MONITORING REQUIREMENTS

A9.1. Unless otherwise approved by the Director or specified in applicable Sections, the requirements of this Appendix shall apply to all continuous monitoring systems required under applicable Sections.

A9.2. All continuous monitoring systems and monitoring devices shall be installed and operational prior to conducting performance tests under rule R18-2-312. Verification of operational status shall, as a minimum, consist of the following:

A9.2.1. For continuous monitoring systems referenced in A9.3.1. below, completion of the conditioning period specified by applicable requirements in the Arizona Testing Manual and 40 CFR 60.

A9.2.2. For continuous monitoring systems referenced in A9.3.2. below, completion of seven days of operation.

A9.2.3. For monitoring devices referenced in other applicable Sections, completions of the manufacturer's written requirements or recommendations for checking the operation or calibration of the device.

A9.3. During any performance tests required under rule R18-2-312 or within 30 days thereafter and at such other times as may be required by the Director, the owner or operator of any affected facility shall conduct continuous monitoring system performance evaluations and furnish the Director within 60 days thereof, 2, or upon request, more copies of a written report of the results of such tests. The continuous monitoring system performance evaluations shall be conducted in accordance with the following specifications and procedures:

A9.3.1. Continuous monitoring systems listed within this subsection, except as provided in A9.3.2. below shall be evaluated in accordance with the requirements and procedures contained in the applicable performance specification of the Arizona Testing Manual and 40 CFR 60.

A9.3.1.1. Continuous monitoring systems for measuring opacity of emissions shall comply with Performance Specification 1.

A9.3.1.2. Continuous monitoring systems for measuring nitrogen oxides emissions shall comply with Performance Specification 2.

A9.3.1.3. Continuous monitoring systems for measuring sulfur dioxide emissions shall comply with Performance Specification 2.

A9.3.1.4. Continuous monitoring systems for measuring the oxygen content or carbon dioxide content of effluent gases shall comply with Performance Specification 3.

A9.3.2. An owner or operator who, prior to September 11, 1974, entered into a binding contractual obligation to purchase specific continuous monitoring system components except as referenced by A9.3.2.3. below shall comply with the following requirements:

A9.3.2.1. Continuous monitoring systems for measuring opacity of emissions shall be capable of measuring emission levels within ± 20%. The Calibration Error Test and associated calculation procedures set forth in Performance Specification 1 of 40 CFR 60, Appendix B shall be used for demonstrating compliance with this specification.

A9.3.2.2. Continuous monitoring systems for measurement of nitrogen oxides or sulfur dioxide shall be capable of measuring emission levels within ± 20% with a confidence level of 95%. The Calibration Error Test, the Field Test for Accuracy (Relative), and associated operating and calculation procedures set forth in Performance Specification 2 of 40 CFR 60, Appendix B shall be used for demonstrating compliance with this specification.

A9.3.2.3. Owners or operators of all continuous monitoring systems installed on an affected facility prior to October 6, 1975, are not required to conduct tests under A9.3.2.1. and/or A9.3.2.2. above unless requested by the Director.

A9.3.3. All continuous monitoring systems referenced by A9.3.2. above shall be upgraded or replaced (if necessary) with new continuous monitoring systems, and such improved systems shall be demonstrated to comply with applicable performance specifications under A9.3.1. above by September 11, 1979.

A9.4. Owners or operators of all continuous monitoring systems installed in accordance with the provisions of these rules shall check the zero and span drift at least once daily in accordance with the method prescribed by the manufacturer of such systems unless the manufacturer recommends adjustments at shorter intervals, in which case such recommendations shall be followed. The zero and span shall, as a minimum, be adjusted whenever the 24-hour zero drift or 24-hour calibration drift limits of the applicable performance specifications in 40 CFR 60, Appendix B are exceeded. For continuous monitoring systems measuring opacity of emissions, the optical surfaces exposed to the effluent gases shall be cleaned prior to performing the zero or span drift adjustments except that for systems using automatic zero adjustments, the optical surfaces shall be cleaned when the cumulative automatic zero compensation exceeds 4% opacity. Unless otherwise approved by the Director, the following procedures, as applicable, shall be followed:

A9.4.1. For extractive continuous monitoring systems measuring gases, minimum procedures shall include introducing applicable zero and span gas mixtures into the measurement system as near the probe as practical. Span and zero gases certified by their manufacturer to be traceable to the National Bureau of Standards reference gases will be used whenever these reference gases are available. The span and zero gas mixtures shall be the same composition as specified in the 40 CFR 60, Appendix B. Every six months from date of manufacture, span and zero gases shall be re-analyzed by conducting triplicate analyses with Reference Methods 6 for SO_2, 7 for NO_x and 3 for O_2 and CO_2, respectively. The gases may be analyzed at less frequent intervals if longer shelf lives are guaranteed by the manufacturer.

A9.4.2. For nonextractive continuous monitoring systems measuring gases, minimum procedures shall include upscale check(s) using a certified calibration gas cell or test cell which is functionally equivalent to a known gas concentration. The zero check may be performed by computing the zero value from upscale measurements or by mechanically producing a zero condition.

A9.4.3. For continuous monitoring systems measuring opacity of emissions, minimum procedures shall include a method for producing a simulated zero opacity condition and an upscale (span) opacity condition using a certified neutral density filter or other related technique to produce a known obscuration of the light beam. Such procedures shall provide a system check of the analyzer internal optical surfaces and all electronic circuitry including the lamp and photodetector assembly.

A9.5. Except for system breakdowns, repairs, calibration checks, and zero and span adjustments required under A9.4. above, all continuous monitoring systems shall be in continuous operation and shall meet minimum frequency of operation requirements as follows:

A9.5.1. All continuous monitoring systems referenced by A9.3.1. and A9.3.2. above for measuring opacity of emissions shall complete a minimum of one cycle of operation (sampling, analyzing, and data recording) for each successive 10-second period.

A9.5.2. All continuous monitoring systems referenced by A9.3.1. above for measuring oxides of nitrogen, sulfur dioxide, carbon dioxide, or oxygen shall complete a minimum of one cycle of operation (sampling, analyzing, and data recording) for each successive 15-minute period.

A9.5.3. All continuous monitoring systems referenced by A9.3.2. above, except opacity, shall complete a minimum of one cycle of operation (sampling, analyzing, and data recording) for each successive one-hour period.

A9.6. All continuous monitoring systems for monitoring devices shall be installed such that representative measurements of emissions or process parameters from the affected facility are obtained. Additional procedures for location of continuous monitoring systems contained in the applicable Performance Specifications of 40 CFR 60, Appendix B shall be used.

A9.7. When the effluents from a single affected facility or two or more affected facilities subject to the same emission standards are combined before being released to the atmosphere, the owner or operator may install applicable continuous monitoring systems on each effluent or on the combined effluent. When the affected facilities are not subject to the same emission standards, separate continuous monitoring systems shall be installed on each effluent. When the effluent from one affected facility is released to the atmosphere through more than one point, the owner or operator shall install applicable continuous monitoring systems on each separate effluent unless the installation of fewer systems is approved by the Director.

A9.8. Owners or operators of all continuous monitoring systems for measurement of opacity shall reduce all data to six-minute averages and for systems other than opacity to one-hour averages, respectively. Six minute opacity averages shall be calculated from 24 or more data points equally spaced over each six-minute period. For systems other than opacity, one-hour averages shall be computed from four or more data points equally spaced over each one-hour period. Data recorded during periods of system breakdowns, repairs, calibration checks, and zero and span adjustments shall not be included in the data averages computed under this subsection. An arithmetic or integrated average of all data may be used. The data output of all continuous monitoring systems may be recorded in reduced or nonreduced form (e.g. ppm pollutant and percent O_2 or lb/million Btu of pollutant). All excess emissions shall be converted into units of the standard using the applicable conversion procedures specified in subparts. After conversion into units of the standard, the data may be rounded to the same number of significant digits used in these rules to specify the applicable standard (e.g., rounded to the nearest 1% opacity).

A9.9. Upon written application by an owner or operator, the Director may approve alternatives to any monitoring procedures or requirements of these rules including, but not limited to the following:

A9.9.1. Alternative monitoring requirements when installation of a continuous monitoring system or monitoring device specified by these rules would not provide accurate measurements due to liquid water or other interferences caused by substances with the effluent gases.

A9.9.2. Alternative monitoring requirements when the affected facility is infrequently operated.

A9.9.3. Alternative monitoring requirements to accommodate continuous monitoring systems that require additional measurements to correct for stack moisture conditions.

A9.9.4. Alternative locations for installing continuous monitoring systems or monitoring devices when the owner or operator can demonstrate that installation at alternate locations will enable accurate and representative measurements.

A9.9.5. Alternative methods of converting pollutant concentration measurements to units of the standards.

A9.9.6. Alternative procedures for performing daily checks of zero and span drift that do not involve use of span gases or test cells.

A9.9.7. Alternatives to the ASTM test methods or sampling procedures specified by any subpart.

A9.9.8. Alternative continuous monitoring systems that do not meet the design or performance requirements in Performance Specification 1 in 40 CFR 60, Appendix B but adequately demonstrate a definite and consistent relationship between its measurements and the measurements of opacity by a system complying with the requirements in Performance Specification 1. The Director may require that such demonstration be performed for each affected facility.

A9.9.9. Alternative monitoring requirements when the effluent from a single affected facility or the combined effluent from two or more affected facilities are released to the atmosphere through more than one point.

A14. Appendix 14. Procedures for Sulfur Dioxide and Lead Fugitive Emissions Studies for the Hayden Smelter

A14.1. Applicability
This Appendix applies to the owner or operator of the primary copper smelter located in Hayden, Arizona at latitude 33º0'15"N and longitude 110º46'31"W.

A14.2. Study Objectives
The owner or operator shall conduct fugitive emissions studies to derive a measurement or accurate estimate of total fugitive sulfur dioxide and lead emissions from the Hayden smelter during operations, including planned and unplanned start-up and shutdown periods and malfunctions, for the processes identified in A14.3 below. The studies shall include uncaptured fugitive sulfur dioxide emissions from the smelter processing units, but not emissions due solely to the use of fuel for space heating or steam generation, burners at anode casting, or slag pouring at the slag dump. The studies shall evaluate the extent to which correlations may exist between fugitive sulfur dioxide, lead, and particulate matter ($PM/PM_{10}/PM_{2.5}$) emissions, and shall develop such correlations as feasible.

The studies shall also be used to help validate that the operating conditions or ranges specified in the capture and control device maintenance and operations plans required in R18-2-B1301(D)(2) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2) are consistent with operating conditions demonstrating attainment of the 2008 Lead National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS) in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS and the Final State Implementation Plan Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS.

A14.3. Processes Evaluated
From the fugitive emissions studies, the owner or operator shall develop an emission factor or accurate estimate of fugitive emissions for sulfur dioxide and lead during operations, including planned and unplanned start-up and shutdown periods and malfunctions, produced by each of the following smelting processes:

i. Flash furnace building, including flash furnace and dryer operations
ii. Converter aisle, including converter and related operations
iii. Anode furnace aisle, including oxidizing, poling and related operations

A14.4. Averaging Periods
The emission estimate shall include the average pounds per hour emission factor for the fugitive lead and sulfur dioxide emissions from each step in the smelting process identified in A14.3. The estimate shall include all time periods, including planned and unplanned start-up and shutdown periods and malfunctions.

A14.5. Methods and Study Protocols

A14.5.1. Sulfur Dioxide Fugitive Emissions Studies
The fugitive emissions studies for Sulfur Dioxide shall be completed according to the updated Fugitive Emissions Study Protocol submitted to the EPA on January 20, 2017 and approved by the EPA on May 31, 2017. The owner or operator may submit modifications to the protocol six months prior to each study for EPA approval and Department comment. Upon EPA approval, the modified protocol shall take effect. Study protocols shall specify the method or methods used to meet the study objectives as described in A14.2, including during all recurring operating scenarios from all processes identified in A14.3.

Each fugitive emissions measurement system shall include validation of adequate velocity for flow measurements (i.e., the expected exhaust velocity is within the measurement range of the instrument), and have a sufficient number of flow and temperature sensors to ensure calculation of representative exhaust flows through each roof monitor vent. The number of such sensors and their locations for each monitoring system shall account for the physical configuration of the roof monitor vent, the locations of emitting activities relative to the roof monitor vent, and heat generated by the equipment served by the roof monitor vent.

The fugitive emissions studies shall include operation and process information to help understand the emission impacts of startup, shutdown, malfunctions, and significant changes in process operations. This shall include, for example, dates, times and duration of these events, cause of malfunctions, and descriptions of process changes.

After the completion of each fugitive emissions study, the owner or operator shall modify study methods based on data and lessons learned from previous studies, and submit such modified methods in the proceeding study protocols prior to conducting future emissions studies.

A14.5.2. Lead Fugitive Emissions Studies
The fugitive emissions studies for Lead shall be completed according to the updated Fugitive Emissions Study Protocol submitted to the EPA on January 20, 2017 and approved by the EPA on May 31, 2017. The owner or operator may submit modifications to the protocol six months prior to each study for EPA approval and Department comment. Upon EPA approval, the modified protocol shall take effect. Study protocols shall specify the method or methods used to meet the study objectives as described in A14.2, including during all recurring operating scenarios from all processes identified in A14.3.

Each fugitive emissions measurement system shall include validation of adequate velocity for flow measurements (i.e., the expected exhaust velocity is within the measurement range of the instrument), and have a sufficient number of flow and temperature sensors to ensure calculation of representative exhaust flows through each roof monitor vent. The number of such sensors and their locations for each monitoring system shall account for the physical configuration of the roof monitor vent, the locations of emitting activities relative to the roof monitor vent, and heat generated by the equipment served by the roof monitor vent.

The fugitive emissions studies shall include operation and process information to help understand the emission impacts of startup, shutdown, malfunctions, and significant changes in process operations. This shall include, for example, dates, times and duration of these events, cause of malfunctions, and descriptions of process changes.

After the completion of each fugitive emissions study, the owner or operator shall modify study methods based on data and lessons learned from previous studies, and submit such modified methods in the proceeding study protocols prior to conducting future emissions studies.

A14.6. Study Duration, Frequency, and Submission Schedule

A14.6.1. Sulfur Dioxide Fugitive Emissions Studies

The first fugitive emissions study must commence not later than six months after the completion of all project improvements authorized by Significant Permit Revision No. 96410. The second study commencement date shall occur within the same calendar quarter, but five years later from the date of commencement of the first study. The owner or operator shall submit the results of each fugitive emissions study in a report to the Department and EPA Region IX for review and approval not later than six months after completing a study. The data collection portion of the first and second fugitive emissions studies shall be conducted for a period of 12 months to assess the content and quantity of fugitive sulfur dioxide and lead emissions.

A14.6.2. Lead Fugitive Emissions Studies

The first fugitive emissions study must commence within six months after restart of the smelter following the 2019 shutdown or three months after EPA approval of a modified protocol, whichever is later. The second study commencement date shall occur within the same calendar quarter, but five years after the date of commencement of the first study. The owner or operator shall submit the results of each fugitive emissions study in a report to the Department and EPA Region IX for review and approval not later than six months after completing a study. The data collection portion of the first and second fugitive emissions studies shall be conducted for a period of 12 months to assess the content and quantity of fugitive lead emissions.

A14.7. Study Reports and Subsequent Studies

At minimum, fugitive emission study reports submitted pursuant to A14.6 must include:

i. Resultant emission factors used to determine fugitive emissions of sulfur dioxide and lead.
ii. Resultant average fugitive lead emissions for each process identified in A14.3.
iii. Resultant peak one-hour fugitive sulfur dioxide emissions for each process identified in A14.3.
iv. Seasonal differences, if any.
v. Comparisons of results from past studies, if any.
vi. Descriptions and identification of volumetric flow monitoring provisions in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(a) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(a) and operational limits R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(b) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(b) that are associated with fugitive emissions.
vii. An analysis of whether the results from a study demonstrate that the volumetric flow monitoring provisions in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(a) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(a) and the operational limits in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(b) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(b) continuously ensure that actual fugitive sulfur dioxide and lead emissions are consistent with the modeled emission rates used in the attainment demonstrations in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS and the Final State Implementation Plan Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS. The analysis must also identify subsequent fugitive emissions studies, if any, needed to remedy inaccurate operational limits and volumetric flow monitoring provisions and to ensure attainment of the 2008 Lead NAAQS and 2010 Sulfur Dioxide NAAQS. The scope, duration, and frequency of any subsequent fugitive emissions studies must also be identified. This provision and the report's conclusion neither require nor prohibit future fugitive emission studies.
viii. An analysis of whether supplemental modeling is needed to evaluate whether the 2010 Sulfur Dioxide NAAQS and/or 2008 Lead NAAQS will be attained at the emissions rates determined by the study.
ix. A summary of methods as followed per approved study protocols.

A14.7.1. Lead Specific

For lead fugitive emissions, a study shall also:

i. Evaluate the effectiveness of MiniVol samplers in providing high quality, replicable data.
ii. Compare the MiniVol sampler data to estimates derived from lb/ton emission factors or other process parameters or surrogates.
iii. Evaluate the accuracy and cost effectiveness of various monitoring approaches.
iv. Recommend either a new lb/ton concentrate emission factor or a SIP revision to incorporate an improved monitoring methodology.

If the lead fugitive emissions study concludes that the lb/ton concentrate emission factor should be retained, permittee shall submit a justification for why an improved monitoring methodology (e.g., MiniVols) is not feasible and a justification for the selected lb/ton concentrate factor and how it may be revised to maintain accuracy and representativeness. If the study concludes that a new methodology should be proposed, the owner or operator shall submit a petition to the Department to revise the SIP within 90 days after submitting the report unless either EPA or the Department provides comments upon the report, in which case the deadline is 60 days after the receipt of the final comments but no earlier than 90 days after the report submittal.

A14.8. Revisions to Operations and Maintenance Plan

If an analysis conducted in accordance with A14.7(vi) demonstrates that fugitive emissions associated with volumetric flow monitoring provisions in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(a) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(a) and operational limits in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(b) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(b) may exceed the modeled emission rates used in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS or the Final State Implementation Plan Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS, and result in an increased likelihood of a NAAQS exceedance based on modeling required under A14.9, then the owner or operator shall submit to the Department for approval, not later than six months after completing a study, recommended changes to operational limits and volumetric flow monitoring provisions as an operations and maintenance plan revision pursuant to R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(e) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(e) that would achieve necessary fugitive emissions levels to demonstrate attainment of the NAAQS at the same level of assurance as in the attainment demonstrations. Until receiving approval of the plan revision, the owner or operator shall operate and maintain the volumetric flow monitoring provisions and the operational limits in accordance with the plan as initially submitted pursuant to R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(e) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(e). Additionally, the owner and operator shall submit new attainment demonstrations pursuant to A14.9, making appropriate demonstrations of attainment at adjusted fugitive emissions levels.

Similarly, if an analysis conducted in accordance with A14.7(vi) demonstrates that fugitive emissions associated with the volumetric flow monitoring provisions in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(a) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(a) and operational limits in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(b) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(b) may exceed the modeled emission rates used in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS or the Final State Implementation Plan Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS, and result in an increased likelihood of a NAAQS exceedance based on modeling required under A14.9, then the Department shall submit appropriate changes to the operational limits and volumetric flow monitoring provisions, and any revised attainment demonstration pursuant to A14.9, if applicable, to EPA Region IX as a SIP revision not later than 12 months after completion of a fugitive emissions study.

A14.9. Supplemental Modeling

If an analysis conducted in accordance with A14.7(vii) demonstrates that fugitive emissions associated with volumetric flow monitoring provisions in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(a) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(a) and operational limits in R18-2-B1301(D)(2)(b) and R18-2-B1302(D)(2)(b) are greater than the modeled emission rates used in the State Implementation Plan Revision: 2024 Hayden Lead (Pb) Nonattainment Area for 2008 Pb NAAQS or the Final State Implementation Plan Revision: 2023 Hayden Sulfur Dioxide Nonattainment Area for the 1971 and 2010 SO_2 NAAQS, the owner or operator shall remodel to evaluate whether the 2010 Sulfur Dioxide NAAQS and/or 2008 Lead NAAQS will be attained as such higher rates. The owner or operator shall submit such modeling to the Department and EPA Region IX for review and approval not later than six months after completing a fugitive emissions study.

If the revised modeling demonstrates that the 2010 Sulfur Dioxide NAAQS and/or 2008 Lead NAAQS will be attained, the Department shall submit such modeling demonstration and revised fugitive emissions assumptions as a SIP revision to EPA Region IX not later than 12 months after completion of a fugitive emissions study. Alternatively, the owner or operator shall propose additional emission control requirements to revise the SIP, or any combination of revised control measures and modeled attainment, to demonstrate attainment of the 2010 Sulfur Dioxide NAAQS and/or 2008 Lead NAAQS.

A15. Appendix 15. Test Methods for Determining Opacity and Stabilization of Unpaved Roads

A15.1. Applicability

This Appendix applies to unpaved roads at the primary copper smelter located in Hayden, Arizona at latitude 33º0'15"N and longitude 110º46'31"W.

A15.2. Opacity Test Method

The purpose of this test method is to estimate the percent opacity of fugitive dust plumes caused by vehicle movement on unpaved roads. This method can only be conducted by an individual who has received certification as a qualified observer. Qualification and testing requirements can be found in Section A15.4 of this Appendix.

A15.2.1. Step 1

Stand at least 16.5 feet from the fugitive dust source in order to provide a clear view of the emissions with the sun oriented in the 140º sector to the back. Following the above requirements, make opacity observations so that the line of vision is approximately perpendicular to the dust plume and wind direction. If multiple plumes are involved, do not include more than one plume in the line of sight at one time.

A15.2.2. Step 2

Record the fugitive dust source location, source type, method of control used, if any, observer's name, certification data and affiliation, and a sketch of the observer's position relative to the fugitive dust source. Also record the time, estimated distance to the fugitive dust source location, approximate wind direction, estimated wind speed, description of the sky condition (presence and color of clouds), observer's position to the fugitive dust source, and color of the plume and type of background on the visible emission observation from both when opacity readings are initiated and completed.

A15.2.3. Step 3

Make opacity observations, to the extent possible, using a contrasting background that is perpendicular to the line of vision. Make opacity observations approximately 1 meter above the surface from which the plume is generated. Note that the observation is to be made at only one visual point upon generation of a plume, as opposed to visually tracking the entire length of a dust plume as it is created along a surface. Make two observations per vehicle, beginning with the first reading at zero seconds and the second reading at five seconds. The zero-second observation should begin immediately after a plume has been created above the surface involved. Do not look continuously at the plume but, instead, observe the plume briefly at zero seconds and then again at five seconds.

A15.2.4. Step 4

Record the opacity observations to the nearest 5% on an observational record sheet. Each momentary observation recorded represents the average opacity of emissions for a 5-second period. While it is not required by the test method, EPA recommends that the observer estimate the size of vehicles which generate dust plumes for which readings are taken (e.g. midsize passenger car or heavy-duty truck) and the approximate speeds the vehicles are traveling when readings are taken.

A15.2.5. Step 5

Repeat Step 3 (Section A15.2.3 of this Appendix) and Step 4 (Section A15.2.4 of this Appendix) until you have recorded a total of 12 consecutive opacity readings. This will occur once six vehicles have driven on the source in your line of observation for which you are able to take proper readings. The 12 consecutive readings must be taken within the same period of observation but must not exceed 1 hour. Observations immediately preceding and following interrupted observations can be considered consecutive.

A15.2.6. Step 6

Average the 12 opacity readings together. If the average opacity reading equals 20% or lower, the source is in compliance.

A15.3. Silt Content Test Method

The purpose of this test method is to estimate the silt content of the trafficked parts of unpaved roads. The higher the silt content, the more fine dust particles that are released when cars and trucks drive on unpaved roads.

A15.3.1. Equipment

A15.3.1.1. A set of sieves with the following openings: 4 millimeters (mm), 2 mm, 1 mm, 0.5 mm and 0.25 mm (or a set of standard/commonly available sieves), a lid, and collector pan.

A15.3.1.2. A small whisk broom or paintbrush with stiff bristles and dustpan 1 ft. in width. (The broom/brush should preferably have one, thin row of bristles no longer than 1.5 inches in length).

A15.3.1.3. A spatula without holes.

A15.3.1.4. A small scale with half-ounce increments (e.g., postal/package scale).

A15.3.1.5. A shallow, lightweight container (e.g., plastic storage container).

A15.3.1.6. A sturdy cardboard box or other rigid object with a level surface.

A15.3.1.7. A basic calculator.

A15.3.1.8. Cloth gloves (optional for handling metal sieves on hot, sunny days).

A15.3.1.9. Sealable plastic bags (if sending samples to a laboratory).

A15.3.1.10. A pencil/pen and paper.

A15.3.2. Step 1

Look for a routinely traveled surface, as evidenced by tire tracks. (Only collect samples from surfaces that are not damp due to precipitation or dew. This statement is not meant to be a standard in itself for dampness where watering is being used as a control measure. It is only intended to ensure that surface testing is done in a representative manner.) Use caution when taking samples to ensure personal safety with respect to passing vehicles. Gently press the edge of a dustpan (1 foot in width) into the surface four times to mark an area that is 1 square foot. Collect a sample of loose surface material using a whiskbroom or brush and slowly sweep the material into the dustpan, minimizing escape of dust particles. Use a spatula to lift heavier elements such as gravel. Only collect dirt/gravel to an approximate depth of 3/8 inch or 1 cm in the 1 square foot area. If you reach a hard, underlying subsurface that is < 3/8 inch in depth, do not continue collecting the sample by digging into the hard surface. In other words, you are only collecting a surface sample of loose material down to 1 cm. In order to confirm that samples are collected to 1 cm in depth, a wooden dowel or other similar narrow object at least 1 foot in length can be laid horizontally across the survey area while a metric ruler is held perpendicular to the dowel.

At this point, you can choose to place the sample collected into a plastic bag or container and take it to an independent laboratory for silt content analysis. A reference to the procedure the laboratory is required to follow is at the end of this section.

A15.3.3. Step 2

Place a scale on a level surface. Place a lightweight container on the scale. Zero the scale with the weight of the empty container on it. Transfer the entire sample collected in the dustpan to the container, minimizing escape of dust particles. Weigh the sample and record its weight.

A15.3.4. Step 3

Stack a set of sieves in order according to the size openings specified above, beginning with the largest size opening (4 mm) at the top. Place a collector pan underneath the bottom (0.25 mm) sieve.

A15.3.5. Step 4

Carefully pour the sample into the sieve stack, minimizing escape of dust particles by slowly brushing material into the stack with a whiskbroom or brush. (On windy days, use the trunk or door of a car as a wind barricade.) Cover the stack with a lid. Lift up the sieve stack and shake it vigorously up, down and sideways for at least 1 minute.

A15.3.6. Step 5
Remove the lid from the stack and disassemble each sieve separately, beginning with the top sieve. As you remove each sieve, examine it to make sure that all of the material has been sifted to the finest sieve through which it can pass (e.g., material in each sieve [besides the top sieve that captures a range of larger elements] should look the same size). If this is not the case, re-stack the sieves and collector pan, cover the stack with the lid, and shake it again for at least 1 minute. (You only need to reassemble the sieve(s) that contain material, which requires further sifting.)

A15.3.7. Step 6
After disassembling the sieves and collector pan, slowly sweep the material from the collector pan into the empty container originally used to collect and weigh the entire sample. Take care to minimize escape of dust particles. You do not need to do anything with material captured in the sieves; only the collector pan. Weigh the container with the material from the collector pan and record its weight.

A15.3.8. Step 7
If the source is an unpaved road, multiply the resulting weight by 0.38. The resulting number is the estimated silt loading. Then, divide by the total weight of the sample you recorded earlier in Step 2 (Section A15.3.3 of this Appendix) and multiply by 100 to estimate the percent silt content.

A15.3.9. Step 8
Select another two routinely traveled portions of the unpaved road and repeat this test method. Once you have calculated the silt loading and percent silt content of the three samples collected, average your results together.

A15.3.10. Step 9
Examine results. If the average silt loading is less than 0.33 oz/ft^2, the surface is STABLE. If the average silt loading is greater than or equal to 0.33 oz/ft^2, then proceed to examine the average percent silt content. If the source is an unpaved road and the average percent silt content is 6% or less, the surface is STABLE. If your field test results are within 2% of the standard (for example, 4%–8% silt content on an unpaved road), it is recommended that you collect three additional samples from the source according to Step 1 (Section A15.3.2 of this Appendix) and take them to an independent laboratory for silt content analysis.

A15.3.11. Independent Laboratory Analysis
You may choose to collect 3 samples from the source, according to Step 1 (Section A15.3.2 of this Appendix), and send them to an independent laboratory for silt content analysis rather than conduct the sieve field procedure. If so, the test method the laboratory is required to use is: U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (1995), "Procedures for Laboratory Analysis of Surface/Bulk Dust Loading Samples", (AP-42 Fifth Edition, Volume I, Appendix C.2.3 "Silt Analysis"), Office of Air Quality Planning and Standards, Research Triangle Park, North Carolina.

A15.4. Qualification and Testing

A15.4.1. Certification Requirements
To receive certification as a qualified observer, a candidate must be tested and demonstrate the ability to assign opacity readings in 5% increments to 25 different black plumes and 25 different white plumes, with an error not to exceed 15% opacity on any one reading and an average error not to exceed 7.5% opacity in each category. Candidates shall be tested according to the procedures described in Section A15.4.2 of this Appendix. Any smoke generator used pursuant to Section A15.4.2 of this Appendix shall be equipped with a smoke meter which meets the requirements of Section A15.4.3 of this Appendix. Certification tests that do not meet the requirements of Sections A15.4.2 and A15.4.3 of this Appendix are not valid. The certification shall be valid for a period of six months, and after each six-month period the qualification procedures must be repeated by an observer in order to retain certification.

A15.4.2. Certification Procedure
The certification test consists of showing the candidate a complete run of 50 plumes, 25 black plumes and 25 white plumes, generated by a smoke generator. Plumes shall be presented in random order within each set of 25 black and 25 white plumes. The candidate assigns an opacity value to each plume and records the observation on a suitable form. At the completion of each run of 50 readings, the score of the candidate is determined. If a candidate fails to qualify, the complete run of 50 readings must be repeated in any retest. The smoke test may be administered as part of a smoke school or training program, and may be preceded by training or familiarization runs of the smoke generator, during which candidates are shown black and white plumes of known opacity.

A15.4.3. Smoke Generator Specifications
Any smoke generator used for the purpose of Section A15.4.2 of this Appendix shall be equipped with a smoke meter installed to measure opacity across the diameter of the smoke generator stack. The smoke meter output shall display in-stack opacity, based upon a path length equal to the stack exit diameter on a full 0% to 100% chart recorder scale. The smoke meter optical design and performance shall meet the specifications shown in Table 1 of this Appendix. The smoke meter shall be calibrated as prescribed in Section A15.4.3.1 of this Appendix prior to conducting each smoke reading test. At the completion of each test, the zero and span drift shall be checked, and if the drift exceeds plus or minus 1% opacity, the condition shall be corrected prior to conducting any subsequent test runs. The smoke meter shall be demonstrated, at the time of installation, to meet the specifications listed in Table 1 of this Appendix. This demonstration shall be repeated following any subsequent repair or replacement of the photocell or associated electronic circuitry, including the chart recorder or output meter, or every six months, whichever occurs first.

A15.4.3.1. Calibration

The smoke meter is calibrated after allowing a minimum of 30 minutes warm-up by alternately producing simulated opacity of 0% and 100%. When stable response at 0% or 100% is noted, the smoke meter is adjusted to produce an output of 0% or 100%, as appropriate. This calibration shall be repeated until stable 0% and 100% readings are produced without adjustment. Simulated 0% and 100% opacity values may be produced by alternately switching the power to the light source on and off while the smoke generator is not producing smoke.

A15.4.3.2. Smoke Meter Evaluation

The smoke meter design and performance are to be evaluated as follows:

A15.4.3.2.1. Light Source

Verify, from manufacturer's data and from voltage measurements made at the lamp, as installed, that the lamp is operated within plus or minus 5% of the nominal rated voltage.

A15.4.3.2.2. Spectral Response of Photocell

Verify from manufacturer's data that the photocell has a photopic response (i.e., the spectral sensitivity of the cell shall closely approximate the standard spectral-luminosity curve for photopic vision which is referenced in (b) of Table 1 of this Appendix).

A15.4.3.2.3. Angle of View

Check construction geometry to ensure that the total angle of view of the smoke plume, as seen by the photocell, does not exceed 15º. Calculate the total angle of view (φv) as follows:

Total Angle of View = $2 \tan^{-1}$ (d/2L)

where:

d = The photocell diameter + the diameter of the limiting aperture; and L = The distance from the photocell to the limiting aperture. The limiting aperture is the point in the path between the photocell and the smoke plume where the angle of view is most restricted. In smoke generator smoke meters, this is normally an orifice plate.

A15.4.3.2.4. Angle of Projection

Check construction geometry to ensure that the total angle of projection of the lamp on the smoke plume does not exceed 15º. Calculate the total angle of projection (φp) as follows:

Total Angle of Projection = $2 \tan^{-1}$ (d/2L)

where:

d = The sum of the length of the lamp filament + the diameter of the limiting aperture; and L = The distance from the lamp to the limiting aperture.

A15.4.3.2.5. Calibration Error

Using neutral-density filters of known opacity, check the error between the actual response and the theoretical linear response of the smoke meter. This check is accomplished by first calibrating the smoke meter, according to Section A15.4.3.1 of this Appendix, and then inserting a series of three neutral-density filters of nominal opacity of 20%, 50%, and 75% in the smoke meter path length. Use filters calibrated within plus or minus 2%. Care should be taken when inserting the filters to prevent stray light from affecting the meter. Make a total of five nonconsecutive readings for each filter. The maximum opacity error on any one reading shall be plus or minus 3%.

A15.4.3.2.6. Zero and Span Drift

Determine the zero and span drift by calibrating and operating the smoke generator in a normal manner over a 1-hour period. The drift is measured by checking the zero and span at the end of this period.

A15.4.3.2.7. Response Time

Determine the response time by producing the series of five simulated 0% and 100% opacity values and observing the time required to reach stable response. Opacity values of 0% and 100% may be simulated by alternately switching the power to the light source off and on while the smoke generator is not operating.

Preface

Under Arizona law, the Department of State, Office of the Secretary of State (Office), Administrative Rules Division, accepts state agency rule notice and other legal filings and is the publisher of Arizona rules. The Office of the Secretary of State does not interpret or enforce rules in the Administrative Code. Questions about rules should be directed to the state agency responsible for the promulgation of the rule.

Scott Cancelosi, Director
ADMINISTRATIVE RULES DIVISION

Rules

The definition for a rule is provided for under A.R.S. § 41-1001. "'Rule' means an agency statement of general applicability that implements, interprets, or prescribes law or policy, or describes the procedures or practice requirements of an agency."

The Arizona Administrative Code

The Arizona Administrative Code is where the official rules of the state of Arizona are published. The Code is the official codification of rules that govern state agencies, boards, and commissions.

The Code is separated by subject into Titles. Titles are divided into Chapters. A Chapter includes state agency rules. Rules in Chapters are divided into Articles, then a Section number with a heading. The "R" at the beginning of the Section number stands for "rule." The rule itself includes sequential letters and numbers in an outline. Each lettered or numbered Section is called a subsection of the rule.

Rules are codified quarterly in the Code. For example:

Rules codified in the first quarter are filed between January 1 through March 31.

Rules codified in the second quarter are filed between April 1 through June 30.

Rules codified in the third quarter are filed between July 1 through September 30.

Rules codified in the fourth quarter are filed between October 1 through December 31.

Supplement release dates are included in the footers of each Chapter. The first supplement for the first quarter of 2026 is cited as Supp. 26-1. Supplements are released three to four weeks after the end of the quarter because filings are accepted until the last day of the quarter.

Please note: The Office publishes by Chapter, not by individual rule Section. Therefore there might be only a few Sections codified in each Chapter released in a supplement. The Office links to these codified Sections in the Table of Contents of this Chapter.

How to Use the Code

Rules may be in effect before a supplement is released by the Office. Therefore, the user should refer to issues of the Register for recent updates to rule Sections.

Authentication of PDF Code Chapters

The Office began to authenticate Chapters of the Code in Supp. 18-1 to comply with A.R.S. §§ 41-1012(B) and A.R.S. § 41-5505.

A certification verifies the authenticity of each Code Chapter posted as it is released by the Office of the Secretary of State. The authenticated pdf of the Code includes an integrity mark with a certificate ID. Users should check the validity of the signature, especially if the pdf has been downloaded. If the digital signature is invalid it means the document's content has been compromised.

Rule History

Refer to the HISTORICAL NOTE at the end of each Section for the effective date of a rule. The note also includes the Arizona Administrative Register volume and page number in which the notice was published (A.A.R.) and beginning in supplement 21-4, the date the notice was published in the Register.

Arizona Revised Statutes References

The Arizona Revised Statutes (A.R.S.) are available online at the Legislature's website, www.azleg.gov. An agency's authority note to make rules is often included at the beginning of a Chapter. Other Arizona statutes may be referenced in rule under the A.R.S. acronym.

Session Law References

Arizona Session Law references in a Chapter can be found at the Secretary of State's website, www.azsos.gov under Services-> Legislative Filings.

Exemptions to the APA

It is not uncommon for an agency to be exempt from the steps outlined in the rulemaking process as specified in the Arizona Administrative Procedures Act, also known as the APA (Arizona Revised Statutes, Title 41, Chapter 6, Articles 1 through 10). Other agencies may be given an exemption to certain provisions of the Act.

An agency's exemption is written in law by the Arizona State Legislature or under a referendum or initiative passed into law by Arizona voters.

When an agency files an exempt rulemaking package with our Office it specifies the law exemption in what is called the preamble of rulemaking. The preamble is published in the Register online at www.azsos.gov/rules, click on the Administrative Register link.

Editor's notes at the beginning of a Chapter provide information about rulemaking Sections made by exempt rulemaking. Exempt rulemaking notes are also included in the historical note at the end of a rulemaking Section.

The Office makes a distinction to certain exemptions because some rules are made without receiving input from stakeholders or the public. Other exemptions may require an agency to propose exempt rules at a public hearing.

Personal and Commercial Use of the Chapter

This Chapter is posted as a public courtesy online, and is for private use only. Those who wish to use the contents for resale or profit should contact the Office about Commercial Use fees. For information on commercial use fees review A.R.S. § 39-121.03 and 1 A.A.C. 1, R1-1-113.

R18-11-103. Repealed

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Repealed effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2).

R18-11-104. Designated Uses

A. The Director shall adopt or remove a designated use or subcategory of a designated use by rule.

B. Designated uses of a surface water may include full-body contact, partial-body contact, domestic water source, fish consumption, aquatic and wildlife (cold water), aquatic and wildlife (warm water), aquatic and wildlife (ephemeral), aquatic and wildlife (effluent-dependent water), agricultural irrigation, and agricultural livestock watering. The designated uses for specific surface waters are listed in Appendix B of this Article.

C. Numeric water quality criteria to maintain and protect water quality for the designated uses are prescribed in Appendix A, R18-11-109, R18-11-110, and R18-11-112. Narrative water quality standards to protect all surface waters are prescribed in R18-11-108.

D. If a surface water has more than one designated use listed in Appendix B, the most stringent water quality criterion applies.

E. The Director shall revise the designated uses of a surface water if water quality improvements result in a level of water quality that permits a use that is not currently listed as a designated use in Appendix B.

F. In designating uses of a surface water and in establishing water quality criteria to protect the designated uses, the Director shall take into consideration the applicable water quality standards for downstream surface waters and shall ensure that the water quality standards that are established for an upstream surface water also provide for the attainment and maintenance of the water quality standards of downstream surface waters.

G. A use attainability analysis shall be conducted prior to removal of a designated use or adoption of a subcategory of a designated use that requires less stringent water quality criteria.

H. The Director may remove a designated use or adopt a subcategory of a designated use that requires less stringent water quality criteria, provided the designated use is not an existing use and it is demonstrated through a use attainability analysis that attaining the designated use is not feasible for any of the following reasons:

1. A naturally-occurring pollutant concentration prevents the attainment of the use;
2. A natural, ephemeral, intermittent, or low-flow condition or water level prevents the attainment of the use;
3. A human-caused condition or source of pollution prevents the attainment of the use and cannot be remedied or would cause more environmental damage to correct than to leave in place;
4. A dam, diversion, or other type of hydrologic modification precludes the attainment of the use, and it is not feasible to restore the surface water to its original condition or to operate the modification in a way that would result in attainment of the use;
5. A physical condition related to the natural features of the surface water, such as the lack of a proper substrate, cover, flow, depth, pools, riffles, and the like, unrelated to water quality, precludes attainment of an aquatic life designated use; or

6. Controls more stringent than those required by § 301 (b) and § 306 of the Clean Water Act [33 U.S.C. § 1311 and § 1316] are necessary to attain the use and implementation of the controls would result in substantial and widespread economic and social impact.

Historical Note

R18-11-105. Tributaries; Designated Uses

The following water quality standards apply to a surface water that is not listed in Appendix B but that is a tributary to a listed surface water.

1. The aquatic and wildlife (ephemeral) and partial-body contact standards apply to an unlisted tributary that is an ephemeral water.
2. The aquatic and wildlife (cold water), full-body contact, and fish consumption standards apply to an unlisted tributary that is a perennial or intermittent surface water and is above 5000 feet in elevation.
3. The aquatic and wildlife (warm water), full-body contact, and fish consumption standards apply to an unlisted tributary that is a perennial or intermittent surface water and is below 5000 feet in elevation.

Historical Note

Adopted effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Section heading amended per instructions of the Department of Environmental Quality, August 9, 1996 (Supp. 96-3). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1).

R18-11-106. Net Ecological Benefit

A. The Director may, by rule, modify a water quality standard on the ground that there is a net ecological benefit associated with the discharge of effluent to support or create a riparian and aquatic habitat in an area where water resources are limited. The Director may modify a water quality standard for a pollutant if it is demonstrated that:

1. The discharge of effluent creates or supports an ecologically valuable aquatic, wetland, or riparian ecosystem in an area where these resources are limited;
2. The ecological benefits associated with the discharge of effluent under a modified water quality standard exceed the environmental costs associated with the elimination of the discharge of effluent;
3. The cost of treatment to achieve compliance with a water quality standard is so high that it is more cost effective to eliminate the discharge of effluent to the surface water. The discharger shall demonstrate that it is feasible to eliminate the discharge of effluent that creates or supports the ecologically valuable aquatic, wetland, or riparian ecosystem;
4. The discharge of effluent to the surface water will not cause or contribute to a violation of a water quality standard that has been established for a downstream surface water;
5. All practicable point source discharge control programs, including local pretreatment, waste minimization, and source reduction programs are implemented; and
6. The discharge of effluent does not produce or contribute to the concentration of a pollutant in the tissues of aquatic organisms or wildlife that is likely to be harmful to humans or wildlife through food chain concentration.

B. The Director shall not modify a water quality criterion for a pollutant to be less stringent than a technology-based effluent limitation that applies to the discharge of that effluent. The discharge of effluent shall, at a minimum, comply with applicable technology-based effluent limitations.

Historical Note

Adopted effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 22 A.A.R. 2328, effective August 2, 2016 (Supp. 16-4).

R18-11-107. Antidegradation

A. The Director shall, using R18-11-107.01 and this Section, determine whether there is degradation of water quality in a surface water on a pollutant-by-pollutant basis.

B. Tier 1: The level of water quality necessary to support an existing use shall be maintained and protected. No degradation of existing water quality is permitted in a surface water where the existing water quality does not meet the applicable water quality standards.

C. Tier 2: Where existing water quality in a surface water is better than the applicable water quality standard the existing water quality shall be maintained and protected. The Director may allow degradation of existing water quality in the surface water, if the Director makes all of the following findings:

1. The water quality necessary for existing uses is fully protected and water quality is not lowered to a level that does not comply with applicable water quality standards,
2. The highest statutory and regulatory requirements for new and existing point sources are achieved,
3. All cost-effective and reasonable best management practices for nonpoint source pollution control are implemented, and
4. Allowing lower water quality is necessary to accommodate important economic or social development in the area where the surface water is located.

D. Tier 3: Existing water quality shall be maintained and protected in a surface water that is classified as an OAW under R18-11-112. Degradation of an OAW under subsection (C) is prohibited.

E. The Director shall implement this Section in a manner consistent with § 316 of the Clean Water Act [33 U.S.C. 1326] if a potential water quality impairment associated with a thermal discharge is involved.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 14 A.A.R. 4708, effective January 31, 2009 (Supp. 08-4).

R18-11-107.01. Antidegradation Criteria

A. Tier 1 antidegradation protection.

1. Tier 1 antidegradation protection applies to the following surface waters:
   a. A surface water listed on the 303(d) list for the pollutant that resulted in the listing,
   b. An effluent dependent water,
   c. An ephemeral water,
   d. An intermittent water, and
   e. A canal listed in Appendix B.

2. A regulated discharge shall not cause a violation of a surface water quality standard or a wasteload allocation in a total maximum daily load approved by EPA.
3. Except as provided in subsections (E) and (F), Tier 1 antidegradation review requirements are satisfied for a point-source discharge regulated under an individual AZPDES permit to an ephemeral water, effluent dependent water, intermittent water, or a canal listed in Appendix B, if water quality-based effluent limitations designed to achieve compliance with applicable surface water quality standards are established in the permit and technology-based requirements of the Clean Water Act for the point source discharge are met.

B. Tier 2 antidegradation protection.
1. Tier 2 antidegradation protection applies to a perennial water with existing water quality that is better than applicable water quality standards. A perennial water that is not listed in subsection (A)(1) nor classified as an OAW under A.A.C. R18-9-112(G) has Tier 2 antidegradation protection for all pollutants of concern.
2. A regulated discharge that meets the following criteria, at critical flow conditions, does not cause significant degradation:
   a. The regulated discharge consumes less than 20 percent of the available assimilative capacity for each pollutant of concern, and
   b. At least 50 percent of the assimilative capacity for each pollutant of concern remains available in the surface water for each pollutant of concern.
3. Antidegradation review. Any person proposing a new or expanded regulated discharge under an individual AZPDES permit that may cause significant degradation shall provide ADEQ with the following information:
   a. Baseline characterization. A person seeking authorization to discharge under an individual AZPDES permit to a perennial water shall provide baseline water quality data on pollutants of concern where no data exists or there are insufficient data to characterize baseline water quality and to determine available assimilative capacity. A discharger shall characterize baseline water quality at a location upstream of the proposed discharge location;
   b. Alternative analysis.
      i. The person seeking authorization for the discharge shall prepare and submit a written analysis of alternatives to the discharge. The analysis shall provide information on all reasonable, cost-effective, less-degrading or non-degrading discharge alternatives. Alternatives may include wastewater treatment process changes or upgrades, pollution prevention measures, source reduction, water reclamation, alternative discharge locations, groundwater recharge, land application or treatment, local pretreatment programs, improved operation and maintenance of existing systems, seasonal or controlled discharge to avoid critical flow conditions, and zero discharge;
      ii. The alternatives analysis shall include cost information on base pollution control measures associated with the regulated discharge and cost information for each alternative;
      iii. The person shall implement the alternative that is cost-effective and reasonable, results in the least degradation, and is approved by the Director. An alternative is cost-effective and reasonable if treatment costs associated with the alternative are less than a 10 percent increase above the cost of base pollution control measures;
      iv. For purposes of this subsection, "base pollution control measures" are water pollution control measures required to meet technology-based requirements of the Clean Water Act and water quality-based effluent limits designed to achieve compliance with applicable water quality standards; and
   c. Social and economic justification. The person shall demonstrate to the Director that significant degradation is necessary to accommodate important economic or social development in the local area. The person seeking authorization for the discharge shall prepare a written social and economic justification that includes a description of the following:
      i. The geographic area where significant degradation of existing water quality will occur;
      ii. The current baseline social and economic conditions in the local area;
      iii. The net positive social and economic effects of development associated with the regulated discharge and allowing significant degradation;
      iv. The negative social, environmental, and economic effects of allowing significant degradation of existing water quality; and
      v. Alternatives to the regulated discharge that do not significantly degrade water quality yet may yield comparable social and economic benefits.
4. For purposes of this Section, the term "pollutant of concern" means a pollutant with either a numeric or narrative water quality standard.
5. Public participation. The Director shall provide public notice and an opportunity to comment on an antidegradation review under subsection (B)(3) and shall provide an opportunity for a public hearing under A.A.C. R18-9-A908(B).

C. Tier 3 antidegradation protection.
1. Tier 3 antidegradation protection applies only to an OAW listed in R18-11-112(G).
2. A new or expanded point-source discharge directly to an OAW is prohibited.
3. A person seeking authorization for a regulated discharge to a tributary to, or upstream of, an OAW shall demonstrate in a permit application or in other documentation submitted to ADEQ that the regulated discharge will not degrade existing water quality in the downstream OAW.
4. A discharge regulated under a § 404 permit that may affect existing water quality of an OAW requires a determination by the Director to ensure that existing water quality is maintained and protected and any water quality impacts are temporary. Temporary water quality impacts are those impacts that occur for a period of six months or less and are not regularly occurring. The form of such a determination shall be as follows:
   a. For Corps-issued § 404 permits, an individual § 401 water quality certification.
   b. For Director-issued § 404 permits, a § 404 permit action, wherein the Director shall conduct a water quality evaluation as a part of the state's requirements for issuing § 404 permits and in accordance with this Section.

D. Antidegradation review of a § 404 permit shall be conducted as follows:
1. For a Corps-issued § 404 permit. The Director shall conduct the antidegradation review of any discharge authorized under a nationwide or regional § 404 permit as part of the § 401 water quality certification prior to issuance of the nationwide or regional permit. The Director shall conduct the antidegradation review of an individual § 404 permit if the discharge may degrade existing water quality in an OAW or a water listed on the 303(d) List of impaired waters. For regulated discharges that may degrade water quality in an OAW or a water that is on the 303(d) List of impaired waters, the Director shall conduct the antidegradation review as part of the § 401 water quality certification process.
2. For a Director-issued § 404 permit. The Director shall conduct the antidegradation review of any discharge authorized under a general § 404 permit as a part of its determination whether to issue a general permit in accordance with state requirements for issuing a § 404 general permit and with this Section. The Director shall conduct the antidegradation review of an individual § 404 permit as part of the § 404 permit action in accordance with state requirements for issuing a § 404 permit and in accordance with this Section.

E. Antidegradation review of an AZPDES stormwater permit. An individual stormwater permit for a municipal separate storm sewer system (MS4) meets antidegradation requirements if the permittee complies with the permit, including developing a stormwater management plan containing controls that reduce the level of pollutants in stormwater discharges to the maximum extent practicable.

F. Antidegradation review of a general permit. The Director shall conduct the antidegradation review of a regulated discharge authorized by a general permit at the time the general permit is issued or renewed. A person seeking authorization to discharge under a general permit is not required to undergo an individual antidegradation review at the time the Notice of Intent is submitted unless the discharge may degrade existing water quality in an OAW or a water listed on the 303(d) List of impaired waters.

An endangered or threatened species is identified in "Endangered and Threatened Wildlife," 50 CFR 17.11 (revised 2005), and "Endangered and Threatened Plants," 50 CFR 17.12 (revised 2005). This material is incorporated by reference and does not include any later amendments or editions of the incorporated material. C. Any person may submit a petition for rule adoption requesting that the Director classify a surface water as an effluent-dependent water. The petition shall include:

1. A map and a description of the surface water;
2. Information that demonstrates that the surface water consists of a point source discharge of wastewater; and
3. Information that demonstrates that, without a point source discharge of a wastewater, the receiving water is an ephemeral water.

D. The Director shall use the water quality standards that apply to an effluent-dependent water to derive water quality-based effluent limits for a point source discharge of wastewater to an ephemeral water.

E. The Director may use aquatic and wildlife (edw) acute standards only to derive water quality based effluent limits for a sporadic, infrequent, or emergency point source discharge to an ephemeral water or to an effluent-dependent water. The Director shall consider the following factors when deciding whether to apply A&Wedw (acute) standards:

1. The amount, frequency, and duration of the discharge;
2. The length of time water may be present in the receiving water;
3. The distance to a downstream water with aquatic and wildlife chronic standards; and
4. The likelihood of chronic exposure to pollutants.

F. The Director may establish alternative water quality-based effluent limits in an AZPDES permit based on seasonal differences in the discharge.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective December 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-4). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 14 A.A.R. 4708, effective January 31, 2009 (Supp. 08-4).

R18-11-114. Mixing Zones

A. The Director may establish a mixing zone for a point source discharge to a surface water as a condition of an individual AZPDES permit on a pollutant-by-pollutant basis. A mixing zone is prohibited in an ephemeral water or where there is no water for dilution, or as prohibited pursuant to subsection (H).

B. The owner or operator of a point source seeking the establishment of a mixing zone shall submit a request to the Director for a mixing zone as part of an application for an AZPDES permit. The request shall include:
1. An identification of the pollutant for which the mixing zone is requested;
2. A proposed outfall design;
3. A definition of the boundary of the proposed mixing zone. For purposes of this subsection, the boundary of a mixing zone is where complete mixing occurs; and
4. A complete and detailed description of the existing physical, biological, and chemical conditions of the receiving water and the predicted impact of the proposed mixing zone on those conditions. The description shall also address the factors listed in subsection (D) that the Director must consider when deciding to grant or deny a request and shall address the mixing zone requirements in subsection (H).

C. The Director shall consider the following factors when deciding whether to grant or deny a request for a mixing zone:
1. The assimilative capacity of the receiving water;
2. The likelihood of adverse human health effects;
3. The location of drinking water plant intakes and public swimming areas;
4. The predicted exposure of biota and the likelihood that resident biota will be adversely affected;
5. Bioaccumulation;
6. Whether there will be acute toxicity in the mixing zone, and, if so, the size of the zone of initial dilution;
7. The known or predicted safe exposure levels for the pollutant for which the mixing zone is requested;
8. The size of the mixing zone;
9. The location of the mixing zone relative to biologically sensitive areas in the surface water;
10. The concentration gradient of the pollutant within the mixing zone;
11. Sediment deposition;
12. The potential for attracting aquatic life to the mixing zone; and
13. The cumulative impacts of other mixing zones and other discharges to the surface water.

D. Director determination.
1. The Director shall deny a request to establish a mixing zone if a water quality standard will be violated outside the boundaries of the proposed mixing zone.
2. If the Director approves the request to establish a mixing zone, the Director shall establish the mixing zone as a condition of an AZPDES permit. The Director shall include any mixing zone condition in the AZPDES permit that is necessary to protect human health and the designated uses of the surface water.

E. Any person who is adversely affected by the Director's decision to grant or deny a request for a mixing zone may appeal the decision under A.R.S. § 49-321 et seq. and A.R.S. § 41-1092 et seq.

F. The Director shall reevaluate a mixing zone upon issuance, reissuance, or modification of the AZPDES permit for the point source or a modification of the outfall structure.

G. Mixing zone requirements.
1. A mixing zone shall be as small as practicable in that it shall not extend beyond the point in the waterbody at which complete mixing occurs under the critical flow conditions of the discharge and of the receiving water.
2. The total horizontal area allocated to all mixing zones on a lake shall not exceed 10 percent of the surface area of the lake.
3. Adjacent mixing zones in a lake shall not overlap or be located closer together than the greatest horizontal dimension of the largest mixing zone.
4. The design of any discharge outfall shall maximize initial dilution of the wastewater in a surface water.
5. The size of the zone of initial dilution in a mixing zone shall prevent lethality to organisms passing through the zone of initial dilution. The mixing zone shall prevent acute toxicity and lethality to organisms passing through the mixing zone.

H. The Director shall not establish a mixing zone in an AZPDES permit for the following persistent, bioaccumulative pollutants:
1. Chlordane,
2. DDT and its metabolites (DDD and DDE),
3. Dieldrin,
4. Dioxin,
5. Endrin,
6. Endrin aldehyde,
7. Heptachlor,
8. Heptachlor epoxide,
9. Lindane,
10. Mercury,
11. Polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), and
12. Toxaphene.

Historical Note
Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). R18-11-115. Site-Specific Standards

A. The Director shall adopt a site-specific standard by rule.

B. The Director may adopt a site-specific standard based upon a request or upon the Director's initiative for any of the following reasons:
1. Local physical, chemical, or hydrological conditions of a surface water such as pH, hardness, fate and transport, or temperature alters the biological availability or toxicity of a pollutant;
2. The sensitivity of resident aquatic organisms that occur in a surface water to a pollutant differs from the sensitivity of the species used to derive the numeric water quality standards to protect aquatic life in Appendix A;
3. Resident aquatic organisms that occur in a surface water represent a narrower mix of species than those in the dataset used by ADEQ to derive numeric water quality standards to protect aquatic life in Appendix A;
4. The natural background concentration of a pollutant is greater than the numeric water quality standard to protect aquatic life prescribed in Appendix A. "Natural background" means the concentration of a pollutant in a surface water due only to non-anthropogenic sources; or

5. Other factors or combination of factors that upon review by the Director warrant changing a numeric water quality standard for a surface water.

C. Site-specific standard by request. To request that the Director adopt a site-specific standard, a person must conduct a study to support the development of a site-specific standard using a scientifically-defensible procedure.

1. Before conducting the study, a person shall submit a study outline to the Director for approval that contains the following elements:
   a. Identifies the pollutant;
   b. Describes the reach's boundaries;
   c. Uses one of the following procedures, as defined by the most recent EPA guidance documents:
      i. The recalculation procedure,
      ii. The water effects ratio for metals,
      iii. The streamlined water effects ratio, or
      iv. The Biotic ligand model.
   d. Demonstrates that all designated uses are protected.
2. Alternatively, a study outline submitted for the Director's approval must contain the following elements:
   a. Identifies the pollutant;
   b. Describes the reach's boundaries;
   c. Describes the hydrologic regime of the waterbody;
   d. Describes the scientifically-defensible procedure, which can include relevant aquatic life studies, ecological studies, laboratory tests, biological translators, fate and transport models, and risk analyses;
   e. Describes and compares the taxonomic composition, distribution and density of the aquatic biota within the reach to a reference reach and describes the basis of any major taxonomic differences;
   f. Describes the pollutant's effect on the affected species or appropriate surrogate species and on the other designated uses listed for the reach;
   g. Demonstrates that all designated uses are protected; and
   h. A person seeking to develop a site-specific standard based on natural background may use statistical or modeling approaches to determine natural background concentration. Modeling approaches include Better Assessment Science Integrating Source and Nonpoint Sources (Basins), Hydrologic Simulation Program-Fortran (HSPF), and Hydrologic Engineering Center (HEC) programs developed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

R18-11-116. Resource Management Agencies

Nothing in this Article prohibits fisheries management activities by the Arizona Game and Fish Department or the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. This Article does not exempt fish hatcheries from AZPDES permit requirements.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 14 A.A.R. 4708, effective January 31, 2009 (Supp. 08-4).

R18-11-117. Canals and Urban Park Lakes

A. Nothing in this Article prevents the routine physical or mechanical maintenance of canals, drains, and the urban lakes identified in Appendix B. Physical or mechanical maintenance includes dewatering, lining, dredging, and the physical, biological, or chemical control of weeds and algae. Increases in turbidity that result from physical or mechanical maintenance activities are permitted in canals, drains, and the urban lakes identified in Appendix B.

B. The discharge of lubricating oil associated with the start-up of well pumps that discharge to canals is not a violation of R18-11-108(B).

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 14 A.A.R. 4708, effective January 31, 2009 (Supp. 08-4).

R18-11-118. Dams and Flood Control Structures

Increases in turbidity that result from the routine physical or mechanical maintenance of a dam or flood control structure are not violations of this Article. Nothing in this Article requires the release of water from a dam or a flood control structure.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 14 A.A.R. 4708, effective January 31, 2009 (Supp. 08-4).

R18-11-119. Natural background

Where the concentration of a pollutant exceeds a water quality standard and the exceedance is not caused by human activity but is due solely to naturally-occurring conditions, the exceedance shall not be considered a violation of the water quality standard.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1).

R18-11-120. Enforcement of Non-permitted Discharges

A. The Department may establish a numeric water quality standard at a concentration that is below the practical quantitation limit. Therefore, in enforcement actions pursuant to subsection (B), the water quality standard is enforceable at the practical quantitation limit.

B. Except for chronic aquatic and wildlife criteria, for non-permitted discharge violations, the Department shall determine compliance with numeric water quality standard criteria from the analytical result of a single sample, unless additional samples are required under this article. For chronic aquatic and wildlife criteria, compliance for non-permitted discharge violations shall be determined from the geometric mean of the analytical results of the last four samples taken at least 24 hours apart. For the purposes of this Section, a "non-permitted discharge violation" does not include a discharge regulated under an AZPDES permit.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 25 A.A.R. 2515, effective November 9, 2019 (Supp. 19-3).

R18-11-121. Schedules of Compliance

A compliance schedule in an AZPDES permit shall require the permittee to comply with a discharge limitation based upon a new or revised water quality standard as soon as possible to achieve compliance. The permittee shall demonstrate that all requirements under § 301(b) and § 306 of the Clean Water Act [33 U.S.C. 1311(b) and 1316] are achieved and that the point source cannot comply with a discharge limitation based upon the new or revised water quality standard through the application of existing water pollution control technology, operational changes, or source reduction. In establishing a compliance schedule, the Director shall consider:

1. How much time the permittee has already had to meet any effluent limitations under a prior permit;
2. The extent to which the permittee has made good faith efforts to comply with the effluent limitations and other requirements in a prior permit;
3. Whether treatment facilities, operations, or measures must be modified to meet the effluent limitations;
4. How long any necessary modifications would take to implement; and
5. Whether the permittee would be expected to use the same treatment facilities, operations or other measures to meet the effluent limitations as it would have used to meet the effluent limitations in a prior permit.

Historical Note

Adopted effective February 18, 1992 (Supp. 92-1). Amended effective April 24, 1996 (Supp. 96-2). Amended by final rulemaking at 8 A.A.R. 1264, effective March 8, 2002 (Supp. 02-1). Amended by final rulemaking at 14 A.A.R. 4708, effective January 31, 2009 (Supp. 08-4). Amended by final rulemaking at 22 A.A.R. 2328, effective August 2, 2016 (Supp. 16-4).

R18-11-122. Variances

A. Upon request, the Director may establish, by rule, a discharger-specific or water segment(s)-specific variance from a water quality standard if requirements pursuant to this Section are met.

B. A person who requests a variance must demonstrate all of the following information:

1. Identification of the specific pollutant and water quality standard for which a variance is sought.
2. Identification of the receiving surface water segment or segments to which the variance would apply.
3. A detailed discussion of the need for the variance, including the reasons why compliance with the water quality standard cannot be achieved over the term of the proposed variance, and any other useful information or analysis to evaluate attainability.
4. A detailed discussion of the discharge control technologies that are available for achieving compliance with the water quality standard for which a variance is sought.
5. Documentation that more advanced treatment technology than applicable technology-based effluent limitations is necessary to achieve compliance with the water quality standard for which a variance is sought.
6. A detailed description of proposed interim discharge limitations and pollutant control activities that represent the highest level of treatment achievable by a point source discharger or dischargers during the term of the variance.
7. Documentation that the proposed term is only as long as necessary to achieve the highest attainable condition.
8. Documentation that is appropriate to the type of use to which the variance would apply as follows:
   a. For a water quality standard variance to a use specified in Clean Water Act § 101(a)(2), documentation must include demonstration of at least one of the following factors that preclude attainment of the use during the term of the variance:
      i. Naturally occurring pollutant concentrations prevent attainment of the use;
      ii. Natural, ephemeral, intermittent or low flow conditions or water levels prevent the attainment of the use, unless these conditions may be compensated for by the discharge of sufficient volume of effluent discharges without violating state water conservation requirements to enable uses to be met;
      iii. That human-caused conditions or sources of pollution prevent the attainment of the water quality standard for which the variance is sought and either (1) it is not possible to remedy the conditions or sources of pollution or (2) remedying the human-caused conditions would cause more environmental damage to correct than to leave in place;
      iv. Dams, diversions or other types of hydrologic modifications preclude the attainment of the use, and it is not feasible to restore the water body to its original condition or to operate such modification n a way that would result in the attainment of the use;
      v. Physical conditions related to the natural features of the water body, such as the lack of a proper substrate, cover, flow, depth, pools, riffles, and the like, unrelated to water quality, preclude attainment of aquatic life protection uses;
      vi. That installation and operation of each of the available discharge technologies more advanced than those required to comply with technology-based effluent limitations to achieve compliance with the water quality standard would result in substantial and widespread economic and social impact; or
      vii. Actions necessary to facilitate lake, wetland, or stream restoration through dam removal or other significant reconfiguration activities preclude attainment of the designated use and criterion while the actions are being implemented.
   b. For a water quality standard variance to a use other than those uses specified in Clean Water Act § 101(a)(2), documentation must justify how consideration and value of the water subject to the use appropriately supports the variance and term. A demonstration consistent with (B)(8)(a) of this Section may be used to satisfy this requirement.
9. For a waterbody segment(s)-specific variance, the following information is required before the Director may issue a variance, in addition to all other required documentation pursuant to this Section:
   a. Identification and documentation of any cost-effective and reasonable best management practices for nonpoint source controls related to the pollutant(s) or water quality parameter(s) and water body or waterbody segment(s) specified in the variance that could be implemented to make progress towards attaining the underlying designated use and criterion; and

b. If any variance pursuant to subsection (B)(9)(a) previously applied to the water body or waterbody segment(s), documentation must also demonstrate whether and to what extent best management practices for nonpoint source controls were implemented to address the pollutant(s) or water quality parameter(s) subject to the water quality variance and the water quality progress achieved.

10. For a discharger-specific variance, the following information is required before the Director may issue a variance, in addition to all other required documentation pursuant to this Section:
    a. Identification of the permittee subject to the variance;
    b. For an existing point source discharge, a detailed description of the existing discharge control technologies that are used to achieve compliance with applicable water quality standards. For a new point source discharge, a detailed description of the proposed discharge control technologies that will be used to achieve compliance with applicable water quality standards; and
    c. Documentation that the existing or proposed discharge control technologies will comply with applicable technology-based effluent limitations.

C. The Director shall consider the following factors when deciding whether to grant or deny a variance request:
1. Bioaccumulation,
2. The predicted exposure of biota and the likelihood that resident biota will be adversely affected,
3. The known or predicted safe exposure levels for the pollutant for which the variance is requested, and
4. The likelihood of adverse human health effects.

D. The variance shall represent the highest attainable condition of the water body or water body segment applicable throughout the term of the variance.

E. A variance shall not result in any lowering of the currently attained ambient water quality, unless the variance is necessary for restoration activities, consistent with subsection (B)(8)(a)(vii). The Director must specify the highest attainable condition of the water body or waterbody segment as a quantifiable expression of one of the following:
1. The highest attainable interim criterion,
2. The interim effluent condition that reflects the greatest pollutant reduction achievable; or
3. If no additional feasible pollutant control technology can be identified, the interim criterion or interim effluent condition that reflects the greatest pollutant reduction achievable with the pollutant control technologies installed at the time of the issuance of the variance, and the adoption and implementation of a Pollutant Minimization Program.

F. A variance shall not modify the underlying designated use and criterion. A variance is only a time limited exception to the underlying standard. For discharge-specific variances, other point source dischargers to the surface water that are not granted a variance shall still meet all applicable water quality standards.

G. Point source discharges shall meet all other applicable water quality standards for which a variance is not granted.

H. The Director may not grant a variance for a point source discharge to an OAW listed in R18-11-112(G).

I. Each variance established by the Director is subject to review and approval by the Regional Administrator.

J. The term of the water quality variance may only be as long as necessary to achieve the highest attainable condition and must be consistent with the supporting documentation in subsection (E). The variance term runs from the approval of the variance by the Regional Administrator.

K. The Director shall reevaluate, in its triennial review, whether each variance continues to represent the highest attainable condition. Comment on the variance shall be considered regarding whether the variance continues to represent the highest attainable condition. If the Director determines that the requirements of the variance do not represent the highest attainable condition, then the Director shall modify or repeal the variance in its triennial review rulemaking.

L. If the variance is modified by rulemaking, the requirements of the variance shall represent the highest attainable condition at the time of initial adoption of the variance, or the highest attainable condition identified during the current reevaluation, whichever is more stringent.

M. Upon expiration of a variance, point source dischargers shall comply with the water quality standard.

N. The following are discharger-specific variances adopted by the Director:

O. The following are water body and waterbody segment-specific variances adopted by the Director:

Footnotes

a. The asbestos standard is 7 million fibers (longer than 10 micrometers) per liter.
b. The aldrin/dieldrin standard is exceeded when the sum of the two compounds exceeds 0.003 µg/L.
c. In lakes, the acute criteria for hydrogen sulfide apply only to water samples taken from the epilimnion, or the upper layer of a lake or reservoir.
d. Hardness, expressed as mg/L $CaCO_3$, is determined according to the following criteria:
   i. If the receiving water body has an A&Wc or A&Ww designated use, then hardness is based on the hardness of the receiving water body from a sample taken at the same time that the sample for the metal is taken, except that the hardness may not exceed 400 mg/L $CaCO_3$.
   ii. If the receiving water has an A&Wedw or A&We designated use, then the hardness is based on the hardness of the effluent from a sample taken at the same time that the sample for the metal is taken, except that the hardness may not exceed 400 mg/L $CaCO_3$.
   iii. The mathematical equations for the hardness-dependent parameter represent the water quality standards. Examples of criteria for the hardness-dependent parameters have been calculated and are presented in separate tables at the end of Appendix A for the convenience of the user.
e. pH is determined according to the following criteria:
   i. If the receiving water has an A&Wc or A&Ww designated use, then pH is based on the pH of the receiving water body from a sample taken at the same time that the sample for pentachlorophenol or ammonia is taken.
   ii. If the receiving water body has an A&Wedw or A&We designated use, then the pH is based on the pH of the effluent from a sample taken at the same time that the sample for pentachlorophenol or ammonia is taken.
   iii. The mathematical equations for ammonia represent the water quality standards. Examples of criteria for ammonia have been calculated and are presented in separate tables at the end of Appendix A for the convenience of the user.
f. Table 1 abbreviations.
   i. µg/L = micrograms per liter,
   ii. mg/kg = milligrams per kilogram,
   iii. pCi/L = picocuries per liter,
   iv. D = dissolved,
   v. T = total recoverable,
   vi. TTHM indicates that the chemical is a trihalomethane.
g. The total trihalomethane (TTHM) standard is exceeded when the sum of these four compounds exceeds 80 µg/L, as a rolling annual average.
h. The concentration of gross alpha particle activity includes radium-226, but excludes radon and uranium.
i. The average annual concentration of beta particle activity and photon emitters from manmade radionuclides shall not produce an annual dose equivalent to the total body or any internal organ greater than four millirems per year.
j. The mathematical equations for the pH-dependent parameters represent the water quality standards. Examples of criteria for the pH-dependent parameters have been calculated and are presented in separate tables at the end of Appendix A for the convenience of the user.
k. Abbreviations for the mathematical equations are as follows:
   e = the base of the natural logarithm and is a mathematical constant equal to 2.71828
   LN = is the natural logarithm
   CMC = Criterion Maximum Concentration (acute)
   CCC= Criterion Continuous Concentration (chronic)

Table 13. Chronic Criteria for Total Ammonia (in mg/L, as N) for Aquatic and Wildlife coldwater and warmwater, Unionid Mussels Present

For the aquatic and wildlife cold and warm water uses, unionids will be assumed to be present unless a study is performed demonstrating that they are absent and there is no historic evidence of their presence, or hydrologic modification has altered the flow regime in a way that would prevent their reestablishment.

Table 16. Chronic Standards for Total Ammonia (in mg/L, as N) for Aquatic and Wildlife Warmwater and Effluent Dependent, Unionid Mussels Absent

For the aquatic and wildlife warmwater uses, unionids will be assumed to be present unless a study is performed demonstrating that they are absent and there is no historic evidence of their presence, or hydrologic modification has altered the flow regime in a way that would prevent their reestablishment. For the aquatic and wildlife effluent dependent uses, unionids will be assumed to be absent.

ARTICLE 2. WATER QUALITY STANDARDS FOR NON-WOTUS PROTECTED SURFACE WATERS

R18-11-201. Definitions

The following terms apply to this Article:

1. "Acute toxicity" means toxicity involving a stimulus severe enough to induce a rapid response. In aquatic toxicity tests, an effect observed in 96 hours or less is considered acute.
2. "Agricultural irrigation AZ (AgI AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water for crop irrigation.
3. "Agricultural livestock watering AZ (AgL AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water as a water supply for consumption by livestock.
4. "Aquatic and wildlife AZ (cold water) (A&Wc AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water by animals, plants, or other cold-water organisms, generally occurring at an elevation greater than 5000 feet, for habitation, growth, or propagation.
5. "Aquatic and wildlife AZ (warm water) (A&Ww AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water by animals, plants, or other warm-water organisms, generally occurring at an elevation less than 5000 feet, for habitation, growth, or propagation.
6. "Assimilative capacity" means the difference between the baseline water quality concentration for a pollutant and the most stringent applicable water quality criterion for that pollutant.
7. "Complete Mixing" means the location at which concentration of a pollutant across a transect of a surface water differs by less than five percent.
8. "Criteria" means elements of water quality standards expressed as pollutant concentrations, levels, or narrative statements representing a water quality that supports a designated use.
9. "Critical flow conditions of the discharge" means the hydrologically based discharge flow averages that the director uses to calculate and implement applicable water quality criteria to a mixing zone's receiving water as follows:
   a. For acute aquatic water quality standard criteria, the discharge flow critical condition is represented by the maximum one-day average flow analyzed over a reasonably representative timeframe.
   b. For chronic aquatic water quality standard criteria, the discharge flow critical flow condition is represented by the maximum monthly average flow analyzed over a reasonably representative timeframe.
   c. For human health-based water quality standard criteria, the discharge flow critical condition is the long-term arithmetic mean flow, averaged over several years so as to simulate long-term exposure.
10. "Critical flow conditions of the receiving water" means the hydrologically based receiving water low flow averages that the director uses to calculate and implement applicable water quality criteria:
    a. For acute aquatic water quality standard criteria, the receiving water critical condition is represented as the lowest one-day average flow event expected to occur once every ten years, on average (1Q10).
    b. For chronic aquatic water quality standard criteria, the receiving water critical flow condition is represented as the lowest seven-consecutive-day average flow expected to occur once every 10 years, on average (7Q10), or
    c. For human health-based water quality standard criteria, in order to simulate long-term exposure, the receiving water critical flow condition is the harmonic mean flow.
11. "Designated use" means a use specified on the Protected Surface Waters List for a non-WOTUS protected surface water.
12. "Domestic water source AZ (DWS AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water as a source of potable water. Treatment of a surface water may be necessary to yield a finished water suitable for human consumption.
13. "Fish consumption AZ (FC AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water by humans for harvesting aquatic organisms for consumption. Harvestable aquatic organisms include, but are not limited to, fish, clams, turtles, crayfish, and frogs.
14. "Full-body contact AZ (FBC AZ)" means the use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water for swimming or other recreational activity that causes the human body to come into direct contact with the water to the point of complete submergence. The use is such that ingestion of the water is likely, and sensitive body organs, such as the eyes, ears, or nose, may be exposed to direct contact with the water.
15. "Geometric mean" means the nth root of the product of n items or values. The geometric mean is calculated using the following formula:

$$GM_y = \sqrt[n]{(Y_1)(Y_2)(Y_3)(Y_n)}$$

16. "Hardness" means the sum of the calcium and magnesium concentrations, expressed as calcium carbonate (CaCO3) in milligrams per liter.
17. "Mixing zone" means an area or volume of a surface water that is contiguous to a point source discharge where dilution of the discharge takes place.
18. "Non-WOTUS protected surface water" means a protected surface water designated in Table A of R18-11-216 or added to the PSWL by an emergency action authorized by A.R.S. § 49-221(G)(7) that is not a WOTUS.
19. "Oil" means petroleum in any form, including crude oil, gasoline, fuel oil, diesel oil, lubricating oil, or sludge.
20. "Partial-body contact AZ (PBC AZ)" means the recreational use of a non-WOTUS protected surface water that may cause the human body to come into direct contact with the water, but normally not to the point of complete submergence (for example, wading or boating). The use is such that ingestion of the water is not likely and, sensitive body organs, such as the eyes, ears, or nose, will not normally be exposed to direct contact with the water.
21. "Pollutant" means fluids, contaminants, toxic wastes, toxic pollutants, dredged spoil, solid waste, substances and chemicals, pesticides, herbicides, fertilizers and other agricultural chemicals, incinerator residue, sewage, garbage, sewage sludge, munitions, petroleum products, chemical wastes, biological materials, radioactive materials, heat, wrecked or discarded equipment, rock, sand, cellar dirt, and mining, industrial, municipal, and agricultural wastes or any other liquid, solid, gaseous, or hazardous substance.
22. "Practical quantitation limit" means the lowest level of quantitative measurement that can be reliably achieved during a routine laboratory operation.
23. "Recharge Project" means a facility necessary or convenient to obtain, divert, withdraw, transport, exchange, deliver, treat, or store water to infiltrate or reintroduce that water into the ground.

24. "Toxic" means a pollutant or combination of pollutants, that after discharge and upon exposure, ingestion, inhalation, or assimilation into an organism, either directly from the environment or indirectly by ingestion through food chains, may cause death, disease, behavioral abnormalities, cancer, genetic mutations, physiological malfunctions (including malfunctions in reproduction), or physical deformations in the organism or its offspring.
25. "Urban lake" means a manmade lake within an urban landscape.
26. "Wastewater" does not mean:

27. "Wetland" means, for the purposes of non-WOTUS protected surface waters, an area that is inundated or saturated by surface or groundwater at a frequency and duration sufficient to support, and that under normal circumstances does support, a prevalence of vegetation typically adapted for life in saturated soil conditions.
28. "WOTUS" means waters of the state that are also navigable waters as defined by Section 502(7) of the Clean Water Act.
29. "WOTUS protected surface water" means a protected surface water that is a WOTUS.
30. "Zone of initial dilution" means a small area in the immediate vicinity of an outfall structure in which turbulence is high and causes rapid mixing with the surrounding water.

Amended subsections (B), (D), and (E) effective August 12, 1986 (Supp. 86-4). Former Section R9-21-202 renumbered without change as Section R18-11-202 (Supp. 87-3). R18-11-203. Designated Uses for Non-WOTUS Protected Surface Waters

A. The designated uses for specific non-WOTUS protected surface waters are listed in the Protected Surface Waters List in this article. The designated uses that may be assigned to a non-WOTUS protected surface water are:
1. Full-body contact AZ,
2. Partial-body contact AZ,
3. Domestic water source AZ,
4. Fish consumption AZ,
5. Aquatic and wildlife AZ (cold water),
6. Aquatic and wildlife AZ (warm water),
7. Agricultural irrigation AZ, and
8. Agricultural livestock watering AZ.

B. Numeric water quality criteria to maintain and protect water quality for the designated uses assigned to non-WOTUS protected surface waters are prescribed in R18-11-215. Narrative water quality standards to protect non-WOTUS protected surface waters are prescribed in R18-11-214.
C. If a non-WOTUS protected surface water has more than one designated use listed in the Protected Surface Waters List, the most stringent water quality criterion applies.
D. The Director shall revise the designated uses of a non-WOTUS protected surface water if water quality improvements result in a level of water quality that permits a use that is not currently listed as a designated use in the Protected Surface Waters List.
E. The Director may remove a designated use or adopt a subcategory of a designated use that requires less stringent water quality criteria through a rulemaking action for any of the following reasons:
1. A naturally-occurring pollutant concentration prevents the attainment of the use;
2. A human-caused condition or source of pollution prevents the attainment of the use and cannot be remedied or would cause more environmental damage to correct than to leave in place;
3. A dam, diversion, or other type of hydrologic modification precludes the attainment of the use, and it is not feasible to restore the non-WOTUS protected surface water to its original condition or to operate the modification in a way that would result in attainment of the use;

4. A physical condition related to the natural features of the surface water, such as the lack of a proper substrate, cover, flow, depth, pools, riffles, and the like, unrelated to water quality, precludes attainment of an aquatic life designated use.

Historical Note

R18-11-204. Interim, Presumptive Designated Uses

The following water quality standards apply to a non-WOTUS protected surface water that is not listed on the Protected Surface Waters List but is added on an emergency basis pursuant to A.R.S. § 49-221(G)(7):

1. The aquatic and wildlife AZ (cold water use applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water above 5000 feet in elevation;
2. The aquatic and wildlife AZ (warm water) applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water below 5000 feet in elevation;
3. The full-body contact AZ use applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water if the Director makes a determination that the non-WOTUS protected surface water is used by humans for swimming or other recreational activity that causes the human body to come into direct contact with the water to the point of complete submergence. The use is such that ingestion of the water is likely and sensitive body organs, such as the eyes, ears, or nose, may be exposed to direct contact with the water.
4. The partial-body contact AZ use applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water if the Director makes a determination that the non-WOTUS protected surface water is used by humans in a way that may cause the human body to come into direct contact with the water, but normally not to the point of complete submergence (for example, wading or boating). The use is such that ingestion of the water is not likely and sensitive body organs, such as the eyes, ears, or nose, will not normally be exposed to direct contact with the water.
5. The fish consumption AZ use applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water if the Director makes a determination that the non-WOTUS protected surface water is used by humans for harvesting aquatic organisms for consumption. Harvestable aquatic organisms include, but are not limited to, fish, clams, turtles, crayfish, and frogs.
6. The domestic water source AZ use applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water if the Director makes a determination that the non-WOTUS protected surface water is used by humans as a source of potable water.
7. The agricultural irrigation AZ use applies to a non-WOTUS protected surface water if the Director makes a determination that the non-WOTUS protected surface water is used for crop irrigation.
8. The agricultural livestock watering AZ use applies to any non-WOTUS protected surface water if the Director makes a determination that the non-WOTUS protected surface water is used as a water supply for consumption by livestock.

R18-11-206. Mixing Zones

A. The Director may establish a mixing zone for a point source discharge to a non-WOTUS protected surface water as a condition of an individual AZPDES permit on a pollutant-by-pollutant basis. A mixing zone is prohibited where there is no water for dilution, or as prohibited pursuant to subsection (H).

B. The owner or operator of a point source seeking the establishment of a mixing zone shall submit a request to the Director for a mixing zone as part of an application for an AZPDES permit. The request shall include:
1. An identification of the pollutant for which the mixing zone is requested;
2. A proposed outfall design;
3. A definition of the boundary of the proposed mixing zone. For purposes of this subsection, the boundary of a mixing zone is where complete mixing occurs; and
4. A complete and detailed description of the existing physical, biological, and chemical conditions of the receiving water and the predicted impact of the proposed mixing zone on those conditions. The description shall also address the factors listed in subsection (D) that the Director must consider when deciding to grant or deny a request and shall address the mixing zone requirements in subsection (H).

C. The Director shall consider the following factors when deciding whether to grant or deny a request for a mixing zone:
1. The assimilative capacity of the receiving water;
2. The likelihood of adverse human health effects;
3. The location of drinking water plant intakes and public swimming areas;
4. The predicted exposure of biota and the likelihood that resident biota will be adversely affected;
5. Bioaccumulation;
6. Whether there will be acute toxicity in the mixing zone, and, if so, the size of the zone of initial dilution;
7. The known or predicted safe exposure levels for the pollutant for which the mixing zone is requested;
8. The size of the mixing zone;
9. The location of the mixing zone relative to biologically sensitive areas in the surface water;
10. The concentration gradient of the pollutant within the mixing zone;
11. Sediment deposition;
12. The potential for attracting aquatic life to the mixing zone; and
13. The cumulative impacts of other mixing zones and other discharges to the surface water.

D. Director determination.
1. The Director shall deny a request to establish a mixing zone if an applicable water quality standard will be violated outside the boundaries of the proposed mixing zone.
2. If the Director approves the request to establish a mixing zone, the Director shall establish the mixing zone as a condition of an AZPDES permit. The Director shall include any mixing zone condition in the AZPDES permit that is necessary to protect human health and the designated uses of the surface water.

E. Any person who is adversely affected by the Director's decision to grant or deny a request for a mixing zone may appeal the decision under A.R.S. § 49-321 et seq. and A.R.S. § 41-1092 et seq.

F. The Director shall reevaluate a mixing zone upon issuance, reissuance, or modification of the AZPDES permit for the point source or a modification of the outfall structure.

G. Mixing zone requirements.
1. A mixing zone shall be as small as practicable in that it shall not extend beyond the point in the waterbody at which complete mixing occurs under the critical flow conditions of the discharge and of the receiving water.
2. The total horizontal area allocated to all mixing zones on a lake shall not exceed 10 percent of the surface area of the lake.
3. Adjacent mixing zones in a lake shall not overlap or be located closer together than the greatest horizontal dimension of the largest mixing zone.
4. The design of any discharge outfall shall maximize initial dilution of the wastewater in a surface water.
5. The size of the zone of initial dilution in a mixing zone shall prevent lethality to organisms passing through the zone of initial dilution. The mixing zone shall prevent acute toxicity and lethality to organisms passing through the mixing zone.

H. The Director shall not establish a mixing zone in an AZPDES permit for the following persistent, bioaccumulative pollutants:
1. Chlordane,
2. DDT and its metabolites (DDD and DDE),
3. Dieldrin,
4. Dioxin,
5. Endrin,
6. Endrin aldehyde,
7. Heptachlor,
8. Heptachlor epoxide,
9. Lindane,
10. Mercury,
11. Polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), and
12. Toxaphene.

R18-11-208. Schedules of Compliance

A compliance schedule in an AZPDES permit shall require the permittee to comply with a discharge limitation based upon a new or revised water quality standard as soon as possible to achieve compliance. The permittee shall demonstrate that the point source cannot comply with a discharge limitation based upon the new or revised water quality standard through the application of existing water pollution control technology, operational changes, or source reduction. In establishing a compliance schedule, the Director shall consider:

1. How much time the permittee has already had to meet any effluent limitations under a prior permit;
2. The extent to which the permittee has made good faith efforts to comply with the effluent limitations and other requirements in a prior permit;
3. Whether treatment facilities, operations, or measures must be modified to meet the effluent limitations;
4. How long any necessary modifications would take to implement; and
5. Whether the permittee would be expected to use the same treatment facilities, operations or other measures to meet the effluent limitations as it would have used to meet the effluent limitations in a prior permit.

R18-11-209. Variances

A. Upon request, the Director may establish, by rule, a discharger-specific or water segment-specific or water segments-specific variance from a water quality standard if requirements pursuant to this Section are met.

B. A person who requests a variance must demonstrate all of the following information:

1. Identification of the specific pollutant and water quality standard for which a variance is sought.
2. Identification of the receiving surface water segment or segments to which the variance would apply.
3. A detailed discussion of the need for the variance, including the reasons why compliance with the water quality standard cannot be achieved over the term of the proposed variance, and any other useful information or analysis to evaluate attainability.
4. A detailed description of proposed interim discharge limitations and pollutant control activities that represent the highest level of treatment achievable by a point source discharger or dischargers during the term of the variance.
5. Documentation that the proposed term is only as long as necessary to achieve compliance with applicable water quality standards.
6. Documentation that is appropriate to the type of designated use to which the variance would apply as follows. For a water quality standard variance documentation must include a demonstration of at least one of the following factors that preclude attainment of the use during the term of the variance:
   a. Naturally occurring pollutant concentrations prevent attainment of the use;
   b. Natural, ephemeral, intermittent or low flow conditions or water levels prevent the attainment of the use, unless these conditions may be compensated for by the discharge of sufficient volume of effluent discharges without violating state water conservation requirements to enable uses to be met;
   c. That human-caused conditions or sources of pollution prevent the attainment of the water quality standard for which the variance is sought and either (1) it is not possible to remedy the conditions or sources of pollution or (2) remedying the human-caused conditions would cause more environmental damage to correct than to leave in place;
   d. Dams, diversions or other types of hydrologic modifications preclude the attainment of the use, and it is not feasible to restore the water body to its original condition or to operate such modification n a way that would result in the attainment of the use;
   e. Physical conditions related to the natural features of the water body, such as the lack of a proper substrate, cover, flow, depth, pools, riffles, and the like, unrelated to water quality, preclude attainment of aquatic life protection uses;
   f. Actions necessary to facilitate lake, wetland, or stream restoration through dam removal or other significant reconfiguration activities preclude attainment of the designated use and criterion while the actions are being implemented.
7. For a waterbody segment-specific or segments-specific variance, the following information is required before the Director may issue a variance, in addition to all other required documentation pursuant to this Section:
   a. Identification and documentation of any cost-effective and reasonable best management practices for nonpoint source controls related to the pollutant or pollutants or water quality parameter or parameters and water body or waterbody segment or segments specified in the variance that could be implemented to make progress towards attaining the underlying designated use and criterion; and
   b. If any variance pursuant to subsection (B)(7)(a) previously applied to the water body or waterbody segment or segments, documentation must also demonstrate whether and to what extent best management practices for nonpoint source controls were implemented to address the pollutant or pollutants or water quality parameter or parameters subject to the water quality variance and the water quality progress achieved.

8. For a discharger-specific variance, the following information is required before the Director may issue a variance, in addition to all other required documentation pursuant to this Section: Identification of the permittee subject to the variance.

C. The Director shall consider the following factors when deciding whether to grant or deny a variance request:
1. Bioaccumulation,
2. The predicted exposure of biota and the likelihood that resident biota will be adversely affected,
3. The known or predicted safe exposure levels for the pollutant for which the variance is requested, and
4. The likelihood of adverse human health effects.

D. The variance shall represent the highest attainable condition of the water body or water body segment applicable throughout the term of the variance.

E. A variance shall not result in any lowering of the currently attained ambient water quality, unless the variance is necessary for restoration activities, consistent with subsection (B)(6)(a)(vi). The Director must specify the highest attainable condition of the water body or waterbody segment as a quantifiable expression of one of the following:
1. The highest attainable interim criterion,
2. The interim effluent condition that reflects the greatest pollutant reduction achievable.

F. A variance shall not modify the underlying designated use and criterion. A variance is only a time limited exception to the underlying standard. For discharge-specific variances, other point source dischargers to the surface water that are not granted a variance shall still meet all applicable water quality standards.

G. Point source discharges shall meet all other applicable water quality standards for which a variance is not granted.

H. The term of the water quality variance may only be as long as necessary to achieve the highest attainable condition and must be consistent with the supporting documentation in subsection (E).

I. The Director shall periodically, but not more than every five years, reevaluate whether each variance continues to represent the highest attainable condition. Comment on the variance shall be considered regarding whether the variance continues to represent the highest attainable condition during each rulemaking for this Article. If the Director determines that the requirements of the variance do not represent the highest attainable condition, then the Director shall modify or repeal the variance during the rulemaking.

J. If the variance is modified by rulemaking, the requirements of the variance shall represent the highest attainable condition at the time of initial adoption of the variance, or the highest attainable condition identified during the current reevaluation, whichever is more stringent.

K. Upon expiration of a variance, point source dischargers shall comply with the water quality standard.

R18-11-210. Site Specific Standards

A. The Director shall adopt a site-specific standard by rule.

B. The Director may adopt a site-specific standard based upon a request or upon the Director's initiative for any of the following reasons:
1. Local physical, chemical, or hydrological conditions of a non-WOTUS protected surface water such as pH, hardness, fate and transport, or temperature alters the biological availability or toxicity of a pollutant;
2. The sensitivity of resident aquatic organisms that occur in a non-WOTUS protected surface water to a pollutant differs from the sensitivity of the species used to derive the numeric water quality standards to protect aquatic life in R18-11-215;
3. Resident aquatic organisms that occur in a non-WOTUS protected surface water represent a narrower mix of species than those in the dataset used by ADEQ to derive numeric water quality standards to protect aquatic life in R18-11-215;
4. The natural background concentration of a pollutant is greater than the numeric water quality standard to protect aquatic life prescribed in R18-11-215. "Natural background" means the concentration of a pollutant in a non-WOTUS protected surface water due only to non-anthropogenic sources; or
5. Other factors or combination of factors that upon review by the Director warrant changing a numeric water quality standard for a non-WOTUS protected surface water.

C. Site-specific standard by request. To request that the Director adopt a site-specific standard, a person must conduct a study to support the development of a site-specific standard using a scientifically defensible procedure. Before conducting the study, a person shall submit a study outline to the Director for approval that contains the following elements:
1. Identifies the pollutant;
2. Describes the reach's boundaries;
3. Describes the hydrologic regime of the waterbody;
4. Describes the scientifically defensible procedure, which can include relevant aquatic life studies, ecological studies, laboratory tests, biological translators, fate and transport models, and risk analyses;
5. Describes and compares the taxonomic composition, distribution and density of the aquatic biota within the reach to a reference reach and describes the basis of any major taxonomic differences;
6. Describes the pollutant's effect on the affected species or appropriate surrogate species and on the other designated uses listed for the reach;
7. Demonstrates that all designated uses are protected; and
8. A person seeking to develop a site-specific standard based on natural background may use statistical or modeling approaches to determine natural background concentration.

R18-11-211. Enforcement of Non-permitted Discharges to Non-WOTUS Protected Surface Waters

A. The Department may establish a numeric water quality standard at a concentration that is below the practical quantitation limit. Therefore, in enforcement actions pursuant to subsection (B), the water quality standard is enforceable at the practical quantitation limit.

B. Except for chronic aquatic and wildlife criteria, for non-permitted discharge violations, the Department shall determine compliance with numeric water quality standard criteria from the analytical result of a single sample, unless additional samples are required under this article. For chronic aquatic and wildlife criteria, compliance for non-permitted discharge violations shall be determined from the geometric mean of the analytical results of the last four samples taken at least 24 hours apart. For the purposes of this Section, a "non-permitted discharge violation" does not include a discharge regulated under an AZPDES permit.

R18-11-212. Statements of Intent and Limitations on the Reach of Article 2

A. Nothing in this Article prohibits fisheries management activities by the Arizona Game and Fish Department or the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. This Article does not exempt fish hatcheries from AZPDES permit requirements.

B. Nothing in this Article prevents the routine physical or mechanical maintenance of canals, drains, and the urban lakes identified as non-WOTUS protected surface waters on the Protected Surface Waters List. Physical or mechanical maintenance includes dewatering, lining, dredging, and the physical, biological, or chemical control of weeds and algae. Increases in turbidity that result from physical or mechanical maintenance activities are permitted in canals, drains, and the urban lakes identified on the Protected Surface Waters List.

C. Increases in turbidity that result from the routine physical or mechanical maintenance of a dam or flood control structure are not violations of this Article.

D. Nothing in this Article requires the release of water from a dam or a flood control structure.

R18-11-213. Procedures for Determining Economic, Social, and Environmental Cost and Benefits

A. The Director shall perform an economic, social, and environmental cost and benefits analysis that shows the benefits outweigh the costs before conducting any of the following rulemaking actions:

1. Adopting a water quality standard that applies to non-WOTUS protected surface waters at a particular level or for a particular water category of non-WOTUS protected surface waters;

6. The administrative and other costs to ADEQ associated with the proposed rulemaking.

C. The Director shall publish a copy of the economic, social, and environmental cost and benefits analysis to the agency website prior to filing any rulemaking materials during any of the rulemaking actions listed in subsection (A) of this rule.

D. If for any reason enough data is not reasonably available to comply with the requirements of subsection (B) of this section, the agency shall explain the limitations of the data and the methods that were employed in the attempt to obtain the data and shall characterize the probable impacts in qualitative terms.

E. The Director is not required to prepare the economic, social, and environmental cost and benefits analysis required by this rule when:
1. Adding or removing a WOTUS-protected surface water from the Protected Surface Waters List; or
2. Adding a water to the Protected Surface Waters List on an emergency basis pursuant to A.R.S. § 49-221(G)(7).

R18-11-214. Narrative Water Quality Standards for Non-WOTUS Protected Surface Waters

A. A non-WOTUS protected surface water shall not contain pollutants in amounts or combinations that:
1. Settle to form bottom deposits that inhibit or prohibit the habitation, growth, or propagation of aquatic life;
2. Cause objectionable odor in the area in which the non-WOTUS protected surface water is located;
3. Cause off-taste or odor in drinking water;
4. Cause off-flavor in aquatic organisms;
5. Are toxic to humans, animals, plants, or other organisms;
6. Cause the growth of algae or aquatic plants that inhibit or prohibit the habitation, growth, or propagation of other aquatic life or that impair recreational uses;
7. Cause or contribute to a violation of an aquifer water quality standard prescribed in R18-11-405 or R18-11-406; or
8. Change the color of the non-WOTUS protected surface water from natural background levels of color.

B. A non-WOTUS protected surface water shall not contain oil, grease, or any other pollutant that floats as debris, foam, or scum; or that causes a film or iridescent appearance on the surface of the water; or that causes a deposit on a shoreline, bank, or aquatic vegetation. The discharge of lubricating oil or gasoline associated with the normal operation of a recreational watercraft is not a violation of this narrative standard

Table B. WOTUS Protected Surface Waters

The waters listed in this table have been tentatively identified by ADEQ as WOTUS, under the law governing on 8/26/2022. Notwithstanding its inclusion on the list below, the status of a particular water in this table can be contested by a person in an enforcement or permit proceeding, a challenge to an identification as an impaired water, or a challenge to a proposed TMDL for an impaired water. Any changes to Table B will be made through formal rulemaking.

The waters on this list have their designated uses assigned by Title 18, Chapter 11, Article 1. Coordinates are from the North American Datum of 1983 (NAD83). All latitudes in Arizona are north and all longitudes are west, but the negative signs are not included in the WOTUS Protected Surface Waters Table. Some web-based mapping systems require a negative sign before the longitude values to indicate it is a west longitude.

Historical Note

Table B made by final rulemaking at 29 A.A.R. 302 (January 27, 2023), effective February 20, 2023 (Supp. 22-4). Amended by final rulemaking at 32 A.A.R. 612 (March 13, 2026, Issue 11), effective April 18, 2026 (Supp. 26-1).

Table C. Historically Regulated as WOTUS and in Need of Confirmation

The waters listed in this table have historically been and will continue to be regulated as WOTUS unless ADEQ makes a determination that they are non-WOTUS. Notwithstanding its inclusion on the list below, the status of a particular water in this table can be contested by a person in an enforcement or permit proceeding, a challenge to an identification as an impaired water, or a challenge to a proposed TMDL for an impaired water. Any changes to Table C will be made through formal rulemaking.

The waters on this list have their designated uses assigned by Title 18, Chapter 11, Article 1. Coordinates are from the North American Datum of 1983 (NAD83). All latitudes in Arizona are north and all longitudes are west, but the negative signs are not included in the Historically Regulated as WOTUS and in Need of Confirmation Table. Some web-based mapping systems require a negative sign before the longitude values to indicate it is a west longitude.

R18-11-217. Best Management Practices for non-WOTUS Protected Surface Waters

A. The BMPs described in this rule are intended to ensure that activities within the ordinary high-water mark of perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface waters, or within the bed and bank of other waters that materially impact (i.e., are within 1/4 mile upstream of) non-WOTUS protected surface waters, do not violate applicable surface water quality standards in the non-WOTUS protected surface waters. For purposes of this Section, the activities described in the prior sentence will be referred to as "regulated activities." Depending on the regulated activities conducted, not all of the BMPs described below may be applicable to a particular project. The owner or operator is responsible to consider the BMPs outlined below and to implement those necessary to ensure that the regulated activities will not violate applicable surface water quality standards in the non-WOTUS protected surface water.

B. The BMPs described below are not applicable to any activities that are addressed under an individual or general AZPDES permit that are otherwise regulated under A.R.S. Title 49.

C. Erosion and sedimentation control BMPs:

1. When flow is present in any non-WOTUS protected surface waters within a project area, flow shall not be altered except to prevent erosion or pollution of any non-WOTUS protected surface waters.
2. Any disturbance within the ordinary high-water mark of non-WOTUS protected surface waters or within the bed and banks of other waters, that is not intended to be permanently altered, shall be stabilized as soon as practicable to prevent erosion and sedimentation.
3. When flow in any non-WOTUS protected surface water is sufficient to erode, carry, or deposit material, regulated activities shall cease until:
   a. The flow decreases below the point where sediment movement ceases; or
   b. Control measures have been undertaken, i.e., equipment and material easily transported by flow are protected within non-erodible barriers or moved outside the flow area.
4. Silt laden or turbid water resulting from regulated activities should be managed in a manner to reduce sediment load prior to discharging.
5. No washing or dewatering of fill material should occur within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface waters. Other than the replacement of native fill or material used to support vegetation rooting or growth, fill placed within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface water must resist washout whether such resistance is derived via particle size limits, presence of a binder, vegetation, or other armoring.

D. Pollutant management BMPs:

1. If regulated activities are likely to violate applicable surface water quality standards in a perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface water, operations shall cease until the problem is resolved or until control measures have been implemented.
2. Construction material and/or fill (other than native fill or that necessary to support revegetation) placed within surface waters as a result of regulated activities shall not include pollutants in concentrations that will violate applicable surface water quality standards in a perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface water.

E. Construction phase BMPs:
1. Equipment staging and storage areas or fuel, oil, and other petroleum products storage and solid waste containment should not be located within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface water.
2. Any equipment maintenance, washing, or fueling shall not be done within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface waters with the following exception: Equipment too large or unwieldy to be readily moved, such as large cranes, may be fueled and serviced in non-WOTUS protected surface waters (but outside of standing or flowing water) provided material specifically manufactured and sold as spill containment is in place during fueling/servicing.
3. All equipment shall be inspected for leaks, all leaks shall be repaired, and all repaired equipment shall be cleaned to remove any fuel or other fluid residue prior to use within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface waters.
4. Washout of concrete handling equipment shall not take place within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface waters.

F. Post-construction BMPs:
1. Upon completion of regulated activities, areas within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface waters shall be promptly cleared of all forms, piling, construction residues, equipment, debris, or other obstructions.
2. If fully, partially, or occasionally submerged structures are constructed of cast-in-place concrete instead of precast concrete, steps will be taken using sheet piling or temporary dams to prevent contact between water (instream and runoff) and the concrete until it cures and until any curing agents have evaporated or are no longer a pollutant threat.
3. Any permanent water crossings within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent in a non-WOTUS protected surface water (other than fords) shall not be equipped with gutters, drains, scuppers, or other conveyances that allow untreated runoff (due to events equal to or lesser in magnitude than the design event for the crossing structure) to directly enter a non-WOTUS protected surface water if such runoff can be directed to a local stormwater drainage, containment, and/or treatment system.
4. Debris shall be cleared as needed from culverts, ditches, dips, and other drainage structures within the ordinary high-water mark of any perennial or intermittent non-WOTUS protected surface water to prevent clogging or conditions that may lead to a washout.
5. Temporary structures constructed or imported materials shall be removed no later than upon completion of the regulated activities.
6. Temporary structures constructed of native materials, if they provide an obstacle to flow or can contribute to or cause erosion, or cause changes in sediment load, shall be removed no later than upon completion of the regulated activities.

G. Design consideration BMPs:
1. All temporary structures constructed of imported materials and all permanent structures, including but not limited to, access roadways, culvert crossings, staging areas, material stockpiles, berms, dikes, and pads, shall be constructed so as to accommodate overtopping and resist washout by streamflow.
2. Any temporary crossing, other than fords on native material, shall be constructed in such a manner so as to provide armoring of the stream channel. Materials used to provide this armoring shall not include anything easily transportable by flow. Examples of acceptable materials include steel plates, untreated wooden planks, pre-cast concrete planks or blocks. Examples of unacceptable materials include clay, silt, sand, and gravel finer than cobble (roughly fist-sized). The armoring shall, via mass, anchoring systems, or a combination of the two, resist washout.

H. Notification. The owner or operator of any regulated activities shall, five days prior to initiation of the regulated activities, submit a notice to ADEQ on a form that includes basic information including the GPS location, the waterbody ID of the nearest non-WOTUS protected surface water, general description of planned activities, types of BMPs to be employed during the project, and phone number and email for a contact person. Work may proceed after five calendar days have passed since the owner/operator provided notification to ADEQ unless ADEQ responds in writing to the contact person for the owner/operator.

I. Exclusions: The BMPS and notification requirements in this Section shall not apply to:
1. Activities that are already regulated under A.R.S. Title 49.
2. Discharges to a non-WOTUS protected surface water incidental to a recharge project.
3. Established or ongoing farming, ranching and silviculture activities such as plowing, seeding, cultivating, minor drainage or harvesting for the production of food, fiber or forest products or upland soil and water conservation practices.
4. Maintenance but not construction of drainage ditches.
5. Construction and maintenance of irrigation ditches.
6. Maintenance of structures as dams, dikes, and levees.

A. Class A+ reclaimed water is wastewater that has undergone secondary treatment, filtration, nitrogen removal treatment, and disinfection. Chemical feed facilities to add coagulants or polymers are required to ensure that filtered effluent before disinfection complies with the 24-hour average turbidity criterion prescribed in subsection (B)(1). Chemical feed facilities may remain idle if the 24-hour average turbidity criterion in (B)(1) is achieved without chemical addition.

B. An owner of a facility shall ensure that:

1. The turbidity of Class A+ reclaimed water at a point in the wastewater treatment process after filtration and immediately before disinfection complies with the following:
   a. The 24-hour average turbidity of filtered effluent is two NTUs or less, and
   b. The turbidity of filtered effluent does not exceed five NTUs at any time.
2. Class A+ reclaimed water meets the following criteria after disinfection treatment and before discharge to a reclaimed water distribution system:

F. Aquifer water quality standard for microbiological contaminants. The aquifer water quality standard for microbiological contaminants is based upon the detection or non-detection of either Fecal Coliform or E.coli in a 100-milliliter sample, depending on the requirement in the permit.

G. The following are the aquifer water quality standards for turbidity:

1. One nephelometric turbidity unit as determined by a monthly average except that five or fewer nephelometric turbidity units may be allowed if it can be determined that the higher turbidity does not interfere with disinfection, prevent maintenance of effective disinfectant agents in water supply distribution systems, or interfere with microbiological determinations.
2. Five nephelometric turbidity units based on an average of two consecutive days.

D. Within 180 calendar days of the receipt of a complete petition for rule adoption to establish a numeric aquifer water quality standard, the Director shall make a written determination of whether the petition should be granted or denied. The Director shall give written notice by regular mail of the determination to the petitioner.

R18-11-603. General Data Interpretation Requirements

A. The Department shall use the following data conventions to interpret data for impaired water identifications and TMDL decisions:
1. Data reported below laboratory detection limits.
   a. When the analytical result is reported as <X, where X is the laboratory detection limit for the analyte and the laboratory detection limit is less than or equal to the surface water quality standard, consider the result as meeting the water quality standard:
      i. Use these statistically derived values in trend analysis, descriptive statistics or modeling if there is sufficient data to support the statistical estimation of values reported as less than the laboratory detection limit; or
      ii. Use one-half of the value of the laboratory detection limit in trend analysis, descriptive statistics, or modeling, if there is insufficient data to support the statistical estimation of values reported as less than the laboratory detection limit.
   b. When the sample value is less than or equal to the laboratory detection limit but the laboratory detection limit is greater than the surface water quality standard, shall not use the result for impaired water identifications or TMDL decisions;
2. Identify the field equipment specifications used for each listing cycle or TMDL developed. A field sample measurement within the manufacturer's specification for accuracy meets surface water quality standards;
3. Resolve a data conflict by considering the factors identified under the weight-of-evidence determination in R18-11-605(B);
4. When multiple samples from a surface water or segment are not spatially or temporally independent, or when lake samples are from multiple depths, use the following resultant value to represent the specific dataset:
   a. The appropriate measure of central tendency for the dataset for:
      i. A pollutant listed in the surface water quality standards 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 1, except for nitrate or nitrate/nitrite;
      ii. A chronic water quality standard for a pollutant listed in 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 2;
      iii. A surface water quality standard for a pollutant that is expressed as an annual or geometric mean;
      iv. The surface water quality standard for temperature or the single sample maximum water quality standard for suspended sediment concentration, nitrogen, and phosphorus in R18-11-109;
      v. The surface water quality standard for radiochemicals in R18-11-109(G); or
      vi. Except for chromium, all single sample maximum water quality standards in R18-11-112.
   b. The maximum value of the dataset for:
      i. The acute water quality standard for a pollutant listed in 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 2 and acute water quality standard in R18-11-112;
      ii. The surface water quality standard for nitrate or nitrate/nitrite in 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 1;
      iii. The single sample maximum water quality standard for bacteria in subsections R18-11-109(A); or
      iv. The 90th percentile water quality standard for nitrogen and phosphorus in R18-11-109(F) and R18-11-112.
   c. The worst case measurement of the dataset for:
      i. Surface water quality standard for dissolved oxygen under R18-11-109(E). For purposes of this subsection, worst case measurement means the minimum value for dissolved oxygen;

ii. Surface water quality standard for pH under R18-11-109(B). For purposes of this subsection, "worst case measurement" means both the minimum and maximum value for pH.

B. The Department shall not use the following data for placing a surface water or segment on the Planning List, the 303(d) List, or in making a TMDL decision.
1. Any measurement outside the range of possible physical or chemical measurements for the pollutant or measurement equipment,
2. Uncorrected data transcription errors or laboratory errors, and
3. An outlier identified through statistical procedures, where further evaluation determines that the outlier represents a valid measure of water quality but should be excluded from the dataset.

C. The Department may employ fundamental statistical tests if appropriate for the collected data and type of surface water when evaluating a surface water or segment for impairment or in making a TMDL decision. The statistical tests include descriptive statistics, frequency distribution, analysis of variance, correlation analysis, regression analysis, significance testing, and time series analysis.

D. The Department may employ modeling when evaluating a surface water or segment for impairment or in making a TMDL decision, if the method is appropriate for the type of waterbody and the quantity and quality of available data meet the requirements of R18-11-602. Modeling methods include:
1. Better Assessment Science Integrating Source and Nonpoint Sources (BASINS),
2. Fundamental statistics, including regression analysis,
3. Hydrologic Simulation Program-Fortran (HSPF),
4. Spreadsheet modeling, and
5. Hydrologic Engineering Center (HEC) programs developed by the Army Corps of Engineers.

   b. The 303(d) List if it meets the criteria for listing described in subsection (E).
2. The Department shall remove a surface water or segment from the Planning List based on the requirements in R18-11-605(E)(1) or from the 303(d) List, based on the requirements in R18-11-605(E)(2).
3. The Department may move surface waters or segments between the Planning List and the 303(d) List based on the criteria established in R18-11-604 and R18-11-605.

B. When placing a surface water or segment on the Planning List or the 303(d) List, the Department shall list the stream reach, derived from EPA's Reach File System or National Hydrography Dataset, or the entire lake, unless the data indicate that only a segment of the stream reach or lake is impaired or not attaining its designated use, in which case, the Department shall describe only that segment for listing.

C. Exceptions. The Department shall not place a surface water or segment on either the Planning List or the 303(d) List if the non-attainment of a surface water quality standard is due to one of the following:
1. Pollutant loadings from naturally occurring conditions alone are sufficient to cause a violation of applicable water quality standards;
2. The data were collected within a mixing zone or under a variance or nutrient waiver established in a NPDES or AZPDES permit for the specific parameter and the result does not exceed the alternate discharge limitation established in the permit. The Department may use data collected within these areas for modeling or allocating loads in a TMDL decision; or
3. An activity exempted under R18-11-117, R18-11-118, or a condition exempted under R18-11-119.

   b. Provide the Planning List to EPA; and
   c. Evaluate each surface water and segment on the Planning List for impairment based on the criteria in R18-11-605(D) to determine the source of the impairment.
2. The Department shall place a surface water or segment on the Planning List based the criteria in R18-11-605(C). The Department may also include a surface water or segment on the Planning List when:
   a. A TMDL is completed for the pollutant and approved by EPA;
   b. The surface water or segment is on the 1998 303(d) List but the dataset used for the listing:
      i. Does not meet the credible data requirements of R18-11-602, or
      ii. Contains insufficient samples to meet the data requirements under R18-11-605(D);
   c. Some monitoring data exist but there are insufficient data to determine whether the surface water or segment is impaired or not attaining, including:
      i. A numeric surface water quality standard is exceeded, but there are not enough samples or sampling events to fulfill the requirements of R18-11-605(D);
      ii. Evidence exists of a narrative standard violation, but the amount of evidence is insufficient, based on narrative implementation procedures and the requirements of R18-11-605(D)(3);
      iii. Existing monitoring data do not meet credible data requirements in R18-11-602; or
      iv. A numeric surface water quality standard is exceeded, but there are not enough sample results above the laboratory detection limit to support statistical analysis as established in R18-11-603(A)(1).
   d. The surface water or segment no longer meets the criteria for impairment based on a change in the applicable surface water quality standard or a designated use approved by EPA under section 303(c)(1) of the Clean Water Act, but insufficient current or original monitoring data exist to determine whether the surface water or segment will meet current surface water quality standards;

e. Trend analysis using credible and scientifically defensible data indicate that surface water quality standards may be exceeded by the next assessment cycle;

f. The exceedance of surface water quality standards is due to pollution, but not a pollutant;

g. Existing data were analyzed using methods with laboratory detection limits above the numeric surface water quality standard but analytical methods with lower laboratory detection limits are available;

h. The surface water or segment is expected to attain its designated use by the next assessment as a result of existing or proposed technology-based effluent limitations or other pollution control requirements under local, state, or federal authority. The appropriate entity shall provide the Department with the following documentation to support placement on the Planning List:

i. Verification that discharge controls are required and enforceable;

ii. Controls are specific to the surface water or segment, and pollutant of concern;

iii. Controls are in place or scheduled for implementation; and

iv. There are assurances that the controls are sufficient to bring about attainment of water quality standards by the next 303(d) List submission; or

i. The surface water or segment is threatened due to a pollutant and, at the time the Department submits a final 303(d) List to EPA, there are no federal regulations implementing section 303(d) of the Clean Water Act that require threatened waters be included on the list.

E. 303(d) List. The Department shall:

1. Place a surface water or segment on the 303(d) List if the Department determines:
   a. Based on R18-11-605(D), that the surface water or segment is impaired due to a pollutant and that a TMDL decision is necessary; or
   b. That the surface water or segment is threatened due to a pollutant and, at the time the Department submits a final 303(d) List to EPA, there are federal regulations implementing section 303(d) of the Clean Water Act that require threatened waters be included on the list.
2. Provide public notice of the 303(d) List according to the requirements of A.R.S. § 49-232 and submit the 303(d) List according to section 303(d) of the Clean Water Act.

R18-11-605. Evaluating A Surface Water or Segment For Listing and Delisting

A. The Department shall compile and evaluate all reasonably current, credible, and scientifically defensible data to determine whether a surface water or segment is impaired or not attaining.

B. Weight-of-evidence approach.

1. The Department shall consider the following concepts when evaluating data:
   a. Data or information collected during critical conditions may be considered separately from the complete dataset, when the data show that the surface water or segment is impaired or not attaining its designated use during those critical conditions, but attaining its uses during other periods. Critical conditions may include stream flow, seasonal periods, weather conditions, or anthropogenic activities;
   b. Whether the data indicate that the impairment is due to persistent, seasonal, or recurring conditions. If the data do not represent persistent, recurring, or seasonal conditions, the Department may place the surface water or segment on the Planning List;
   c. Higher quality data over lower quality data when making a listing decision. Data quality is established by the reliability, precision, accuracy, and representativeness of the data, based on factors identified in R18-11-602(A) and (B), including monitoring methods, analytical methods, quality control procedures, and the documented field and laboratory quality control information submitted with the data. The Department shall consider the following factors when determining higher quality data:
      i. The age of the measurements. Newer measurements are weighted heavier than older measurements, unless the older measurements are more representative of critical flow conditions;
      ii. Whether the data provide a direct measure of an impact on a designated use. Direct measurements are weighted heavier than measurements of an indicator or surrogate parameter; or
      iii. The amount or frequency of the measurements. More frequent data collection are weighted heavier than nominal datasets.
2. The Department shall evaluate the following factors to determine if the water quality evidence supports a finding that the surface water or segment is impaired or not attaining:
   a. An exceedance of a numeric surface water quality standard based on the criteria in subsections (C)(1), (C)(2), (D)(1), and (D)(2);
   b. An exceedance of a narrative surface water quality standard based on the criteria in subsections (C)(3) and (D)(3);
   c. Additional information that determines whether a water quality standard is exceeded due to a pollutant, suspected pollutant, or naturally occurring condition:
      i. Soil type, geology, hydrology, flow regime, biological community, geomorphology, climate, natural process, and anthropogenic influence in the watershed;
      ii. The characteristics of the pollutant, such as its solubility in water, bioaccumulation potential, sediment sorption potential, or degradation characteristics, to assist in determining which data more accurately indicate the pollutant's presence and potential for causing impairment; and
      iii. Available evidence of direct or toxic impacts on aquatic life, wildlife, or human health, such as fish kills and beach closures, where there is sufficient evidence that these impacts occurred due to water quality conditions in the surface water.

d. Other available water quality information, such as NPDES or AZPDES water quality discharge data, as applicable.

e. If the Department determines that a surface water or segment does not merit listing under numeric water quality standards based on criteria in subsections (C)(1), (C)(2), (D)(1), or (D)(2) for a pollutant, but there is evidence of a narrative standard exceedance in that surface water or segment under subsection (D)(3) as a result of the presence of the same pollutant, the Department shall list the surface water or segment as impaired only when the evidence indicates that the numeric water quality standard is insufficient to protect the designated use of the surface water or segment and the Department justifies the listing based on any of the following:

i. The narrative standard data provide a more direct indication of impairment as supported by professionally prepared and peer-reviewed publications;

ii. Sufficient evidence of impairment exists due to synergistic effects of pollutant combinations or site-specific environmental factors; or

iii. The pollutant is bioaccumulative, relatively insoluble in water, or has other characteristics that indicate it is occurring in the specific surface water or segment at levels below the laboratory detection limits, but at levels sufficient to result in an impairment.

3. The Department may consider a single line of water quality evidence when the evidence is sufficient to demonstrate that the surface water or segment is impaired or not attaining.

C. Planning List.

1. When evaluating a surface water or segment for placement on the Planning List.

a. Consider at least ten spatially or temporally independent samples collected over three or more temporally independent sampling events; and

b. Determine numeric water quality standards exceedances. The Department shall:

i. Place a surface water or segment on the Planning List following subsection (B), if the number of exceedances of a surface water quality standard is greater than or equal to the number listed in Table 1, which provides the number of exceedances that indicate a minimum of a 10 percent exceedance frequency with a minimum of a 80 percent confidence level using a binomial distribution for a given sample size; or

ii. For sample datasets exceeding those shown in Table 1, calculate the number of exceedances using the following equation: $(X \geq x | n, p)$ where n = number of samples; p = exceedance probability of 0.1; x = smallest number of exceedances required for listing with "n" samples; and confidence level ≥ 80 percent.

2. When there are less than ten samples, the Department shall place a surface water or segment on the Planning List following subsection (B), if three or more temporally independent samples exceed the following surface water quality standards:

a. The surface water quality standard for a pollutant listed in 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 1, except for nitrate or nitrate/nitrite;
b. The surface water quality standard for temperature or the single sample maximum water quality standard for suspended sediment concentration, nitrogen, and phosphorus in R18-11-109;

f. The following surface water quality standards in R18-11-112:
   i. Single sample maximum standards for nitrogen and phosphorus, ii. All metals except chromium, or
   iii. Turbidity.

3. The Department shall place a surface water or segment on the Planning List if information in subsections (B)(2)(c), (B)(2)(d), and (B)(2)(e) indicates that a narrative water quality standard violation exists, but no narrative implementation procedure required under A.R.S. § 49-232(F) exists to support use of the information for listing.

D. 303(d) List.

1. When evaluating a surface water or segment for placement on the 303(d) List.
   a. Consider at least 20 spatially or temporally independent samples collected over three or more temporally independent sampling events; and
   b. Determine numeric water quality standards exceedances. The Department shall:
      i. Place a surface water or segment on the 303(d) List, following subsection (B), if the number of exceedances of a surface water quality standard is greater than or equal to the number listed in Table 2, which provides the number of exceedances that indicate a minimum of a 10 percent exceedance frequency with a minimum of a 90 percent confidence level using a binomial distribution, for a given sample size; or
      ii. For sample datasets exceeding those shown in Table 2, calculate the number of exceedances using the following equation: $(X \geq x \mid n, p)$ where n = number of samples; p = exceedance probability of 0.1; x = smallest number of exceedances required for listing with "n" samples; and confidence level ≥ 90 percent.

2. The Department shall place a surface water or segment on the 303(d) List, following subsection (B) without the required number of samples or numeric water quality standard exceedances under subsection (D)(1), if either the following conditions occur:
   a. More than one temporally independent sample in any consecutive three-year period exceeds the surface water quality standard in:
      i. The acute water quality standard for a pollutant listed in 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 2 and the acute water quality standards in R18-11-112;
      ii. The surface water quality standard for nitrate or nitrate/nitrite in 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 1; or

iii. The single sample maximum water quality standard for bacteria in subsections R18-11-109(A).

b. More than one exceedance of an annual mean, 90th percentile, aquatic and wildlife chronic water quality standard, or a bacteria 30-day geometric mean water quality standard occurs, as specified in R18-11-109, R18-11-110, R18-11-112, or 18 A.A.C. 11, Article 1, Appendix A, Table 2.

3. Narrative water quality standards exceedances. The Department shall place a surface water or segment on the Planning List if the listing requirements are met under A.R.S. § 49-232(F).

E. Removing a surface water, segment, or pollutant from the Planning List or the 303(d) List.

1. Planning List. The Department shall remove a surface water, segment, or pollutant from the Planning List when:
   a. Monitoring activities indicate that:
      i. There is sufficient credible data to determine that the surface water or segment is impaired under subsection (D), in which case the Department shall place the surface water or segment on the 303(d) List. This includes surface waters with an EPA approved TMDL when the Department determines that the TMDL strategy is insufficient for the surface water or segment to attain water quality standards; or
      ii. There is sufficient credible data to determine that the surface water or segment is attaining all designated uses and standards.
   b. All pollutants for the surface water or segment are delisted.
2. 303(d) List. The Department shall:
   a. Remove a pollutant from a surface water or segment from the 303(d) List based on one or more of the following criteria:
      i. The Department developed, and EPA approved, a TMDL for the pollutant;
      ii. The data used for previously listing the surface water or segment under R18-11-605(D) is superseded by more recent credible and scientifically defensible data meeting the requirements of R18-11-602, showing that the surface water or segment meets the applicable numeric or narrative surface water quality standard. When evaluating data to remove a pollutant from the 303(d) List, the monitoring entity shall collect the more recent data under similar hydrologic or climatic conditions as occurred when the samples were taken that indicated impairment, if those conditions still exist;
      iii. The surface water or segment no longer meets the criteria for impairment based on a change in the applicable surface water quality standard or a designated use approved by EPA under section 303(c)(1) of the Clean Water Act;
      iv. The surface water or segment no longer meets the criteria for impairment for the specific narrative water quality standard based on a change in narrative water quality standard implementation procedures;
      v. A re-evaluation of the data indicate that the surface water or segment does not meet the criteria for impairment because of a deficiency in the original analysis; or
      vi. Pollutant loadings from naturally occurring conditions alone are sufficient to cause a violation of applicable water quality standards;
   b. Remove a surface water, segment, or pollutant from the 303(d) List, based on criteria that are no more stringent than the listing criteria under subsection (D);
   c. Remove a surface water or segment from the 303(d) List if all pollutants for the surface water or segment are removed from the list;
   d. Remove a surface water, segment, or pollutant, from the 303(d) List and place it on the Planning List, if:
      i. The surface water, segment or pollutant was on the 1998 303(d) List and the dataset used in the original listing does not meet the credible data requirements under R18-11-602, or contains insufficient samples to meet the data requirements under subsection (D); or
      ii. The monitoring data indicate that the impairment is due to pollution, but not a pollutant.

R18-11-606. TMDL Priority Criteria for 303(d) Listed Surface Waters or Segments

A. In addition to the factors specified in A.R.S. § 49-233(C), the Department shall consider the following when prioritizing an impaired water for development of TMDLs:

1. A change in a water quality standard;
2. The date the surface water or segment was added to the 303(d) List;
3. The presence in a surface water or segment of species listed as threatened or endangered under section 4 of the Endangered Species Act;
4. The complexity of the TMDL;
5. State, federal, and tribal policies and priorities; and
6. The efficiencies of coordinating TMDL development with the Department's surface water monitoring program, the watershed monitoring rotation, or with remedial programs.

B. The Department shall prioritize an impaired surface water or segment for TMDL development based on the factors specified in A.R.S. § 49-233(C) and subsection (A) as follows:

1. Consider an impaired surface water or segment a high priority if:
   a. The listed pollutant poses a substantial threat to the health and safety of humans, aquatic life, or wildlife based on:
      i. The number and type of designated uses impaired; ii. The type and extent of risk from the impairment to human health, aquatic life, or wildlife;
      iii. The pollutant causing the impairment, or
      iv. The severity, magnitude, and duration the surface water quality standard was exceeded;
   b. A new or modified individual NPDES or AZPDES permit is sought for a new or modified discharge to the impaired water;
   c. The listed surface water or segment is listed as a unique water in A.A.C. R18-11-112 or is part of an area classified as a "wilderness area," "wild and scenic river," or other federal or state special protection of the water resource;

d. The listed surface water or segment contains a species listed as threatened or endangered under the federal Endangered Species Act and the presence of the pollutant in the surface water or segment is likely to jeopardize the listed species;
e. A delay in conducting the TMDL could jeopardize the Department's ability to gather sufficient credible data necessary to develop the TMDL;
f. There is significant public interest and support for the development of a TMDL;
g. The surface water or segment has important recreational and economic significance to the public; or
h. The pollutant is listed for eight years or more.

2. Consider an impaired surface water or segment a medium priority if:
a. The surface water or segment fails to meet more than one designated use;
b. The pollutant exceeds more than one surface water quality standard;
c. A surface water quality standard exceedance is correlated to seasonal conditions caused by natural events, such as storms, weather patterns, or lake turnover;
d. It will take more than two years for proposed actions in the watershed to result in the surface water attaining applicable water quality standards;
e. The type of pollutant and other factors relating to the surface water or segment make the TMDL complex; or
f. The administrative needs of the Department, including TMDL schedule commitments with EPA, permitting requirements, or basin priorities that require completion of the TMDL.

3. Consider an impaired surface water or segment a low priority if:
a. The Department has formally submitted a proposal to delist the surface water, segment, or pollutant to EPA based on R18-11-605(E)(2). If the Department makes the submission outside the listing process cycle, the change in priority ranking will not be effective until EPA approves the submittal;
b. The Department has modified, or formally proposed for modification, the designated use or applicable surface water quality standard, resulting in an impaired water no longer being impaired, but the modification has not been approved by EPA;
c. The surface water or segment is expected to attain surface water quality standards due to any of the following:
i. Recently instituted treatment levels or best management practices in the drainage area, ii. Discharges or activities related to the impairment have ceased, or
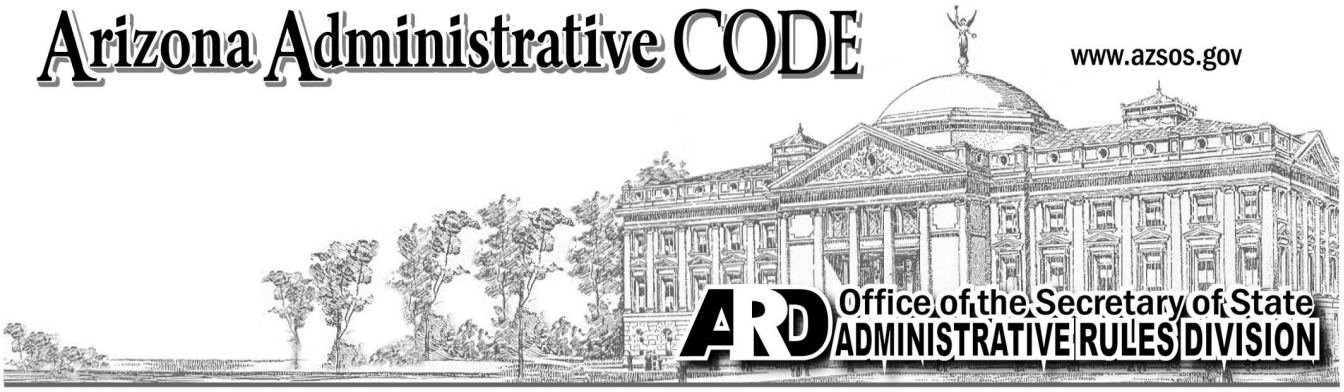
iii. Actions have been taken and controls are in place or scheduled for implementation that will likely to bring the surface water back into compliance;
d. The surface water or segment is ephemeral or intermittent. The Department shall re-prioritize the surface water or segment if the presence of the pollutant in the listed water poses a threat to the health and safety of humans, aquatic life, or wildlife using the water, or the pollutant is contributing to the impairment of a downstream perennial surface water or segment;
e. The pollutant poses a low ecological and human health risk;
f. Insufficient data exist to determine the source of the pollutant load;
g. The uncertainty of timely coordination with national and international entities concerning international waters;
h. Naturally occurring conditions are a major contributor to the impairment; and
i. No documentation or effective analytical tools exist to develop a TMDL for the surface water or segment with reasonable accuracy.



C. The Department will target surface waters with high priority factors in subsections (B)(1)(a) through (B)(1)(d) for initiation of TMDLs within two years following EPA approval of the 303(d) List.

D. The Department may shift priority ranking of a surface water or segment for any of the following reasons:
1. A change in federal, state, or tribal policies or priorities that affect resources to complete a TMDL;
2. Resource efficiencies for coordinating TMDL development with other monitoring activities, including the Department's ambient monitoring program that monitors watersheds on a five-year rotational basis;
3. Resource efficiencies for coordinating TMDL development with Department remedial or compliance programs;
4. New information is obtained that will revise whether the surface water or segment is a high priority based on factors in subsection (B); and
5. Reduction or increase in staff or budget involved in the TMDL development.

E. The Department may complete a TMDL initiated before July 12, 2002 for a surface water or segment that was listed as impaired on the 1998 303(d) List but does not qualify for listing under the criteria in R18-11-605, if:
1. The TMDL investigation establishes that the water quality standard is not being met and the allocation of loads is expected to bring the surface water into compliance with standards,
2. The Department estimates that more than 50 percent of the cost of completing the TMDL has been spent,
3. There is community involvement and interest in completing the TMDL, or
4. The TMDL is included within an EPA-approved state workplan initiated before July 12, 2002.

Preface

Under Arizona law, the Department of State, Office of the Secretary of State (Office), Administrative Rules Division, accepts state agency rule notice and other legal filings and is the publisher of Arizona rules. The Office of the Secretary of State does not interpret or enforce rules in the Administrative Code. Questions about rules should be directed to the state agency responsible for the promulgation of the rule.

Scott Cancelosi, Director

Rules

The definition for a rule is provided for under A.R.S. § 41-1001. "'Rule' means an agency statement of general applicability that implements, interprets, or prescribes law or policy, or describes the procedures or practice requirements of an agency."

The Arizona Administrative Code

The Arizona Administrative Code is where the official rules of the state of Arizona are published. The Code is the official codification of rules that govern state agencies, boards, and commissions.

The Code is separated by subject into Titles. Titles are divided into Chapters. A Chapter includes state agency rules. Rules in Chapters are divided into Articles, then a Section number with a heading. The "R" at the beginning of the Section number stands for "rule." The rule itself includes sequential letters and numbers in an outline. Each lettered or numbered Section is called a subsection of the rule.

Rules are codified quarterly in the Code. For example:

Rules codified in the first quarter are filed between January 1 through March 31.

Rules codified in the second quarter are filed between April 1 through June 30.

Rules codified in the third quarter are filed between July 1 through September 30.

Rules codified in the fourth quarter are filed between October 1 through December 31.

Supplement release dates are included in the footers of each Chapter. The first supplement for the first quarter of 2026 is cited as Supp. 26-1. Supplements are released three to four weeks after the end of the quarter because filings are accepted until the last day of the quarter.

Please note: The Office publishes by Chapter, not by individual rule Section. Therefore there might be only a few Sections codified in each Chapter released in a supplement. The Office links to these codified Sections in the Table of Contents of this Chapter.

How to Use the Code

Rules may be in effect before a supplement is released by the Office. Therefore, the user should refer to issues of the Register for recent updates to rule Sections.

Authentication of PDF Code Chapters

The Office began to authenticate Chapters of the Code in Supp. 18-1 to comply with A.R.S. §§ 41-1012(B) and A.R.S. § 41-5505.

A certification verifies the authenticity of each Code Chapter posted as it is released by the Office of the Secretary of State. The authenticated pdf of the Code includes an integrity mark with a certificate ID. Users should check the validity of the signature, especially if the pdf has been downloaded. If the digital signature is invalid it means the document's content has been compromised.

Rule History

Refer to the HISTORICAL NOTE at the end of each Section for the effective date of a rule. The note also includes the Arizona Administrative Register volume and page number in which the notice was published (A.A.R.) and beginning in supplement 21-4, the date the notice was published in the Register.

Arizona Revised Statutes References

The Arizona Revised Statutes (A.R.S.) are available online at the Legislature's website, www.azleg.gov. An agency's authority note to make rules is often included at the beginning of a Chapter. Other Arizona statutes may be referenced in rule under the A.R.S. acronym.

Session Law References

Arizona Session Law references in a Chapter can be found at the Secretary of State's website, www.azsos.gov under Services-> Legislative Filings.

Exemptions to the APA

It is not uncommon for an agency to be exempt from the steps outlined in the rulemaking process as specified in the Arizona Administrative Procedures Act, also known as the APA (Arizona Revised Statutes, Title 41, Chapter 6, Articles 1 through 10). Other agencies may be given an exemption to certain provisions of the Act.

An agency's exemption is written in law by the Arizona State Legislature or under a referendum or initiative passed into law by Arizona voters.

When an agency files an exempt rulemaking package with our Office it specifies the law exemption in what is called the preamble of rulemaking. The preamble is published in the Register online at www.azsos.gov/rules, click on the Administrative Register link.

Editor's notes at the beginning of a Chapter provide information about rulemaking Sections made by exempt rulemaking. Exempt rulemaking notes are also included in the historical note at the end of a rulemaking Section.

The Office makes a distinction to certain exemptions because some rules are made without receiving input from stakeholders or the public. Other exemptions may require an agency to propose exempt rules at a public hearing.

A. An employer subject to the Act shall notify its employees of the requirements of A.R.S. §§ 23-1043.02, 23-1043.03, and 23-1043.04 by posting the Commission notices titled "Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids" and "Work Exposure to methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA), Spinal Meningitis, or Tuberculosis (TB)" in a conspicuous place immediately next to the "Notice to Employees" notice required under A.R.S. § 23-906(D).

B. Properly posted "Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids" and "Work Exposure to Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA), Spinal Meningitis, or Tuberculosis (TB)" notices constitute sufficient notice to employees of the requirements of a prima facie case under A.R.S. §§ 1043.02(B), 23-1043.03(B), and 23-1043.04(B).

C. An employer's carrier, claims processor, or workers' compensation pool shall provide the notices specified in subsection (A) to the employer. These notices are also available from the Commission upon request.

D. An employer shall make readily available to its employees the Commission form described in R20-5-106 titled "Report of Significant Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids or Other Infectious Material." An employer's carrier, claims processor, or workers' compensation pool shall provide the "Report of Significant Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids or Other Infectious Material" to the employer. This form is also available from the Commission upon request.

E. If an employee sustains a significant exposure as defined in A.R.S. §§ 23-1043.02(G), 23-1043.03(G), or 23-1043.04(H)(2), the employee shall complete, date, and sign a "Report of Significant Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids or Other Infectious Material" form. The employee or employee's authorized representative shall give to the employer the completed, dated, and signed form. The employer shall return one copy of the completed form to the employee or to the employee's authorized representative. Nothing in this subsection limits the requirements to report an injury or file a claim under the Act.

F. If an employee submits an initial written report of a significant exposure to an employer, but does not use the Commission form titled "Report of Significant Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids or Other Infectious Material" the employer shall provide the employee the Commission form within five calendar days after receiving the employee's initial written report.

G. The date of the receipt by the employer or its authorized representative of the employee's initial report is the date used to compute the time period prescribed in A.R.S. §§ 23-1043.02(B)(2), 23-1043.03(B)(2), and 23-1043.04(B)(2) if:

1. The initial report contains the information required in the "Report of Significant Work Exposure to Bodily Fluids or Other Infectious Material" form, or
2. The employee gives to the employer the completed Commission form within 10 calendar days after the employee's receipt of the Commission form.

H. Failure or refusal by the employer to provide the Commission form to the employee shall not be a defense to a prima facie claim under A.R.S. §§ 23-1043.02(B), 23-1043.03(B), and 23-1043.04(B).

I. In investigating the circumstances and facts surrounding an employee's report to an employer of a significant exposure under A.R.S. §§ 23-1043.02(C), 23-1043.03(C), and 23-1043.04(C), the employer, or its carrier, or any employees, agents or contractors of either the employer or carrier, shall not disclose to any person, except as authorized or required by law, that the reporting employee, or any witness or alleged source of exposure, may have or did contract the human immunodeficiency virus, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, hepatitis C, methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus, spinal meningitis, or tuberculosis. However, an employer, its carrier or their respective attorneys, may:

1. Direct an agent to investigate the employee's report of significant exposure, and
2. Communicate with the investigating agent about the conduct and results of the investigation.

J. As required under the federal Occupational Safety and Health Standard for Bloodborne Pathogens, 29 CFR 1910.1030, an employer shall pay for the testing required by A.R.S. § 23-1043.02.

C. The representative(s) authorized by employees shall be an employee(s) of the employer. D. Compliance Safety and Health Officers are authorized to deny the right of accompaniment under this Section to any person whose conduct interferes with a fair and orderly inspection. The right of accompaniment in areas containing trade secrets shall be subject to the provisions of R20-5-616(B). The employee of the division or the commission shall inform the person being interviewed of the person's right to receive a copy of the recorded oral statement within a reasonable time.

R20-5-621. Citations: Notices of De Minimis Violations

A. The Division Director shall review the inspection reports of the Compliance Safety and Health Officer. If, on the basis of the report, the Division Director believes that the employer has violated a requirement of A.R.S. § 23-403, of any standard, rule or order promulgated pursuant to A.R.S. § 23-410 of the Act, or of any substantive rule published in these rules, the Division Director shall, if appropriate, consult with the Industrial Commission's counsel and shall issue to the employer either a citation or notice of de minimis violations. An appropriate citation or notice of de minimis violation shall be issued even though after being informed of an alleged violation by the Compliance Safety and Health Officer, the employer immediately abates, or initiates steps to abate, such alleged violation. C. After an inspection, if the Division Director determines that a citation is not warranted with respect to a danger or violation alleged to exist in a request for inspection under A.R.S. § 23-408, the informal review procedures prescribed in rule R20-5-619 shall be applicable. After considering all views presented, the Industrial Commission shall affirm the determination of the Division Director, order a reinspection, or issue a citation if the Industrial Commission believes that the inspection disclosed a violation. The determination of the Industrial Commission shall be final and not subject to review.

D. Every citation shall state that the issuance of a citation does not constitute a finding that a violation of the Act has occurred unless there is a failure to contest as provided for in the Act or, if contested, unless a citation is affirmed by the Office of Administrative Hearings or the Review Board.

ARTICLE 13. TREATMENT GUIDELINES

R20-5-1301. Adoption and Applicability of the Article

A. The Industrial Commission of Arizona (Commission) has adopted the Work Loss Data Institute's Official Disability Guidelines – Treatment in Workers Compensation (ODG) as the standard reference for evidence-based medicine used in treating injured workers within the context of Arizona's workers' compensation system. By adopting and referencing the most recent edition (at the time of treatment), and continuously updated Official Disability Guidelines, the Commission can ensure the latest available medical evidence is used in making medical treatment decisions for injured workers.

B. Until further action of the Commission, the guidelines shall apply to all body parts and conditions.

C. The Commission may modify or change the applicability of the guidelines as described in subsection (B) if the Commission determines that modification or changing the applicability of the guidelines will: 1) improve medical treatment for injured workers, 2) make treatment and claims processing more efficient and cost effective, and 3) if the Commission's modification expands the applicability of the guidelines, the guidelines adequately cover the relevant body parts or conditions. Before taking action to modify or change the applicability of the guidelines, the Commission shall provide an opportunity for public comment and hold a public hearing. A decision of the Commission under this subsection shall be made by a majority vote of a quorum of Commission members present at a public meeting.

D. Action taken by the Commission to modify or change the applicability of the guidelines under subsection (C) shall be published in the minutes of the Commission meeting when such action was taken. The minutes of this action shall be published on the Commission's website and shall be available from the Commission upon request.

E. The guidelines shall apply prospectively. Recommendations provided in the guidelines related to the management of chronic pain and the use of opioids for all stages of pain management shall apply to medical treatment or services occurring on or after October 1, 2016. For purposes of this process, chronic pain shall be defined by the guidelines. Recommendations provided in the guidelines related to all other body parts and conditions shall apply to medical treatment or services occurring on or after October 1, 2018.

F. This Article applies to all claims filed with the Commission.

G. This Article only applies to medical treatment and services for body parts and conditions that have been accepted as compensable.

H. The guidelines are to be used as a tool to support clinical decision making and quality health care delivery to injured employees. The guidelines set forth care that is generally considered reasonable and are presumed correct if the guidelines provide recommendations related to the requested treatment or service. This is a rebuttable presumption and reasonable medical care may include deviations from the guidelines. To support a request to deviate from the guidelines, the provider must produce documentation and justification that demonstrates by a preponderance of credible medical evidence a medical basis for departing from the guidelines. Credible medical evidence may include clinical expertise and judgment.

I. The Commission shall provide administrative review and oversight of this Article.

INTRODUCTION

Since 1925, when the Arizona Legislature passed the state's first Workers' Compensation Act ("Act"), the Industrial Commission of Arizona ("Commission") has administered the workers' compensation laws of that Act. The Act includes the authority of the Commission to set a schedule of fees to be charged by healthcare providers attending injured employees (also referred to in this document as "injured worker" or "claimant" A.R.S. § 23-908(B). In 2004, the Act was amended to include the setting of fees for prescription medicines required to treat an injured employee. A.R.S. § 23-908(C). In 2025, the Act was amended to include the setting of fees for durable medical equipment (DME) and dental care required to treat an injured employee. A.R.S. § 23-908(B).This fee schedule is referred to as the Arizona Physicians' and Pharmaceutical Fee Schedule (Fee Schedule).

Any reference to "healthcare providers" in the Fee Schedule is intended to include all licensed professionals whose scope of practice allows them to legally provide services to injured workers. Any reference to "physician" in relation to workers' compensation cases includes the following: doctors of medicine, doctors of osteopathy, doctors of podiatric medicine, doctors of chiropractic, doctors of naturopathic medicine, doctors of dental surgery, doctors of medical dentistry, certified registered nurse anesthesiologists, physician assistants and nurse practitioners. Healthcare providers treating employees under industrial coverage are entitled by law to charge according to the schedule of fees adopted by the Commission. Accurate calculation of fees based upon this schedule, the filing of reports and bills for payment, and the use of forms prescribed are essential to timely and correct payment for a provider's services and can be vital in the award of benefits to the injured worker and their dependents.

This Fee Schedule has been updated to incorporate by reference the following:

1. The 2026 Edition of the American Medical Association's Current Procedural Terminology (CPT®) publication, including the general guidelines, identifiers, modifiers, and terminology associated with the incorporated codes

2. The 2026 Healthcare Common Procedure Coding System (HCPCS) codes that include procedures, supplies, products, and services published by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS).

Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® publication HCPCS codes, or the CDT© publication and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier, or modifier shall control.

Except as otherwise noted, unit values assigned to the service codes listed in this document are the product of the Industrial Commission of Arizona and are not associated in any way with the American Medical Association, the American Society of Anesthesiologists, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, the American Dental Association, or any other entity or organization.

A. GENERAL GUIDANCE

1. Reimbursements and billing associated with Pharmaceuticals are found in the Pharmaceutical Fee Schedule Section and HCPCS Guidelines of this document.

2. A CPT code shall be billed when a CPT code exists that accurately describes the service provided. If no CPT code exists that accurately describes the service, a HCPCS code shall be billed. A miscellaneous or unlisted code shall not be used when a specific CPT or HCPCS code exists that describes the service. Reimbursement values for unlisted codes are By Report and the bill must be accompanied by documentation to support the amount billed. Exceptions apply to the following services for which HCPCS codes should be used in place of CPT codes:

    - Drug testing: CPT codes 80320-80377 may not be used to bill for drug testing. HCPCS codes G0480 - G0483 shall be used for definitive drug testing.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

3. A CDT© code shall be billed when a CDT© code exists that accurately describes the service provided. If no CDT© code exists that accurately describes the service, reimbursement shall be By Report. The bill from the Dentist must be accompanied by supporting documentation and the amount billed.

4. Except when governed by a separate contract or network that governs fees pursuant to A.R.S. § 23-908(K)(1), this Fee Schedule establishes the maximum reimbursement values for services performed by healthcare providers to injured workers under Arizona's workers' compensation law.

5. If a healthcare provider or insurance carrier is referring an injured worker to a medical specialist for evaluation and/or treatment, the medical specialist's diagnosis becomes the foundational diagnosis for billing purposes.

6. Routine progress and routine final reports filed by the attending healthcare provider do not ordinarily command a fee. Payment will be made for only one professional visit in any one (1) day except when the submitted report clearly demonstrates the need for the additional visit and fee.

7. Fees for hospital, office, or home visits, subsequent to the initial visit, are not to be added to coded surgical procedures performed on the same day.

8. Routine office treatment principally by injection of drugs, other than antibiotics, requires authorization by the carrier or self-insured employer for each series of ten (10) after the first series of ten (10).

9. Except in emergencies, a carrier must be given notice regarding a consultation and the consultant must provide his/her report to the carrier and the attending healthcare provider within a reasonable period of time to facilitate processing of the claim.

10. The Commission requests that carriers notify attending healthcare providers at the same time the claimant is notified that their claim is closed with or without supportive care. If a claim is approved for reopening, the carrier should also notify the attending healthcare provider of that approval.

11. Missed individual appointments for consultations, without prior notification, will be compensated at 50% of the consultation fee.

12. The Commission will investigate an injured worker's complaint of bad faith/unfair claims processing practices, and if appropriate, impose penalties under A.R.S. § 23-930, in those circumstances where a "peer to peer" review was not conducted by a healthcare provider with appropriate skill, training, and knowledge or where the individual performing the "peer to peer" review was not licensed. The Commission will also investigate an injured workers' complaint of bad faith/unfair claims processing practice, and if appropriate, impose penalties under A.R.S. § 23-930, for a denial of treatment based on the failure of the treating doctor to participate in a "peer to peer" review, when the treating doctor has not been given reasonable time or opportunity to participate in the "peer to peer" review.

13. As authorized under A.A.C. R20-5-128, the maximum fee for the reproduction of medical records for workers' compensation purposes shall be 25¢ per page and $10.00 per hour per person for reasonable clerical costs associated with locating and reproducing the documents.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

14. Reimbursement values for telehealth services are governed by the Fee Schedule and no reductions are justified unless specified by the Fee Schedule. The performance of telehealth services is governed by Arizona Revised Statutes, Title 36, Chapter 36. Bills for telehealth services shall include modifier -95 and place of service (POS) code according to the incorporated AMA/CMS guidelines. Reimbursement for telehealth services shall be based on the non-facility (NF) rate regardless of the POS code.

15. Healthcare providers shall use the appropriate International Statistical Classification of Diseases and Related Health Problems (ICD-10 code(s)) published by the World Health Organization (WHO) to classify and code all diseases, signs, and symptoms, abnormal findings, social circumstances, and external causes of injury and/or disease. Mental health providers shall reference the most recent published version of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM-5-TR) published by the American Psychiatric Association to define and classify mental disorders when establishing the appropriate ICD-10 code(s).

B. PAYMENT AND REVIEW OF BILLINGS

1. Under Arizona workers' compensation law, an insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or their representative is not responsible for payment of a billing for medical, surgical, and hospital benefits that the insurance carrier, employer, or representative received more than twenty-four (24) months from the date that the medical service was rendered, or from the date on which the provider knew or should have known that the service was rendered, whichever occurs later. A subsequent billing or corrective billing does not restart the limitations period. See A.R.S.§ 23-1062.01.

2. It is incumbent upon the insurance carrier, self-insured employer, and third party processing service to inform all parties, including the Commission, regarding changes in addresses for bill processing locations.

3. Under Arizona workers' compensation law, a healthcare provider is entitled to timely payment for services rendered. An insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or claims processing representative shall make a determination whether to deny or pay a medical bill on an accepted claim, in whole or in part, including the decision as to the amount to pay, within thirty (30) days from the date the claim is accepted, if the billing is received before the date of acceptance, or within thirty (30) days from the date of the receipt of the billing if the billing is received after the date of acceptance. All billing denials shall be based on reasonable justification. The insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or claims processing representative shall pay the approved portion of the billing within thirty (30) days after the determination for payment is made. If the billing is not paid within the applicable time period, the insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or claims processing representative shall pay interest to the health provider on the billing at a rate that is equal to the legal rate. Interest shall be calculated beginning on the date that the payment to the healthcare provider is due. See A.R.S. § 23-1062.01.

   To ensure timely and accurate payment of a medical billing, a billing must contain the information required under A.R.S. § 23- 1062.01. A billing must contain at least the following information: Correct demographic patient information including claim number, if known; Correct provider information, including name, address, telephone number, and federal taxpayer identification number; Appropriate medical coding with dollar amounts and units clearly stated with all descriptions and dates of services clearly printed; and legible medical reports required for each date of service if the billing is for direct treatment of the injured worker.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

4. Payment of a workers' compensation medical billing is governed by A.R.S. § 23-1062.01, which includes:

   a. Timeframes for processing and payment of medical bills;

   b. Criteria for billing denials;

   c. A provision that the injured worker is not responsible for payment of any portion of a medical bill on an accepted claim or payment of any portion of a medical billing that is being disputed;

   d. A provision that the insurance carrier or self-insured employer may establish an internal system for resolving payment disputes;

   e. A provision that A.R.S. § 23-1062.01 does not apply to written contracts entered into between healthcare providers and insurance carriers and self-insured employers or their representatives that specify payment periods or contractual remedies for untimely payments; and

   f. A provision that the Industrial Commission does not have jurisdiction over contract disputes between the parties.

5. Healthcare providers shall bill the code that most accurately describes the service performed. If an insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or claims processing representative determines that the documentation submitted does not support the procedure code billed, the payment to the healthcare provider may be appropriately adjusted based on Fee Schedule reimbursement values. See A.R.S. § 23-1062.01. The payer shall provide documentation justifying the adjustment and clearly outline the process a healthcare provider may follow to appeal the determination. Payers shall not downcode medical billings under the Arizona Physicians' & Pharmaceutical Fee Schedule. Downcoding is defined as a payer changing a code in a payment remittance to a code at a lower service level than was billed by the healthcare provider. As applicable, the health care provider may resubmit the bill with documentation that addresses the reason for the adjustment.

6. "Reasonable justification" to deny a bill does not include the payment/billing policies of other private or public entities (publications) unless the publication has been incorporated by reference in the Fee Schedule.

7. Excluding bundling and unbundling issues, it is not the Commission's intent to restrict an insurance carrier's, self-insured employer's, or third party processing service's ability to address issues not addressed by the Fee Schedule. This includes evaluating unlisted procedures, establishing values for unlisted procedures, establishing values for codes that are listed as "BR" or "RNE", or new CPT® codes that have not been incorporated by the Industrial Commission, or managing issues outside the jurisdiction of the Fee Schedule, such as hospital billings.

8. Healthcare providers shall provide legible medical documentation and reports that are sufficient for insurance carriers/self-insured employers to determine if treatment is being directed towards injuries sustained in an industrial accident or incident. The healthcare provider shall ensure that their patients' medical files include the information required by A.R.S. § 32-1401(2). The healthcare provider is not required to provide copies of documents or reports that they did not author and that are not in their possession (i.e., Employers' First Report of Injury).

9. Treating physicians shall submit a narrative that justifies the billing of a level four (4) or five (5) E/M service.

10. The Commission has incorporated by reference the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Evaluation and Management Services Guide, and the most current American Medical Association, Evaluation and Management Code and Guideline Changes. Medical billings shall be prepared and reviewed consistent with how these guidelines are used and interpreted by CMS. Additionally, payers are required to disclose any additional guideline(s) utilized in their Explanation of Reviews (or other similar document).

11. A payer's Explanation of Review (or other similar document) shall contain sufficient information to allow the healthcare provider to determine whether the amount of payment is correct and whom to contact regarding any questions related to the payment. Information in the Explanation of Review (or other similar document) shall include the following:

    a. The name of the injured worker;

    b. The name of the payer and the name of the third party administrator ("TPA"), if applicable;

    c. If applicable, the name, telephone number, and address of all entities that reviewed the medical billing on behalf of the payer;

    d. If applicable, the name, telephone number, and address of the party that has a written contract signed by the healthcare provider that allows the contracting party or other third party to access and pay rates that are different from those provided under this Fee Schedule;

    e. The amount billed by the healthcare provider;

    f. The amount of any reduction due to a written contract with the healthcare provider; and

    g. The amount of payment.

12. Nothing in this Fee Schedule precludes a healthcare provider from entering into a separate contract that governs fees. In this instance, reimbursement shall be made according to the applicable contracted charge. In the absence of a separate contract that governs a healthcare provider's fees, reimbursement shall be made according to this Fee Schedule. If a dispute regarding the existence of a contract occurs, the payer shall demonstrate that it is entitled to pay the contracted rate by providing a valid copy of the governing contract to the healthcare provider within 30 days of receipt of the provider's appeal. If a payer fails to provide evidence that it is entitled to pay a contracted rate within 30 days of receipt of the provider's appeal, then the payer shall be required to make payment as provided in this Fee Schedule.

13. Billing and reimbursement guidelines for Pharmaceuticals are found in the Pharmaceutical Fee Schedule Section of this document.

14. The Fee Schedule does not apply to ambulance service providers. Service fees for ground ambulance transportation are set and mandated by the Arizona Department of Health Services through its Arizona Ground Ambulance Service Rate Schedule. A.R.S. § 36-2239(D) states "an ambulance service shall not charge, demand or collect any remuneration for any service greater or less than or different from the rate or charge determined and fixed by the department as the rate or charge for that service." Service fees published in the Arizona Ground Ambulance Service Rate Schedule are applicable in the workers' compensation setting.

C. REIMBURSEMENT OF MID-LEVEL MEDICAL PROVIDERS

1. Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists ("CRNAs") are reimbursed at 85% of the fee schedule.

   a. Physician Assistants and Nurse Practitioners are reimbursed at 85% of the fee schedule, except if services are provided "incident to" a physician's professional services. In that instance, reimbursement is required to be at 100% of the fee schedule. The following criteria are identified as establishing the "incident to" exception:

   b. The Physician Assistant and Nurse Practitioner must work under the direct supervision of an appropriately licensed physician,

   c. The Physician must initially see that patient and establish a plan of care for that patient ("treatment plan"),

   d. Subsequent service provided by the Physician Assistant and Nurse Practitioner must be a part of the documented treatment plan, and

   e. The Physician must always be involved in the patient's treatment plan and see the patient often enough to demonstrate that the Physician is actively participating in and managing the patient's care.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

2. For purposes of the Fee Schedule, the Commission recognizes that direct supervision of a Physician Assistant or Nurse Practitioner by a Physician can be accomplished through the use of modern technology and telecommunications (telemedicine) and may not require the on-site presence of the Physician when the Physician Assistant or Nurse Practitioner sees the patient. In all instances, however, and regardless of the extent to which telemedicine is used, the Physician must actively participate in and manage the patient's care if services provided by a Physician Assistant or Nurse Practitioner are billed at 100% of the fee schedule under the "incident to" exception.

3. It is the responsibility of the Physician to document if the services provided by a Physician Assistant and Nurse Practitioner are "incident to" the Physician's professional service. If either the incident to criteria is not met, or the documentation submitted fails to support the "incident to" criteria, the reimbursement should be made at 85% of the fee schedule.

D. DIRECTED CARE AND USE OF NETWORKS

The Arizona Workers' Compensation Act only permits private self-insured employers to direct medical care. A.R.S. § 23-1070(F); See also Southwest Gas Corp. v. Industrial Commission of Arizona, 200 Ariz. 292, 25 P.3d 1164 (2001). This limitation on the scope of directed care means that employees of private self-insured employers do not have an unrestricted right to choose their own healthcare providers, while employees of all other employers do (including public self-insured employers).[1] Notwithstanding an employee's right to choose, many workers' compensation insurance carriers ("carriers") and public self-insured employers ("employers") have taken advantage of "networks" to reduce their costs. This is done by either creating their own network of "preferred providers" or by contracting with a third party to access private healthcare networks.

[1] It should be noted that the law governing directed care is not limited to "medical doctors," but instead applies to medical, surgical, and hospital benefits. See A.R.S. § 23-1070. The phrase, "medical, surgical, and hospital benefits" is defined in A.R.S. § 23- 1062(A), which states: "Promptly, on notice to the employer, every injured employee shall receive medical, surgical and hospital benefits or other treatment, nursing, medicine, surgical supplies, crutches and other apparatus, including artificial members, reasonably required at the time of the injury, and during the period of disability. Such benefits shall be termed "medical, surgical and hospital benefits".

Actions or conduct that impair or limit the right of an employee to choose their healthcare provider may rise to the level of bad faith and/or unfair claims processing practices under A.R.S. § 23-930. The Commission will investigate a complaint of bad faith/unfair claims processing practices, and if appropriate, impose penalties under A.R.S. § 23-930, in those circumstances where a carrier, employer, or TPA has engaged in conduct that results in directing a claimant to a "network" provider. The following are examples of conduct that the Commission would consider appropriate for investigation under A.R.S. § 23-930.

- A claimant is told that they must see a healthcare provider that is "in the network;"
- A claimant is told that care from a "non-network" healthcare provider is not authorized;
- A "network" healthcare provider is told that referrals are required to be made to another "network" healthcare provider;

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

- A "network" healthcare provider is told that they may not recommend a "non-network" healthcare provider to a patient;

- A "non-network" healthcare provider is told that care will only be authorized if provided by a "network" provider; and

- A "non-network" healthcare provider is told that reimbursement will be made according to "network" discounts.

E. TREATMENT OF INDUSTRIAL INJURIES AND DISEASES

1. An employee who sustains an injury arising out of, or in the course of, employment is entitled, under Arizona law, to select a healthcare provider of his/her own choice unless that employee is employed by a private self-insured employer as described in A.R.S. § 23-1070. Employers described in A.R.S. § 23-1070, excluding the State or Political Subdivisions thereof, are allowed to direct medical care.

2. The attending healthcare provider's promptness and professional exactness in the completion and filing of workers' compensation forms are extremely important to the employee being treated. The injured or disabled employee's claim to medical benefits and compensation can rest on the conscientious attention of the healthcare provider in processing the required reports. Rules addressing the completion of these forms are found in Title 20, Chapter 5, Article 1 of the Arizona Administrative Code, which can be obtained at: https://apps.azsos.gov/public_services/CodeTOC.htm#ID20

3. The Commission, the employer, and the insurance carrier may, at any time, designate a healthcare provider or healthcare providers to examine an employee. Additionally, upon application of the employer, employee, or insurance carrier, the Commission may order a change of healthcare provider or a change of conditions of treatment when there are reasonable grounds or a belief that the employee's health or progress can thus be improved.

4. A claimant may not change doctors without the written authorization of the insurance carrier, the Commission, or the attending physician. A claimant may not transfer from one hospital to another without the written authorization of the insurance carrier or the Commission. If the patient's employment requires leaving the locale in which he/she is receiving treatment, the attending physician should arrange for continued treatment and notify the carrier of such arrangement. It is the responsibility of the physician or the hospital to which a patient has transferred to ascertain whether such a change has been authorized.

5. Treatment of conditions unrelated to the injuries sustained in the industrial accident may be denied as unauthorized if the treatment seems directed principally toward the non-industrial condition or if the treatment does not seem necessary for the patient's physical rehabilitation from the industrial injury.

6. If the patient refuses to submit to a medical examination or to cooperate with the healthcare provider's treatments, the carrier or self-insured employer should be notified.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

7. If an employee is capable of some form of gainful employment, it is proper for the healthcare provider to release the employee to light work and make a specific report to the carrier or self-insured employer as to the date of such release. It can be to the employee's economic advantage to be released to light work since he/she can receive compensation based on 66 2/3% of the difference between one's earnings and one's established wage. On the other hand, it would not be to the employee's economic advantage to be released to light work if, in fact, the employee is not capable of performing such work. The healthcare provider's judgment in such matters is extremely important.

8. If the employee no longer requires active medical care for the industrial injury and is discharged from treatment, the healthcare provider is required to provide a signed report with the date of discharge to the carrier or self-insured employer, even if, as a private patient, the employee may require further medical care for conditions unrelated to the industrial accident. This final report and discharge date are necessary for closing the claim file.

9. When a healthcare provider discharges a claimant from treatment, the healthcare provider shall determine whether the employee has suffered any impairment of function, or disfigurement about the head or face, including injury to or loss of teeth, and include this information in the final signed report provided to the carrier or self-insured employer. The Rules of Procedure Before the Industrial Commission of Arizona require that any rating of the percentage of functional impairment should be made in accordance with the standards of evaluation published in the most recent edition of the American Medical Association Guides to the Evaluation of Permanent Impairment. Additional guidance on appropriate billing and reimbursement for impairment evaluations is found in the Evaluation and Management Section of this document.

10. Once an exposure to a blood-borne pathogen occurs, the workers' compensation insurance carrier/self-insured employer is responsible for payment of the accepted treatment protocol which includes the HBIG vaccination (Hepatitis B Immune Globulin), and, if necessary, the three (3) Hepatitis B vaccinations.

    When a work-related incident occurs that may have exposed an employee to Hepatitis, the insurance carrier/self-insured employer is responsible for paying for the testing and/or treatment of Hepatitis B or C. As to the treatment of HIV, if a bona fide claim exists under A.R.S. § 23-1043.02, then the insurance carrier/self-insured employer is responsible for paying for the treatment.

11. It is the employer's responsibility, in accordance with existing OSHA standards, to pay for HIV testing. The insurance carrier may seek reimbursement from the employer for the costs associated with providing the series of three (3) Hepatitis B vaccinations if the employer failed to provide them in violation of federal and state laws.

F. REOPENING OF CLAIMS

1. Whether or not the employee has suffered a permanent disability, on a claim that has been previously accepted, the claim may be reopened on the basis of a new, additional, or previously undiscovered disability or condition, but:

    a. The claimant should use the form of petition prescribed by the Commission;

    b. The petition must be personally signed by the worker or his authorized representative and must be filed at any office of the Industrial Commission of Arizona;

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

c. The petition, in order to be considered, must be accompanied by the healthcare provider's medical report.

2. If the claim is reopened, the payment for such reasonable and necessary medical, hospital and laboratory work expenses shall be paid by the insurance carrier if such expenses are incurred within fifteen (15) days of the filing of the petition to reopen.

3. No monetary compensation is payable for any period prior to the date of filing of the petition to reopen. Surgical benefits are not payable for any period prior to the date of filing of a petition to reopen, except that surgical benefits are payable for a period prior to the date of filing not to exceed seven (7) days if a bona fide medical emergency precludes the employee from filing a petition to reopen prior to the surgery. Other information relative to reopening rights may be found at A.R.S. § 23-1061(H).

4. If a claim is approved for reopening, the carrier must notify the attending healthcare provider of that approval.

G. NO-INSURANCE CLAIMS

"No-Insurance" claims are workers' compensation claims involving injuries to employees of employers who do not have workers' compensation insurance coverage as required by Arizona law. In such cases, all claims and reports are to be addressed to the No-Insurance Section of the Special Fund of the Industrial Commission of Arizona.

H. CONSULTATIONS

Workers' compensation cases can present additional medical and legal problems that justify consultation sooner and more frequently than the average private patient. In complex cases and cases requiring an estimate of general or unscheduled disability, consultation with specialists in the appropriate field may be requested by any interested party. The Industrial Commission continues to recognize the necessity for consultations in workers' compensation and establishes relative value units and rates for consultation codes.

I. WITNESS FEES

1. Insurance providers, self-insured employers, and the Special Fund of the Commission are responsible for paying $150.00 for the first hour of testimony (or any portion thereof) and $50.00 for each twenty (20) minute increment following the initial hour (or any portion thereof) to a healthcare provider who testifies at hearing at their request.

2. The Commission is responsible for paying $150.00 for the first hour of testimony (or any portion thereof) and $50.00 for each twenty (20) minute increment following the initial hour (or any portion thereof) to a healthcare provider who testifies at hearing on request of a workers' compensation claimant.

J. DEFINITIONS OF SELECT UNIT VALUES

1. BY REPORT "BR" ITEMS: "BR" in the value column indicates that the value of this service is to be determined "by report" because the service is too unusual or variable to be assigned a unit relativity. Pertinent information concerning the nature, intent, and need for the procedure or service, the time, the skill and equipment necessary, etc., is to be furnished. A detailed clinical record is not necessary.

2. RELATIVITY NOT ESTABLISHED "RNE" ITEMS: "RNE" in the value column indicates new or infrequently performed services for which sufficient data has not been collected to allow the establishment of relativity. "RNE" items are clearly definable and not inherently variable as are BR procedures. A report may be necessary.

3. MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES: A healthcare provider is not entitled to be reimbursed for supplies and materials normally necessary to perform a billable service. Examples of those items that are not reimbursable are listed below. Billing and reimbursement guidelines for materials and supplies that are reimbursable are found in the HCPCS Section of the Fee Schedule.

   Drugs that are administered to patients in a clinical setting shall be billed using the appropriate HCPCS code and reimbursed according to the Pharmaceutical Fee Schedule Guidelines. The provisions in this subsection do not apply to hospitals, ambulatory surgery centers, and ambulance service providers.

   Examples of supplies that are usually not separately reimbursable include:
   Applied hot or cold packs
   Eye patches, injections, or debridement trays Steri-strips Needles Syringes Eye/ear trays Drapes Sterile gloves Applied eye wash or eye drops, Creams (massage) Fluorescein
   Ultrasound pads and gel Tissues
   Urine collection kits
   Gauze
   Cotton balls/fluff
   Sterile water
   Band-Aids and dressings for simple wound occlusion Head sheets Aspiration trays
   Sterile trays for laceration repair and more complex surgeries, Tape for dressings

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

4. MODIFIERS: A two-digit (numeric or alpha) sequence that provides the means by which the reporting healthcare provider can specify that a procedure performed has been altered under a special circumstance. This allows defining the modifying circumstance of the service or procedure without creating a separate procedure or listing.

   Modifier Examples

   Professional Component (PC): Certain procedures are a combination of a physician, or Professional component and a technical component. When modifier 26 is added to an appropriate code, a PC allowable amount will be paid.

   Technical Component (TC): The TC component reflects the technical portion of the procedure code. When the technical component is provided by a healthcare provider other than the one providing the professional component, the healthcare provider bills for the technical component by adding modifier TC to the applicable code.

PHARMACEUTICAL FEE SCHEDULE

A. GENERAL PROVISIONS AND APPLICABILITY OF THE PHARMACEUTICAL FEE SCHEDULE.

1. The Pharmaceutical Fee Schedule (PFS) applies to prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) medications required to treat an injured employee, whether administered by a healthcare provider or dispensed by a pharmacy (including online or mail order pharmacies) or by a healthcare provider

2. Medications are not reimbursable unless "reasonably required" at the time of injury or during the period of disability. See A.R.S. § 23-1062(A); A.A.C. R20-5-1303(A). The Industrial Commission of Arizona has adopted the Official Disability Guidelines (ODG), including ODG's Drug Formulary Appendix A (ODG Formulary), as the standard reference for evidence-based medicine used in treating injured employees within the context of Arizona's workers' compensation system. Effective October 1, 2018, ODG applies to all body parts and conditions. See A.A.C. R20-5-1301(B), (E). ODG is to be used as a tool to support clinical decision-making and quality health care delivery to injured employees. The ODG Formulary sets forth pharmaceutical guidelines that are generally considered reasonable and are presumed correct if the guidelines provide recommendations related to a particular medication. See A.A.C. R20-5-1301(H). Healthcare providers are encouraged to consult the ODG Formulary before dispensing, administering, or prescribing medications to injured employees.

3. Generic drugs must be dispensed or administered to injured employees when appropriate, consistent with A.R.S. § 32-1963.01(A), (B)[1], and (D) through (L)[2]. See A.R.S. § 23-908(C). For purposes of this subsection, the definitions in A.R.S. § 32- 1963.01(L) apply[3]. Whenever possible: (1) healthcare providers should prescribe less costly drugs; (2) pharmacies and healthcare providers (Section G) should dispense generic drugs with lower AWP values; and (3) healthcare providers (Section F) should administer generic drugs with lower AWP values.

4. If more than one drug manufacturing company produces a medication that is prescribed to reasonably treat an injured worker, whenever possible, pharmacies should seek to procure the medication with the lowest AWP.

[1] A.R.S. § 32-1963.01(A) states: "If a medical practitioner prescribes a brand name drug and does not indicate an intent to prevent substitution as prescribed in subsection E of this section, a pharmacist may fill the prescription with a generic equivalent drug."

[2] A.R.S. § 32-1963.01(E) states: "A prescription generated in this state must be dispensed as written only if the prescriber writes or clearly displays 'DAW', 'dispense as written', 'do not substitute' or 'medically necessary' or any statement by the prescriber that clearly indicates an intent to prevent substitution on the face of the prescription form. A prescription from out of state or from agencies of the United States government must be dispensed as written only if the prescriber writes or clearly displays 'do not substitute', 'dispense as written' or 'medically necessary' or any statement by the prescriber that clearly indicates an intent to prevent substitution on the face of the prescription form."

2. "Brand name drug" means a drug with a proprietary name assigned to it by the manufacturer or distributor.

4. "Generic equivalent" or "generically equivalent" means a drug that has an identical amount of the same active chemical ingredients in the same dosage form, that meets applicable standards of strength, quality and purity according to the United States pharmacopeia or other nationally recognized compendium and that, if administered in the same amounts, will provide comparable therapeutic effects. Generic equivalent or generically equivalent does not include a drug that is listed by the United States food and drug administration as having unresolved bioequivalence concerns according to the administration's most recent publication of approved drug products with therapeutic equivalence evaluations.

4. "Compound medication" means a pharmaceutical product created by virtue of mixing or combining drugs and/or components to meet the unique needs of an individual patient when the finished product does not recreate a commercially available product.

5. "Dispense" or "dispensing" means to deliver to an ultimate user by or pursuant to the lawful order of a healthcare provider, including the prescribing, administering, packaging, labeling, or compounding necessary to prepare for that delivery. See A.R.S. § 32-1901(27).

6. "Drug" has the meaning set forth in A.R.S. § 32-1901(31).

7. "Hospital" means any institution for the care and treatment of the sick and injured that is approved and licensed as a hospital by the Arizona Department of Health Services. See A.R.S. § 32-1901(45).

8. "Healthcare provider" means any person who is permitted/licensed and authorized by law to use and prescribe prescription medications, acting within the scope of such authority, for the treatment of sick and injured human beings or for the diagnosis or prevention of sickness in human beings in the State of Arizona or any U.S. state, territory or district. See A.R.S. § 32-1901(56).

9. "Non-traditional strength" medication means a finished drug product in a strength (i.e., dosage) that is not commercially available in pharmacies accessible to the general public.

10. "Over-the-counter medication" or "OTC medication" means a finished drug product, including label and container according to context, which does not require a prescription order.

11. "Pharmacy" has the meaning set forth in A.R.S. § 32-1901(74).

12. "Pharmacy accessible to the general public" means a pharmacy that is readily accessible and provides pharmaceutical services (including prescription medication services) to all segments of the general public without restricting services to a defined or exclusive group of consumers, including but not limited to consumers who have access to services because they are treated by or have an affiliation with a specific entity or medical practitioner. This definition includes mail order pharmacies delivering pharmaceutical services to workers' compensation claimants if both of the following apply:

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

a. The pharmacy does not limit or restrict access to claimants with an affiliation to a medical provider or other entity.

b. Any healthcare provider or other entity referring a claimant to the pharmacy does not receive or accept any rebate, refund, commission, preference, or other consideration as compensation for the referral.

13. "Pharmacy not accessible to the general public" means a pharmacy that provides pharmaceutical services (including prescription medication services) only to a defined or exclusive group of consumers, including but not limited to consumers who have access to services because they are treated by or have an affiliation with a specific entity or medical practitioner. "Pharmacy not accessible to the general public" does not include a hospital pharmacy. This definition does not include mail order pharmacies delivering pharmaceutical services to workers' compensation claimants if both of the following apply:

a. The pharmacy does not limit or restrict access to claimants with an affiliation to a medical provider or other entity.

b. Any medical provider or other entity referring a claimant to the pharmacy does not receive or accept any rebate, refund, commission, preference, or other consideration as compensation for the referral.

14. "Prescription" means either a prescription order or a prescription medication. See A.R.S. § 32-1901(83).

15. "Prescription medication" means any drug, including label and container according to context, which is dispensed pursuant to a prescription order. See A.R.S. § 32-1901(84).

16. "Prescription order" shall have the meaning set forth in A.R.S. § 32-1901(87).

17. "Repackaged medication" means a finished drug product removed from the container in which it was distributed by the original manufacturer and placed into a different container without further manipulation of the drug. The term also includes the act of placing the contents of multiple containers of the same finished drug product into one container. The term also includes "co-pack drug" products which contain two or more separate finished medications that are contained in a single package or unit. The term does not include a drug that is manipulated in any other way, including if the drug is reconstituted, diluted, mixed, or combined with another ingredient.

18. "Therapeutically-similar" medication means a medication that is expected to produce a clinical effect comparable to the original product. Key considerations for determining the "most therapeutically-similar" medications are: (1) the similarity of the clinical effects; (2) the extent to which active ingredients overlap; (3) the similarity of the dosage profiles; and (4) the similarity of the mode of administration; and (5) the similarity of the intended strength.

19. "Traditional strength" medication means a finished drug product in a formulation that is commercially available in pharmacies accessible to the general public.

20. "Ultimate user" means a person who lawfully possesses a prescription medication for that person's own use or for the use of a member of that person's household. See A.R.S. § 32-1901(100).

C. GENERAL GUIDELINES FOR BILLING AND REIMBURSEMENT OF PRESCRIPTION MEDICATIONS.

1. Except as permitted in Sections F and G of the current PFS, an insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or the Special Fund of the Commission is responsible for the payment of prescription medications only if all of the following apply:

   a. The prescription medication is dispensed by an individual who is currently licensed to practice the profession of pharmacy by either: (i) the Arizona State Board of Pharmacy; or (ii) an equivalent regulatory agency in another U.S. state, territory, or district; and

   b. The prescription medication is dispensed by a pharmacy accessible to the general public, including online or mail-order pharmacies that are accessible to the general public.

2. Subject to Sections C(7), D, E, and F(2), reimbursement for prescription medications shall be based on the actual medication dispensed or administered, including a substituted medication that is dispensed or administered pursuant to A.R.S. § 32-1963.01.

3. Except as specified in Sections D and E of the current PFS, a pharmaceutical bill submitted for a prescription medication must include the National Drug Code (NDC) of the original manufacturer registered with the U.S. Food & Drug Administration (FDA), the quantity dispensed, and the reimbursement value of the medication. Under no circumstance shall an NDC other than the original manufacturer's NDC be used

4. The reimbursement value for prescription medications shall be based on the current PFS reimbursement methodology in the absence of a contractual agreement between the pharmacy or healthcare provider and payer governing reimbursement. Network discounts may not be applied in the absence of a contractual agreement with the pharmacy or healthcare provider authorizing such discounts.

5. The reimbursement value for a prescription medication shall be determined on the date a drug is dispensed from pricing published in the most recent issue, as updated in the most recent update, of a nationally recognized pharmaceutical publication designated by the Commission. For purposes of determining AWP, the Commission has selected Medi-Span®.

6. The reimbursement value for a prescription medication shall be determined by reference to the original manufacturer's NDC and shall be calculated on a per unit basis as follows:

   a. Generic drugs:

      - (75% of AWP per unit) x (number of units dispensed).

   b. Brand name drugs:

      - (85% of AWP per unit) x (number of units dispensed).

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

7. Reimbursement for non-traditional strength prescription medications shall be calculated on a per unit basis, as of the date of dispensing or administering, based on the original manufacturer's NDC and corresponding AWP of the most therapeutically-similar traditional strength form of the same medication. Under no circumstance shall the NDC of the non-traditional strength medication be used.

8. The reimbursement value for OTC medications shall be calculated on a per unit basis, as of the date of dispensing, based on the retail price (per unit) of the OTC medication in settings where the medication is commercially available.

9. Subject to Section C(10), the reimbursement value for OTC medications that are not commercially available in pharmacies accessible to the general public shall be calculated on a per unit basis, as of the date of dispensing, based on the retail price (per unit) of the most therapeutically-similar OTC medication commercially available in pharmacies accessible to the general public. Under no circumstance shall the NDC or AWP of the non-commercially available OTC medication be used.

10. The reimbursement value for OTC medications that are not commercially available may not exceed:

    a. Thirty dollars ($30.00) for a thirty-day supply (or a pro-rated amount if the supply is greater or less than thirty days) for a topical cream or lotion.

    b. Seventy-five dollars ($75.00) for a thirty-day supply (or a pro-rated amount if the supply is greater or less than thirty days) for topical patches.

D. BILLING AND REIMBURSEMENT FOR REPACKAGED MEDICATIONS.

1. A pharmaceutical bill submitted for a repackaged medication must identify the NDC of the repackaged medication, the NDC of the original manufacturer registered with the U.S. FDA, the quantity dispensed, and the reimbursement value of the repackaged medication. Under no circumstances shall the reimbursement value of a repackaged medication be based upon an NDC other than the original manufacturer's NDC. A repackaged NDC shall not be used for calculating the reimbursement value of a repackaged medication and shall not be considered the original manufacturer's NDC.

2. If a pharmaceutical bill for a repackaged medication is submitted without the original manufacturer's NDC, the payer has the discretion to determine the appropriate NDC (and corresponding AWP) to use or, alternatively, may deny coverage until the appropriate NDC is furnished.

3. The reimbursement value for a repackaged medication shall be based on the current PFS reimbursement methodology contained in Section C of the PFS, utilizing the NDC(s) and corresponding AWP(s) of the original manufacturer(s).

4. Any component of a co-pack drug product for which there is no NDC shall not be reimbursed.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

E. BILLING AND REIMBURSEMENT FOR COMPOUND MEDICATIONS.

1. A pharmaceutical bill submitted for a compound medication must identify each reimbursable component ingredient, the applicable NDC of each reimbursable component ingredient, the corresponding quantity of each component ingredient, and the calculated reimbursement value of each component ingredient. All component ingredients of a compound medication must be billed on a single bill.

2. The reimbursement value for a compound medication shall be calculated at the component ingredient level. The reimbursement value for a compound medication shall be based on the sum of the reimbursement values of each component ingredient and the corresponding component ingredient's NDC, based on the current PFS reimbursement methodology set forth in Section C.

3. Any component ingredient in a compound medication for which there is no NDC shall not be reimbursed.

4. Any component ingredient in a topical compound medication that is not FDA approved for topical use shall not be reimbursed.

5. If any component ingredient in a compound medication is a repackaged medication, the reimbursement value for the repackaged medication ingredient shall be determined based on the current PFS reimbursement methodology set forth in Section C, using the AWP corresponding to the NDC of the original manufacturer. See Section D.

6. The maximum reimbursement value for a topical compound medication shall be the lesser of:

   a. Two hundred and forty dollars ($240.00) for a 30-day supply (or a pro-rated amount if the supply is greater or less than 30 days), or

   b. The reimbursement value of the compound medication as calculated under this section.

F. BILLING AND REIMBURSEMENT FOR MEDICATIONS ADMINISTERED BY A HEALTHCARE PROVIDER.

1. A pharmaceutical bill submitted for a medication administered by a healthcare provider must comply with billing procedures outlined in Sections C, D, and E of the current PFS, as applicable.

Nothing in this section requires an insurance carrier, self-insured employer, or the Special Fund of the Commission to pre-approve the dispensing of prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) medications under this subsection.

[4] Dispensing pursuant to Section G is subject to the Arizona Opioid Epidemic Act, which imposes statutory limits on the prescribing and dispensing of schedule II opioids.    e. The prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) medication conforms to dosages and formulations that are commercially available in pharmacies accessible to the general public.

5. The guidelines in Section C(1) and this section do not apply to prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) medications dispensed during in-patient hospital care or upon discharge from in-patient hospital care.

6. Subject to the limitations in this section, medications that have been provided as free samples to a healthcare provider may be dispensed to an injured employee when appropriate, but are not reimbursable.

D. DISPENSING FEE.

1. If a prescription medication is dispensed by a pharmacy accessible to the general public pursuant to a prescription order, a dispensing fee of up to seven dollars ($7.00) per prescription medication, repackaged medication, or compound medication may be charged. ANESTHESIA GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to unit values for anesthesia services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT®, the most recent edition of Relative Value Guide, or the American Society of Anesthesiologists, and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

A. CERTIFIED REGISTERED NURSE ANESTHETISTS: Are reimbursed at 85% of the fee schedule when billed with modifier QZ.

B. ANESTHESIA MODIFIERS: Anesthesia modifiers, which may include physical status and other optional modifiers, may be added to the basic values. Unit values for physical status modifiers are as follows:

		Unit Values
P1	A normal healthy patient	0
P2	A patient with mild systemic disease	0
P3	A patient with severe systemic disease	1
P4	A patient with severe systemic disease that is a constant threat to life	2
P5	A moribund patient who is not expected to survive without the operation	3
P6	A declared brain-dead patient whose organs are being removed for donor purposes	0

AA Anesthesia services personally performed by an anesthesiologist are reimbursed at 100% of the lesser of billed charges or the fee schedule calculation.

AD Medical supervision by a physician: more than four (4) concurrent anesthesia procedures reimbursed at 50% of the lesser of billed charges or fee schedule calculation.

QK Medical direction of two, three, or four concurrent anesthesia procedures involving qualified individuals reimbursed at 50% of the lesser of billed charges or fee schedule calculation.

C. REPORTING OF TIME: Time reporting is described in the Anesthesia Guidelines of the CPT® publication. In Arizona, time units will be added to the basic value and modifying units as is customary in the local area using the following unit values:

1 unit value is equal to Fifteen (15) minutes or any Seven (7) minute portion thereof.

Show the elapsed time (minutes) in item 24G of the CMS 1500 form. Convert hours into minutes and enter the total minutes required for this procedure.

D. UNIT VALUES FOR OTHER QUALIFYING CIRCUMSTANCES: (more than one may be selected)

Qualifying circumstances are described in the Anesthesia Guidelines of the CPT® book. The unit values for these procedures, which are reported as an additional service and may be added to the basic unit values, are as follows:

Code	Unit Value
99116	5
99135	5
99140	2

Note: Healthcare providers who provide additional services that are billed using CPT® codes 62320-62327 or 64400-64530 shall follow the Surgery Guidelines in this Fee Schedule.

SURGERY GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to unit values for surgical services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between CMS, an incorporated portion of the CPT®, and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier, or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

A. MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES: A healthcare provider may charge for materials and supplies as described in the HCPCS Section of this Fee Schedule.

B. MULTIPLE PROCEDURES: It is appropriate to designate multiple procedures that are rendered on the same date by separate entries. The additional procedure(s) or service(s) may be identified by appending modifier 51 to the additional procedure or service code(s). Note: This modifier should not be appended to designated "add-on" codes.

C. SPECIAL REPORT: A typical request for more detailed information from an insurance carrier regarding a billing does not constitute a "special report", which is defined in the CPT® book.

D. MODIFIERS: Listed services and procedures may be modified under certain circumstances. When applicable, the modifying circumstance should be identified by the addition of the appropriate modifier code, which may be reported in either of two ways. The modifier may be reported by a two-digit number placed after the usual procedure number from which it is separated by a hyphen. Or the modifier may be reported by a separate five-digit code that is used in addition to the procedure code. If more than one modifier is used, the "Multiple Modifiers" code placed first after the procedure code indicates that one or more additional modifier codes will follow.

Modifiers either unique to Arizona or containing explanatory language specific to Arizona are as follows:

22 Increased Procedural Services: Use of this modifier will result in a twenty-five percent (25%) increase in the listed value for the listed procedure.

25 Separately Identifiable Evaluation and Management Service by the same Physician or Other Qualified Health Care Professional on the Same Day of the Procedure or Other Service. It may be necessary to indicate that on the day a procedure or service identified by a CPT® code was performed, the patient's condition required a significant, separately identifiable E/M service above and beyond the other service provided or beyond the other service provided or beyond the usual preoperative and postoperative care associated with the procedure that was performed (see Evaluation and Management Services Guidelines for instructions on determining level of E/M service). As such, different diagnoses are not required for reporting of the E/M services on the same date. The circumstance may be reported by adding modifier 25 to the appropriate level of E/M service.

47 Anesthesia by Surgeon: Used to report anesthesia by the attending or assistant surgeon (does not include local anesthesia). Reimbursement shall be fifty percent (50%) of the base unit as indicated in the Anesthesia section of the Fee Schedule. This modifier shall be allowed no more than once per surgical encounter.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

50 Bilateral Procedure: Unless otherwise identified in the listings, when bilateral procedures which add significant time or complexity to patient care are provided at the same operative session, identify and value the first or major procedure as listed. Identify the secondary or lesser procedure(s) by adding modifier 50 to the usual procedure number(s) and value at fifty percent (50%) of the listed value(s). If, however, the procedures are independently complex and involve different parts of the body, including digits, the bilateral procedure rule would not apply. In such cases, independent procedures would be billed at one hundred percent (100%) of their listed value with modifier 51.

100% (full value) for the first or major procedure 50% for the second and multiple procedure(s) sixth and subsequent procedures – by report.

*Multiple Procedure Guidelines do not apply to codes specifically identified as "Add-on/Additional Procedures, Global indicator ZZZ."

The major or primary procedure is defined as the procedure with the highest value and is the code that determines the follow-up days when a surgery has multiple procedures. The second procedure is the procedure with the next highest value, the third the next highest value, and so on. If, however, the procedures are independently complex such as digits, tendons, nerves, or artery repair, the multiple procedure rule would not apply. In such cases, independent procedures would be billed at one hundred percent (100%) of their listed value.

When performing multiple procedures with different global period values during the same operative session, the global period value for the session is the largest global period value.

57 Decision for Surgery: An Evaluation and Management (E/M) service that resulted in the initial decision to perform the surgery may be identified by adding modifier 57 to the appropriate level of E/M service.

59 Distinct Procedural Service: Under certain circumstances, it may be necessary to indicate that a procedure or service was distinct or independent from other non-E/M services performed on the same day. Modifier 59 is used to identify procedures/services, other than E/M services, that are not normally reported together, but are appropriate under the circumstances. Documentation must support a different session, different procedure or surgery, different site or organ system, separate incision/excision, separate lesion, or separate injury (or area of injury in extensive injuries) not ordinarily encountered or performed on the same day by the same individual. However, when another already established modifier is appropriate it should be used rather than modifier 59. Only if no more descriptive modifier is available, and the use of modifier 59 best explains the circumstances, should modifier 59 be used.

Note: Modifier 59 should not be appended to an E/M service. To report a separate and distinct E/M service with a non-E/M service performed on the same date, see modifier 25.

Note: If an epidural or peripheral nerve block injection (62320-62327 or 64400-64530) for postoperative pain management is reported separately on the same date of service as an anesthesia 0XXXX code, modifier 59 shall be appended to the epidural or peripheral nerve block injection code (62320-62327 or 64400-64530) to indicate that it was administered for postoperative pain management. An epidural or peripheral nerve block injection

62 Two (2) Surgeons: By prior agreement, the total value of services performed by two (2) surgeons working together as primary surgeons may be apportioned in relation to the responsibility and work done, provided the patient is made aware of the fee distribution according to medical ethics. If no apportionment is listed, the fee should be split evenly between the co-surgeons. The total value may be increased by twenty-five percent (25%) in lieu of the usual assistant's charge. Under these circumstances, the services of each surgeon should be identified by adding this modifier 62 to the joint procedure number(s) and valued as agreed upon. (Usual charges for surgical assistance may be warranted if still another physician is required as part of the surgical team.) The value of the procedure should be one hundred and twenty-five percent (125%) of the customary value listed. Payment of one hundred and twenty-five percent (125%) of the maximum allowable would be divided between the participating surgeons.

Two (2) Surgeons – When two (2) surgeons work together as primary surgeons performing distinct part(s) of a procedure, each surgeon should report his/her distinct operative work by adding modifier 62 to the procedure code and any associated add-on codes(s) for that procedure as long as both surgeons continue to work together as primary surgeons. Each surgeon should report the co-surgery once using the same procedure code. If additional procedure(s) (including add-on procedure(s)) are performed during the same surgical session, separate code(s) may be reported with modifier 62 added.

Note: If a co-surgeon acts as an assistant in the performance of additional procedure(s), other than those reported with modifier 62, during the same surgical session, those services may be reported using separate procedure code(s) with modifier 80, 81, or 82 added, as appropriate.

82 Assistant Surgeon (when qualified resident surgeon not available): These services are valued at sixteen percent (16%) of the listed value of the surgical procedure(s).

AS Use the modifier AS for assistant at surgery services when services are provided by a Physician Assistant (PA), Nurse Practitioner (NP), or Clinical Nurse Specialist (CNS). These services are valued at fourteen percent (14%) of the listed value of the surgical procedure(s). No further adjustment for mid-level medical providers as mentioned in section C of the Introduction shall be applied.

Note: A Medical Doctor or Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine should not submit the AS modifier. This modifier is only valid for use by a PA, NP, and CNS when billing under their own provider number.

RADIOLOGY GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to CMS and CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to unit values for these services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

A. GENERAL GUIDELINES

1. Values include usual contrast media, equipment, and materials. An additional charge may be warranted when special surgical trays and materials are provided by the healthcare provider.

2. Values include consultation and written reports to the referring healthcare provider.

3. X-ray findings and attending healthcare provider's written orders for x-rays must be included with the statement for x-ray services. Bills unsupported by findings will not be paid.

4. X-rays should be taken, reported, and be properly marked for identification and orientation in accordance with the accepted standard of radiologic practice in the State of Arizona.

B. MODIFIERS

Modifiers identify circumstances that alter or enhance the description of the service. For radiology codes, two modifiers affect the assigned unit value and are listed in The Essential RBRVS. However, other modifiers may be required for correct reporting of service. See CMS and the 2025 CPT® publication for additional information on modifiers. Listed radiology modifiers affect the unit values as follows:

1. Total: When no modifier is listed, the unit value represents the global value of the procedure. The five-digit code is used to represent a global service inclusive of the professional and technical value of providing that service. The following sections provide additional definitions for each component.

2. Professional: Modifier 26 is used to designate professional services. The professional component includes examination of the patient, when indicated, performance and/or supervision of the procedure, interpretation and written report of the examination, and consultation with referring healthcare providers.

3. Technical: Modifier TC is used to designate the technical value of providing the service. The technical component includes personnel, materials, space, equipment, and other allocated facility overhead normally included in providing the service.

C. REFERENCE TO RELATIVE VALUES

Two patterns of billing currently prevail in radiology. The first pattern occurs when a total charge for the radiology service, including both the professional component ("PC") and technical component ("TC"), is billed by appropriately licensed healthcare providers working in offices, clinics, and independent diagnostic testing facilities. The second pattern occurs when services are performed in settings such as a hospital or ambulatory surgery center radiology department. The radiologist submits a separate statement to the payer for services that compose the professional component. The hospital or ambulatory surgery center charges for use of the department facilities and the services of its employees as the technical component.

The Radiology Relative Values scales have been devised for use in radiology and are not coordinated with scales for services in other branches of medicine such as surgery, medicine, or pathology. The two scales are compatible only within themselves. Some procedures are noted as a "BR" value or "By Report". This usage is intended to indicate that circumstances involving a given patient procedure may require much more than the average amount of time and effort to perform and thus a value would be unique and could not be anticipated or established. When such added involvement is claimed, a written explanation will usually be required as an addendum to the bill.

The PC values do not include TC charges made by the hospital in which the procedure was accomplished. Such charges by the hospital or ambulatory surgery center cover the services of technologists and other staff, the films, contrast media, radioactive agents, chemical and other materials, the use of the space and facilities of the x-ray department plus any other hospital or ambulatory surgery center costs. Most hospitals or ambulatory surgery centers have derived their own schedule of charges for these items. Establishment of hospital or ambulatory surgery center charges is not the subject of the Fee Schedule.

The separation of billing in no way implies a division of responsibility, but only a division of the charge. The radiologist is a physician performing a needed medical service for a patient and must retain full responsibility for his or her own activity and full responsibility for the potential supervision of technologists, the selection and maintenance of equipment, the control of radiation hazards, and the general administration of the radiology department.

D. REVIEW OF DIAGNOSTIC STUDIES

No separate charge is warranted for prior studies reviewed in conjunction with a visit, consultation, record review, or other evaluation by a healthcare provider; neither the professional component value modifier 26 nor the radiological consultation CPT® code 76140 is reimbursable. The review of diagnostic tests is included in the evaluation and management codes.

PATHOLOGY AND LABORATORY GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to unit values for these services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® publication or HCPCS code and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier, or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

A healthcare provider seeking reimbursement for presumptive, or "point of care" drug testing shall submit to the payer written documentation establishing:

1. That the testing is medically necessary and reasonably required;

2. The type of drug testing utilized; and

3. The healthcare provider's interpretation of the "point of care" testing.

For purposes of this section, presumptive or "point of care" testing is testing that is performed at or near the site of patient care (i.e., the healthcare provider's office).

CPT® codes 80305-80307 are used for reporting presumptive drug class screening. Each code represents all drugs and drug classes performed by the respective methodology per date of service.

Healthcare providers performing validity testing on urine specimens utilized for drug testing shall not separately bill the validity testing. For example, if a laboratory performs a urinary pH, specific gravity, creatinine, nitrates, oxidants, or other tests to confirm that a urine specimen is not adulterated, this testing is not separately billed.

Definitive drug testing may be reported with HCPCS codes G0480 - G0483. These codes differ based on the number of drug classes including metabolites tested. Only one (1) code from this group of codes may be reported per date of service. Requests for quantitative or definitive testing require documentation that qualifies necessity.

G0481 – Definitive drug testing 8 – 14 drug class(es) including metabolite(s) if performed.

G0482 – Definitive drug testing 15 – 21 drug class(es) including metabolites(s) if performed.

G0483 – Definitive drug testing of 22 or more drug class(es), including metabolite(s) if performed.

MEDICINE GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to unit values for these services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® publication or HCPCS codes and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier, or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

A. MATERIALS SUPPLIED BY A HEALTHCARE PROVIDER: A healthcare provider may charge for materials and supplies as described in the HCPCS Section of the Physician's Fee Schedule.

B. COMPLIANCE WITH THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT: CPT® Code 99199 can be used to bill for the services of an interpreter when they are used to comply with the provisions of "The Americans With Disabilities Act", i.e., interpreters for the hearing impaired.

C. ADD-ON CODES: Some of the listed procedures are commonly carried out in addition to the primary procedure performed. All add-on codes found in the CPT® codebook are exempt from the multiple procedure concept. They are exempt from the use of modifier 51.

D. SEPARATE PROCEDURES: Some of the procedures or services listed in the CPT® codebook that are commonly carried out as an integral component of a total service or procedure have been identified by the inclusion of the term "separate procedure". The codes designated as a "separate procedure" should not be reported in addition to the code for the total procedure or service of which it is considered an integral component.

When a procedure or service is carried out independently or considered to be unrelated or distinct from other procedures/services provided at that time, it may be reported by itself, or in addition to other procedures/services by appending modifier 59 to the specific "separate procedure" code to indicate that the procedure is not considered to be a component of another procedure, but is a distinct, independent procedure.

E. BUNDLED CODES: Indicates that the service is always bundled in a payment for another service. If these services are covered, payment for them is subsumed by the payment for the services to which they are incident (e.g., a telephone call from a hospital nurse regarding the care of a patient).

F. MODERATE SEDATION: Codes specific to the provider performing the services (e.g., CPT® codes 99151, 99152, and 99153) are used when the physician performing the procedure provides the sedation whereas CPT® codes 99155, 99156, and 99157 are used when sedation is provided by a healthcare provider other than the physician performing the procedure.

PHYSICAL MEDICINE AND REHABILITATION GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to physical medicine and rehabilitation services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

General requirements on reporting services are found in the Introduction of the Fee Schedule. In addition to the definitions and commonalities preceding the coded medical procedures, several other requirements unique to this Section (Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation) are defined or identified as follows:

A. Payers shall review the documentation from healthcare providers before denying any service(s) described by billing codes in this section due to NCCI edits. Except when specified by a separate contract or network that governs fees pursuant to A.R.S. § 23-908(K)(1), documentation by healthcare providers supporting medically reasonable services that are performed separately to the same area may prevail and supersede NCCI edits for billing codes in this section. Payer denials for services described by CPT codes in this section shall not be based solely on NCCI edits when documentation accompanies the healthcare provider's invoice.

B. Except when specified by a separate contract or network that governs fees pursuant to A.R.S. § 23-908(K)(1), payers shall not reduce the Fee Schedule reimbursement for services provided by a physical therapist assistant (PTA) or occupational therapy assistant (OTA). Modifiers CQ and CO are not required when submitting an invoice for services provided by PTAs and OTAs.

C. Physical therapy (PT) evaluation codes (97161-97163) and occupational therapy (OT) evaluation codes (97165-97167) are billed at the initial visit and a re-evaluation code (97164 for PT, 97168 for OT) may be billed once every two (2) calendar weeks following an initial evaluation. Additional billing for PT and OT evaluation services may be allowed when specific additional services are warranted. Approval of the payer must be obtained prior to performing additional services. Criteria to select the appropriate evaluation and re-evaluation codes are outlined in the current CPT® publication.

   Note: These limitations do not apply to referring healthcare providers or to providers who treat patients once per month.

D. When multiple modalities (untimed 97012-97028 and/or time-based 97032-97036) are performed, the first modality (or the first unit of a time-based modality) is reported as listed. The second modality (or the second unit of a time-based modality) is identified by adding modifier -51 to the code number. The second and each subsequent modality (or unit(s) of a time-based modality) should be valued at fifty percent (50%) of its listed value.

   First modality reported or first unit of a time-based modality -
   100% Second, third, and additional approved modality or unit(s) - 50%

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

Any more than three (3) modalities or more than three (3) units of a time-based modality or any combination of time-based and untimed modalities equaling three (3) billed units per body part being treated must have prior approval from the payer. The time a healthcare provider bills for a time-based modality (97032-97036) does not count towards the total timed therapeutic procedure maximum of four (4) units or 67 minutes. However, the time spent performing time-based modalities counts towards the total treatment time and should be used to determine the number of units a provider bills (see Section E and Example 5). The amount of time spent performing each specific procedure or modality provided to the patient is not required to be documented in the treatment notes (see Section G).

Note: 97010 is a bundled service and not separately reportable.

Example:

During a visit, a patient receives the following services:
45 minutes therapeutic exercise 97110
15 minutes mechanical traction 97012
15 minutes unattended electrical stimulation 97014
10 minutes ultrasound 97035
15 minutes moist heat 97010 while receiving the electric stimulation

Under the multiple modality rule, the healthcare provider would bill:

97110	3 units at 100% of value (therapeutic procedure, timed code)
97012	1 unit at 100% of value (modality, untimed code)
97014	1 unit at 50% of value (modality, untimed code)
97035	1 unit at 50% of value (modality, untimed code)

97010 is bundled into the above services and not paid as a separate service. The total time spent performing time-based codes (97110 and 97035) is 55 minutes and justifies billing four (4) units of time-based services (see Section E).

E. CPT® codes describing therapeutic procedures (97110-97150 and 97530-97546) are not subject to the multiple modality rule and shall be paid at 100% of their listed value. When performing therapeutic procedure(s), (excluding work hardening/conditioning, 97545-97546, and physical test or measures for functional capacity evaluation, 97750), a maximum of four (4) units or 67 minutes is allowed each day. Approval must be obtained from the payer prior to performing therapeutic procedures in excess of this maximum (e.g., when multiple body parts are treated in a single visit). Reimbursement for therapeutic procedures in excess of the maximum, without prior approval, shall not affect reimbursement for therapeutic procedures performed within the allowed maximum.

F. The values for the codes in this section include the time and work of the healthcare provider, the equipment required to provide the service, and the cost of the healthcare provider's liability insurance. Medications and disposable electrodes used in these procedures should be considered supplies and managed in accordance with the HCPCS Section of this Fee Schedule.

G. Time-Based Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation CPT® codes are billed according to guidance from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), as published in the Medicare Claims Processing Manual, Chapter 5, Section 20.2, C. Counting Minutes for Timed Codes in 15 Minute Units.

When only one service is provided in a day, healthcare providers should not bill for services provided for less than eight (8) minutes. For any single 15-minute timed CPT® code in the same day, healthcare providers bill a single 15-minute unit for treatment of greater than or equal to eight (8) minutes through and including 22 minutes. If the duration of a single procedure in a day is greater than or equal to 23 minutes through and including 37 minutes, two (2) units should be billed. Please refer to the table below, which outlines how to bill for up to four (4) units or 67 minutes, without payer approval.

Units	Number of Minutes
0	< 8 minutes
1	≥ 8 minutes and ≤ 22 minutes
2	≥ 23 minutes and ≤ 37 minutes
3	≥ 38 minutes and ≤ 52 minutes
4	≥ 53 minutes and ≤ 67 minutes

If additional therapeutic procedures and/or time-based modalities are approved by the payer, the pattern for determining time/units is continued.

When more than one service represented by 15-minute timed codes is performed in a single day, the total number of minutes of service determines the number of timed units billed (as noted in the chart above). For any service represented by a 15-minute timed code that is performed for seven (7) minutes or less on the same day as another service also represented by a 15-minute timed code performed for seven (7) minutes or less, and the total time of these two services is eight (8) minutes or greater, the provider may bill one (1) unit of service that was performed for the most minutes. The same logic is applied if three (3) or more different services are performed on the same day for seven (7) minutes or less.

The expectation, based on the work values assigned to these codes, is that a healthcare provider's direct patient contact time for each unit will average 15 minutes in length. If more than one 15-minute timed CPT® code is billed during a single calendar day, the total number of units billed is constrained by the total treatment time for that day.

When documenting to support the billing of timed CPT® codes, the healthcare provider should document the total number of timed minutes and the total time of the treatment provided that day. Total treatment time includes the minutes for timed code treatment and untimed code treatment. Total treatment time does not include time for services that are not billable (e.g., rest periods). The amount of time for each specific intervention/modality provided to the patient is not required to be documented in the treatment note.

It is important that the total number of timed treatment minutes support the billing of units on the invoice and that the total treatment time also reflects the services billed as untimed codes. The billing and the total timed code treatment minutes documented must be consistent. Additional guidance for documentation of timed codes is found in the CMS Benefit Policy Manual, Chapter 15, 220.3, E. Treatment Note.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

Examples of how to count the appropriate number of minutes for the total therapy minutes provided: Example 1

During a visit, the patient receives the following services:
45 minutes therapeutic exercise 97110
5 minutes manual therapy 97140
7 minutes therapeutic activities
97530 Total Timed Codes: 57
minutes

The healthcare provider would bill: 4
units 97110 3 units

Since the total time spent providing manual therapy and therapeutic exercises is greater than eight (8) minutes, one (1) unit is billed for the service which was performed for more time.

Example 2

During a visit, the patient receives the following services:
24 minutes neuromuscular reeducation 97112
23 minutes therapeutic exercise
97110 Total Timed Codes: 47
minutes

The healthcare provider would bill: 3
units 97112 2 units
97110 1 unit

Each service is provided for more than 15 minutes, so at least one (1) unit is appropriate for each. Two (2) units are billed for Neuromuscular reeducation since that service was performed for more time.

Example 3

During a visit, the patient receives the following services:
20 minutes therapeutic activities 97530
20 minutes therapeutic exercise
97110 Total Timed Codes: 40
minutes

The healthcare provider would bill: 3
units 97530 2 units 97110 1
unit OR
97530 1 unit

Each service was provided for 20 minutes, which would allow for one unit for each service. However, the total time of 40 minutes allows for three (3) units to be billed. Since the time for each service is the same, the healthcare provider can choose which code to bill for two (2) units and which code to bill for one (1) unit.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

Example 4

During a visit, the patient receives the following services:
33 minutes therapeutic exercise 97110
7 minutes manual therapy
97140 Total Timed Codes: 40
minutes

The healthcare provider would bill: 3
units 97110 2 units
97140 1 unit

The first 30 minutes of therapeutic exercise is two (2) units. The remaining three (3) minutes is added to the seven (7) minutes of manual therapy and then is billed for one unit of manual therapy. The time for manual therapy is greater than the remaining time from the therapeutic exercise.

Example 5

During a visit, the patient receives the following services:
18 minutes therapeutic exercise 97110
13 minutes manual therapy 97140
10 minutes gait training 97116
8 minutes ultrasound 97035
Total Timed Codes: 49 minutes

The healthcare provider would bill: 3 units
97110 1 unit
97140 1 unit
97116 1 unit

Bill the procedures that the most time was spent performing. One (1) unit each of 97110, 97140, and 97116. Although the ultrasound should be documented, it cannot be billed, as the healthcare provider is constrained by the total timed codes minutes. Since the total for the timed codes is 49 minutes, only three (3) units would be billed.

H. A work hardening program is limited to 6 1/2 hours per day, not to exceed a six (6) week period of time.

I. The payer has the right to require documentation to establish that a modality or therapeutic procedure was performed. Inasmuch as these Guidelines allow for re-evaluations to be performed every two (2) weeks, it is at that time the healthcare provider should address and document the status of the treatment protocol.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

It is not appropriate for the payer on a per billing basis to require a healthcare provider to provide unnecessarily detailed documentation to justify payment. A healthcare provider is required to comply with A.R.S. § 23-1062.01 when submitting a bill. For example, the purpose of modalities like hot and cold packs, paraffin baths, and whirlpools is straightforward. Modalities are utilized as a sub-element of the overall treatment protocol to prepare the injured worker for therapy or to minimize the impact of the therapy on the injured worker. Other than a statement that certain modalities were performed, any additional documentation such as the purpose of the application of modalities, resulting flexibility or comfort is unnecessary. Additionally, listing the amount of weight an individual is lifting, repetitions, and sets is, again, unnecessary. During a re-evaluation visit, the healthcare provider should provide documentation regarding changes in strength, stamina, and flexibility.

Documentation of each treatment shall include the following elements:

- Date of treatment.
- Identification of each specific intervention/modality provided and billed, both timed and untimed services in a manner that it can be compared with the billing record to verify correct coding.
- Total timed code treatment minutes and total treatment time in minutes (the amount of time for each specific intervention/modality provided is not required).
- Signatures (written or electronic) and professional designation of the qualified healthcare provider who furnished or supervised the services provided.

EVALUATION AND MANAGEMENT GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction of the Fee Schedule.

The evaluation and management guidelines incorporated by reference may be found in the CPT® published by the AMA and is reprinted, in part, below with permission. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® publication or HCPCS code and a code, guideline, identifier or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

Documentation and review of records, when required, is inclusive to the performance of the appropriate E/M service. A healthcare provider shall only be reimbursed for time that is not accounted for in the E/M service code by billing prolonged services codes 99415, 99416, 99417, or 99418. Proper documentation must justify the use of these codes and accompany the invoice.

Impairment Examinations

Impairment examinations shall be billed using CPT® 99455, work related or medical disability examination by the treating physician, or CPT® 99456, work related or medical disability examination by other than the treating physician. Physicians may bill one unit of these codes for the initial hour and an additional unit for each 30-minute increment after the initial hour. Each 30-minute increment commences the minute following the end of the previous time interval. The physician shall include documentation that demonstrates the complexity of the case and the time spent on the service to justify billing each additional unit. Reimbursement for CPT® codes 99455 and 99456 shall be made at one hundred percent (100%) of the listed reimbursement value for the initial unit and fifty percent (50%) of the listed reimbursement value for each additional unit.

Example:
A physician spends 72 minutes performing a work related disability examination on a patient they previously treated.

The physician would bill two units of 99455 and be reimbursed at 1.5 times the listed reimbursement value for CPT® 99455.

Remote Monitoring

One HCPCS code is included in this section of the 2026/2027 Fee Schedule for remote monitoring:

G2010 – Remote evaluation of recorded video and/or images submitted by an established patient (e.g., store and forward), including interpretation with follow-up with the patient within 24 business hours, not originating from a related E/M service provided within the previous 7 days nor leading to an E/M service or procedure within the next 24 hours or soonest available appointment.

A. CLASSIFICATION OF EVALUATION AND MANAGEMENT (E/M) SERVICES.

The E/M section is divided into broad categories such as office visits, hospital inpatient or observation care visits, and consultations. Most of the categories are further divided into two or more subcategories of E/M services. For example, there are two subcategories of office visits (new patient and established patient) and there are two subcategories of hospital inpatient and observation care visits (initial and subsequent). The subcategories of E/M services are further classified into levels of E/M services that are identified by specific codes.

The basic format of the levels of E/M services based on medical decision making (MDM) or time is the same. First, a unique code number is listed. Second, the place and/or type of service is specified, (e.g., office or other outpatient visit). Third, the content of the service is defined. Fourth, time is specified (A detailed discussion of time is provided in the Guidelines for Selecting Level of Service Based on Time).

The place of service and service type are defined by the location where the face-to-face encounter with the patient and/or family/caregiver occurs. For example, service provided to a nursing facility resident brought to the office is reported with an office or other outpatient code.

New and Established Patients

Solely for the purposes of distinguishing between new and established patients, professional services are those face-to-face services rendered by physicians and other qualified healthcare providers who may report evaluation and management services. A new patient is one who has not received any professional services from the physician or other qualified healthcare provider or another physician or other qualified healthcare provider of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice, within the past three years.

An established patient is one who has received professional services from the physician or other qualified healthcare provider or another physician or other qualified healthcare provider of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice, within the past three years. In the instance where a physician or other qualified healthcare provider is on call for or covering for another physician or other qualified healthcare provider, the patient's encounter will be classified as it would have been by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider who is not available. When advanced practice nurses and physician assistants are working with physicians, they are considered as working in the exact same specialty and subspecialty as the physician.

No distinction is made between new and established patients in the emergency department. E/M services in the emergency department category may be reported for any new or established patient who presents for treatment in the emergency department.

Initial and Subsequent Services

Some categories apply to both new and established patients (e.g., hospital inpatient or observation care). These categories differentiate services by whether the service is the initial service or a subsequent service. For the purpose of distinguishing between initial or subsequent visits, professional services are those face-to-face services rendered by physicians and other qualified healthcare providers who may report evaluation and management services. An initial service is when the patient has not received any professional services from the physician or other qualified healthcare provider or another physician or other qualified healthcare provider of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice, during the inpatient, observation, or nursing facility admission and stay.

A subsequent service is when the patient has received professional service(s) from the physician or other qualified healthcare provider or another physician or other qualified healthcare provider of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice, during the admission and stay.

In the instance when a physician or other qualified healthcare provider is on call for or covering for another physician or other qualified healthcare provider, the patient's encounter will be classified as it would have been by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider who is not available. When advanced practice nurses and physician assistants are working with physicians, they are considered as working in the exact same specialty and subspecialty as the physician.

For reporting hospital inpatient or observation care services, a stay that includes a transition from observation to inpatient is a single stay. For reporting nursing facility services, a stay that includes transition(s) between skilled nursing facility and nursing facility level of care is the same stay.

Split or Shared Visits

Physician(s) and other qualified healthcare provider(s) (QHP[s]) may act as a team in providing care for the patient, working together during a single E/M service. The split or shared visits guidelines are applied to determine which professional may report the service. If the physician or other QHP performs a substantive portion of the encounter, the physician or other QHP may report the service. If code selection is based on total time on the date of the encounter, the service is reported by the professional who spent the majority of the face-to-face or non-face-to-face time performing the service. For the purpose of reporting E/M services within the context of team-based care, performance of a substantive part of the MDM requires that the physician'(s) or other QHP(s) made or approved the management plan for the number and complexity of problems addressed at the encounter and takes responsibility for that plan with its inherent risk of complications and/or morbidity or mortality of patient management. By doing so, a physician or other QHP has performed two of the three elements used in the selection of the code level based on MDM. If the amount and/or complexity of data to be reviewed and analyzed is used by the physician or other QHP to determine the reported code level, assessing an independent historian's narrative and the ordering or review of tests or documents do not have to be personally performed by the physician or other QHP, because the relevant items would be considered in formulating the management plan. Independent interpretation of tests and discussion of management plan or test interpretation must be personally performed by the physician or other QHP if these are used to determine the reported code level by the physician or other QHP.

Multiple Evaluation and Management Services on the Same Date

The following guidelines apply to services that a patient may receive for hospital inpatient care, observation care, or nursing facility care. For instructions regarding transitions to these settings from the office or outpatient, home or residence, or emergency department setting, see guidelines for Hospital Inpatient and Observation Care Services or Nursing Facility Services.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

A patient may receive E/M services in more than one setting on a calendar date. A patient may also have more than one visit in the same setting on a calendar date. The guidelines for multiple E/M services on the same date address circumstances in which the patient has received multiple visits or services from the same physician or other QHP or another physician or QHP of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice.

Per day: The hospital inpatient and observation care services and the nursing facility services are "per day" services. When multiple visits occur over the course of a single calendar date in the same setting, a single service is reported. When using MDM for code level selection, use the aggregated MDM over the course of the calendar date. When using time for code level selection, sum the time over the course of the day using the guidelines for reporting time.

Multiple encounters in different settings or facilities: A patient may be seen and treated in different facilities (e.g., a hospital-to-hospital transfer). When more than one primary E/M service is reported and time is used to select the code level for either service, only the time spent providing that individual service may be allocated to the code level selected for reporting that service. No time may be counted twice when reporting more than one E/M service. Prolonged services are also based on the same allocation and their relationship to the primary service. The designation of the facility may be defined by licensure or regulation. Transfer from a hospital bed to a nursing facility bed in a hospital with nursing facility beds is considered as two services in two facilities because there is a discharge from one type of designation to another. An intra-facility transfer for a different level of care (e.g., from a routine unit to a critical care unit) does not constitute a new stay, nor does it constitute a transfer to a different facility.

Emergency department (ED) and services in other settings (same or different facilities): Time spent in an ED by a physician or other QHP who provides subsequent E/M services may be included in calculating total time on the date of the encounter when ED services are not reported and another E/M service is reported (e.g., hospital inpatient and observation care services).

Discharge services and services in other facilities: Each service may be reported separately as long as any time spent on the discharge service is not counted towards the total time of a subsequent service in which code level selection for the subsequent service is based on time. This includes any hospital inpatient or observation care services (including admission and discharge services) time (99234, 99235, 99236) because these services may be selected based on MDM or time. When these services are reported with another E/M service on the same calendar date, time related to the hospital inpatient or observation care service (including admission and discharge services) may not be used for code selection of the subsequent service.

Discharge Services and services in the same facility: If the patient is discharged and readmitted to the same facility on the same calendar date, report a subsequent care service instead of a discharge or initial service. For the purpose of E/M reporting, this is a single stay.

Discharge services and services in a different facility: If the patient is admitted to another facility, for the purpose of E/M reporting, this is considered a different stay. Discharge and initial services may be reported as long as time spent on the discharge service is not counted towards the total time of the subsequent service reported when code level selection is based on time.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

Critical care services: Reporting guidelines for intensive and critical care services that are performed on the same calendar date as another E/M service are described in the service specific section guidelines.

Transitions between office or other outpatient, home or residence, or emergency department and hospital inpatient or observation or nursing facility: See the guidelines for Hospital Inpatient and Observation Care Services or Nursing Facility Services. If the patient is seen in two settings and only one service is reported, the total time on the date of the encounter of the aggregated MDM is used for determining the level of the single reported service. If prolonged services are reported, use the prolonged services code that is appropriate for the primary service reported, regardless of where the patient was located when the prolonged services time threshold was met. The choice of the primary service is at the discretion of the reporting physician or other QHP.

Services Reported Separately

Any specifically identifiable procedure or service (i.e., identified with a specific CPT code) performed on the date of E/M services may be reported separately.

The ordering and actual performance and/or interpretation of diagnostic tests/studies during a patient encounter are not included in determining the levels of E/M services when the professional interpretation of those tests/studies is reported separately by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider reporting the E/M service. Tests that do not require separate interpretation (e.g., tests that are results only) and are analyzed as part of MDM do not count as an independent interpretation, but may be counted as ordered or reviewed for selecting an MDM level. The performance of diagnostic tests/studies for which specific CPT codes are available may be reported separately, in addition to the appropriate E/M code. The interpretation of the results of diagnostic tests/studies (i.e., professional component) with preparation of a separate distinctly identifiable signed written report may also be reported separately, using the appropriate CPT code and, if required, with modifier 26 appended. The physician or other qualified healthcare provider may need to indicate that on the day a procedure or service identified by a CPT code was performed, the patient's condition required a significant separately identifiable E/M service. The E/M service may be caused or prompted by the symptoms or condition for which the procedure and/or service was provided. This circumstance may be reported by adding modifier 25 to the appropriate level of E/M service. As such, different diagnoses are not required for reporting of the procedure and the E/M services on the same date.

History and/or Examination

E/M codes that have levels of services include a medically appropriate history and/or physical examination, when performed. The nature and extent of the history and/or physical examination are determined by the treating physician or other qualified healthcare provider reporting the service. The care team may collect information, and the patient or caregiver may supply information directly (e.g., by electronic health record [EHR] portal or questionnaire) that is reviewed by the reporting physician or other qualified healthcare provider. The extent of history and physical examination is not an element in the selection of the level of these E/M service codes.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

B. LEVELS OF E/M SERVICES.

Select the appropriate level of E/M services based on the following:

1. The level of the MDM as defined for each service, or
2. The total time for E/M services performed on the date of the encounter.

Within each category or subcategory of E/M service based on MDM or time, there are three to five levels of E/M services available for reporting purposes. Levels of E/M services are NOT interchangeable among the different categories or subcategories of service. For example, the first level of E/M services in the subcategory of office visit, new patient, does not have the same definition as the first level of E/M services in the subcategory of office visit, established patient. Each level of E/M services may be used by all physicians or other qualified healthcare providers.

Guidelines for Selecting Level of Service Based on Medical Decision Making

Four types of MDM are recognized: straightforward, low, moderate, and high. The concept of the level of MDM does not apply to CPT codes 99211 and 99281.

MDM includes establishing diagnoses, assessing the status of a condition, and/or selecting a management option. MDM is defined by three elements. The elements are:

- The number and complexity of problem(s) that are addressed during the encounter.

- The amount and/or complexity of data to be reviewed and analyzed. These data include medical records, tests, and/or other information that must be obtained, ordered, reviewed, and analyzed for the encounter. This includes information obtained from multiple sources or interprofessional communications that are not reported separately and interpretation of tests that are not reported separately. Ordering a test is included in the category of test result(s) and the review of the test result is part of the encounter and not a subsequent encounter. Ordering a test may include those considered but not selected after shared decision making. For example, a patient may request diagnostic imaging that is not necessary for their condition and discussion of the lack of benefit may be required. Alternatively, a test may normally be performed, but due to the risk for a specific patient it is not ordered. These considerations must be documented. Data are divided into three categories:
  1. Tests, documents, orders, or independent historian(s). Each unique test, order, or document is counted to meet a threshold number.
  2. Independent interpretation of tests (not separately reported).
  3. Discussion of management or test interpretation with an external physician or other qualified healthcare provider or appropriate source (not separately reported).

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

- The risk of complications and/or morbidity or mortality of patient management. This includes decisions made at the encounter, associated with diagnostic procedure(s), and treatment(s). This includes the possible management options selected and those considered but not selected after shared decision making with the patient and/or family. For example, a decision about hospitalization includes considerations of alternative levels of care. Examples may include a psychiatric patient with a sufficient degree of support in the outpatient setting or the decision to not hospitalize a patient with advanced dementia with an acute condition that would generally warrant inpatient care, but for whom the goal is palliative treatment.

Shared decision making involves eliciting patient and/or family preferences, patient and/or family education, and explaining risks and benefits of management options.

MDM may be impacted by role and management responsibility.

When the physician or other qualified healthcare provider is reporting a separate CPT® code that includes interpretation and/or report, the interpretation and/or report is not counted toward the MDM when selecting a level of E/M services. When the physician or other qualified healthcare provider is reporting a separate service for discussion of management with a physician or another qualified healthcare provider, the discussion is not counted toward the MDM when selecting a level of outpatient E/M services.

The Levels of Medical Decision Making (MDM) table (Table 1) is a guide to assist in selecting the level of MDM for reporting an E/M services code. The table includes the four levels of MDM (i.e., straightforward, low, moderate, high) and the three elements of MDM (i.e., number and complexity of problems addressed at the encounter, amount and/or complexity of data reviewed and analyzed, and risk of complications and/or morbidity or mortality of patient management). To qualify for a particular level of MDM, two of the three elements for that level of MDM must be met or exceeded.

Examples in the table may be more or less applicable to specific settings of care. For example, the decision to hospitalize applies to the outpatient or nursing facility encounters, whereas the decision to escalate hospital level of care (e.g., transfer to ICU) applies to the hospitalized or observation care patient. See also the introductory guidelines of each code family section.

The elements listed in Table 1, Levels of Medical Decision Making, are defined in the guidelines for number and complexity of problems addressed at the encounter, amount and/or complexity of data to be reviewed and analyzed, and risk of complications and/or morbidity or mortality of patient management.

Number and Complexity of Problems Addressed at the Encounter

One element used in selecting the level of office or other outpatient services is the number and complexity of the problems that are addressed at an encounter. Multiple new or established conditions may be addressed at the same time and may affect MDM. Symptoms may cluster around a specific diagnosis and each symptom is not necessarily a unique condition. Comorbidities/underlying diseases, in and of themselves, are not considered in selecting a level of E/M services unless they are addressed, and their presence increases the amount and/or complexity of data to be reviewed and analyzed or the risk of complications and/or morbidity or mortality of patient management. The final diagnosis for a condition does not, in and of itself, determine the complexity or risk, as extensive evaluation may be required to reach the conclusion that the signs or symptoms do not represent a highly morbid condition. Therefore, presenting symptoms that are unlikely to represent a highly morbid condition may "drive" MDM even when the ultimate diagnosis is not highly morbid. The evaluation and/or treatment should be consistent with the likely nature of the condition. Multiple problems of a lower severity may, in the aggregate, create higher risk due to interaction. The term "risk" as used in these definitions relates to risk from the condition. While condition risk and management risk may often correlate, the risk from the condition is distinct from the risk of management.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

Definitions for the elements of MDM (see Table 1, Levels of Medical Decision Making) are:

Problem: A problem is a disease, condition, illness, injury, symptom, sign, finding, complaint, or other matter addressed at the encounter, with or without a diagnosis being established at the time of the encounter.

Problem addressed: A problem is addressed or managed when it is evaluated or treated at the encounter by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider reporting the service. This includes consideration of further testing or treatment that may not be elected by virtue of risk/benefit analysis or patient/parent/guardian/surrogate choice. Notation in the patient's medical record that another professional is managing the problem without additional assessment or care coordination documented does not qualify as being addressed or managed by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider reporting the service. Referral without evaluation (by history, examination, or diagnostic study[ies]) or consideration of treatment does not qualify as being addressed or managed by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider reporting the service. For hospital inpatient and observation care services the problem addressed is the problem status on the date of the encounter, which may be significantly different than on admission. It is the problem being managed or co-managed by the reporting physician or other qualified healthcare provider and may not be the cause of admission or continued stay.

Minimal problem: A problem that may not require the presence of the physician or other qualified healthcare provider, but the service is provided under the physician's or other qualified healthcare provider's supervision (see CPT codes 99211, 99281).

Self-limiting or minor problem: A problem that runs a definite and prescribed course, is transient in nature, and is not likely to permanently alter health status.

Stable, chronic illness: A problem with an expected duration of at least one year or until the death of the patient. For the purpose of defining chronicity, conditions are treated as chronic whether or not stage or severity changes (e.g., uncontrolled diabetes and controlled diabetes are a single chronic condition). "Stable" for the purposes of categorizing MDM is defined by the specific treatment goals for an individual patient. A patient who is not at his or her treatment goal is not stable, even if the condition has not changed and there is no short-term threat to life or function. For example, in a patient with persistently poorly controlled blood pressure for whom better control is a goal is not stable, even if the pressures are not changing and the patient is asymptomatic, the risk of morbidity without treatment is significant.

Acute, uncomplicated illness or injury: A recent or new short-term problem with low risk of morbidity for which treatment is considered. There is little to no risk of mortality with treatment, and full recovery without functional impairment is expected. A problem that is normally self-limited or minor but is not resolving consistent with a definite and prescribed course is an acute, uncomplicated illness.

Acute, uncomplicated illness or injury requiring hospital inpatient or observation level care: A recent or new short-term problem with low risk of morbidity for which treatment is required. There is little to no risk of mortality with treatment, and full recovery without functional impairment is expected. The treatment required is delivered in a hospital inpatient or observation one (l) level setting.

Stable, acute illness: A problem that is new or recent for which treatment has been initiated. The patient is improved and, while resolution may not be complete, is stable with respect to this condition.

Chronic illness with exacerbation, progression, or side effects of treatment: A chronic illness that is acutely worsening, poorly controlled, or progressing with an intent to control progression and requiring additional supportive care or requiring attention to treatment for side effects.

Undiagnosed new problem with uncertain prognosis: A problem in the differential diagnosis that represents a condition likely to result in a high risk of morbidity without treatment.

Acute illness with systemic symptoms: An illness that causes systemic symptoms and has a high risk of morbidity without treatment. For systemic general symptoms, such as fever, body aches, or fatigue in a minor illness that may be treated to alleviate symptoms, see the definitions for self-limited or minor problem or acute, uncomplicated illness or injury. Systemic symptoms may not be general but may be a single system.

Acute, complicated injury: An injury which requires treatment that includes evaluation of body systems that are not directly part of the injured organ, the injury is extensive, or the treatment options are multiple and/or associated with a risk of morbidity.

Chronic illness with severe exacerbation, progression, or side effects of treatment: The severe exacerbation or progression of a chronic illness or severe side effects of treatment that have significant risk of morbidity and may require escalation in level of care.

Acute or chronic illness or injury that poses a threat to life or bodily function: An acute illness with systemic symptoms, and acute complicated injury, or a chronic illness or injury with exacerbation and/or progression or side effects of treatment, that poses a threat to life or bodily function in the near term without treatment. Some symptoms may represent a condition that is significantly probable and poses a potential threat to life or bodily function. These may be included in this category when the evaluation and treatment are consistent with this degree of potential severity.

Amount and/or Complexity of Data to Be Reviewed and Analyzed

One element used in selecting the level of services is the amount and/or complexity of data to be reviewed or analyzed at an encounter.

Analyzed: the process of using the data as part of the MDM. The data element itself may not be subject to analysis (e.g., glucose), but it is instead included in the thought processes for diagnosis, evaluation, or treatment. Tests ordered are presumed to be analyzed when the results are reported. Therefore, when they are ordered during an encounter, they are counted in that encounter. Tests that are ordered outside of an encounter may be counted in the encounter in which they are analyzed. In the case of a recurring order, each new result may be counted in the encounter in which it is analyzed. For example, an encounter that includes an order for monthly prothrombin times would count for one prothrombin time ordered and reviewed. Additional future results, if analyzed in a subsequent encounter, may be counted as a single test in that subsequent encounter. Any service for which the professional component is separately reported by the physician or other qualified healthcare provider reporting the E/M services is not counted as a data element ordered, reviewed, analyzed, or independently interpreted for the purposes of determining the level of MDM.

Test: Tests are imaging, laboratory, psychometric, or physiologic data. A clinical laboratory panel (e.g., basic metabolic panel [80047]) is a single test. The differentiation between single or multiple tests is defined in accordance with the CPT® code set. For the purposes of data reviewed and analyzed, pulse oximetry is not a test.

Unique: A unique test is defined by the CPT® code set. When multiple results of the same unique test (e.g., serial blood glucose values) are compared during an E/M service, count it as one unique test. Tests that have overlapping elements are not unique, even if they are identified with distinct CPT® codes. For example, a CBC with differential would incorporate the set of hemoglobin, CBC, without differential, and platelet count. A unique source is defined as a physician or other qualified healthcare provider in a distinct group or different specialty or subspecialty, or a unique entity. Review of all the materials from any unique source counts as one element toward MDM.

Combination of Data Elements: A combination of different data elements, for example, a combination of notes reviewed, tests ordered, tests reviewed, or independent historian, allows these elements to be summed. It does not require each item type or category to be represented. A unique test ordered, plus a note reviewed and an independent historian would be a combination of three elements.

External: External records, communications, and/or test results are from an external physician, other qualified healthcare provider, facility, or health care organization.

External physician or other qualified healthcare provider: An external physician or other qualified healthcare provider who is not in the same group practice or is of a different specialty or subspecialty. This includes licensed professionals who are practicing independently. The individual may also be a facility or organizational provider such as from a hospital, nursing facility, or home health care agency.

Discussion: Discussion requires an interactive exchange. The exchange must be direct and not through intermediaries (e.g., clinical staff or trainees). Sending chart notes or written exchanges that are within progress notes does not qualify as an interactive exchange. The discussion does not need to be on the date of the encounter, but it is counted only once and only when it is used in the decision making of the encounter. It may be synchronous (i.e., does not need to be in person), but it must be initiated and completed within a short time period (e.g., within a day or two (2)).

Independent historian(s): An individual (e.g., parent, guardian, surrogate, spouse, witness) who provides a history in addition to a history provided by the patient who is unable to provide a complete or reliable history (e.g., due to developmental stage, dementia, or psychosis) or because a confirmatory history is judged to be necessary. In the case where there may be conflict or poor communication between multiple historians and more than one historian is needed, the independent historian requirement is met. It does not include translation services. The independent history does not need to be obtained in person but does need to be obtained directly from the historian providing the independent information.

Independent interpretations: The interpretation of a test for which there is a CPT® code and an interpretation or report is customary. This does not apply when the physician or other healthcare provider who reports the E/M service is reporting or has previously reported the test. A form of interpretation should be documented but need not conform to the usual standards of a complete report for the test. A test that is ordered and independently interpreted may count both as a test ordered and interpreted.

Appropriate source: For the purpose of the discussion of management data element (see Table 1, levels of Medical Decision Making), an appropriate source includes professionals who are not healthcare providers but may be involved in the management of the patient (e.g., lawyer, parole officer, case manager, teacher). It does not include discussion with family or informal caregivers. For the purpose of documents reviewed, documents from an appropriate source may be counted.

Risk of Complications and/or Morbidity or Mortality of Patient Management

One element used in selecting the level of service is the risk of complications and/or morbidity or mortality of patient management at an encounter. This is distinct from the risk of the condition itself.

Risk: The probability and/or consequences of an event. The assessment of the level of risk is affected by the nature of the event under consideration. For example, a low probability of death may be high risk, whereas a high chance of a minor, self-limited adverse effect of treatment may be low risk. Definitions of risk are based upon the usual behavior and thought processes of a physician or other qualified healthcare provider in the same specialty. Trained clinicians apply common language usage meanings to terms such as high, medium, low, or minimal risk and do not require quantification for these definitions (though quantification may be provided when evidence-based medicine has established probabilities). For the purposes of MDM, level of risk is based upon consequences of the problem(s) addressed at the encounter when appropriately treated. Risk also includes MDM related to the need to initiate or forego further testing, treatment and/or hospitalization. The risk of patient management criteria applies to the patient management decisions made by the reporting physician or other healthcare provider as part of the reported encounter.

Morbidity: A state of illness or functional impairment that is expected to be of substantial duration during which function is limited, quality of life is impaired, or there is organ damage that may not be transient despite treatment.

Social determinants of health: Economic and social conditions that influence the health of people and communities. Examples may include food or housing insecurity.

Surgery (minor or major, elective, emergency, procedure or patient risk):

Surgery - Minor or Major: The classification of surgery into minor or major is based on the common meaning of such terms when used by trained clinicians, similar to the use of the term “risk.” These terms are not defined by a surgical package classification.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

Surgery – Elective or Emergency: Elective procedures and emergent or urgent procedures describe the timing of the procedure when the timing is related to the patient's condition. An elective procedure is typically planned in advance (e.g., scheduled for weeks later), while an emergent procedure is typically performed immediately or with minimal delay to allow for patient stabilization. Both elective and emergent procedures may be minor or major procedures.

Surgery – Risk Factors, Patient or Procedure: Risk factors are those that are relevant to the patient and procedure. Evidence-based risk calculators may be used, but are not required, in assessing patient and procedure risk.

Drug therapy requiring intensive monitoring for toxicity: A drug that requires intensive monitoring is a therapeutic agent that has the potential to cause serious morbidity or death. The monitoring is performed for assessment of these adverse effects and not primarily for assessment of therapeutic efficacy. The monitoring should be that which is generally accepted practice for the agent but may be patient-specific in some cases. Intensive monitoring may be long-term or short-term. Long-term intensive monitoring is not performed less than quarterly. The monitoring may be performed with a laboratory test, a physiologic test, or imaging. Monitoring by history or examination does not qualify. The monitoring affects the level of MDM in an encounter in which it is considered in the management of the patient. An example may be monitoring for cytopenia with the use of an antineoplastic agent between dose cycles. Examples of monitoring that do not qualify include monitoring glucose levels during insulin therapy, as the primary reason is the therapeutic effect (unless severe hypoglycemia is a current, significant concern); or annual electrolytes and renal function for a patient on a diuretic, as the frequency does not meet the threshold.

Parenteral controlled substances: The level of risk is based on the usual behavior and thought processes of a physician or other qualified healthcare provider in the same specialty and subspecialty and not simply based on the presence of an order for parenteral controlled substances.

Guidelines for Selecting Level of Service Based on Time

Certain categories of time-based E/M codes that do not have levels of services based on MDM (e.g., Critical Care Services) in the E/M section use time differently. It is important to review the instructions for each category.

Time is not a descriptive component for the emergency department levels of E/M services because emergency department services are typically provided on a variable intensity basis, often involving multiple encounters with several patients over an extended period of time.

When time is used for reporting E/M services codes, the time defined in the service descriptors is used for selecting the appropriate level of services. The E/M services for which these guidelines apply require a face-to-face encounter with the physician or other qualified healthcare provider and the patient and/or family/caregiver. For office or other outpatient services, if the physician's or other qualified healthcare provider's time is spent in the supervision of clinical staff who perform the face-to-face services of the encounter, use 99211.

For coding purposes, time for these services is the total time on the date of the encounter. It includes both the face-to-face time with the patient and/or family/caregiver and non-face-to-face time personally spent by the physician and/or other qualified healthcare provider(s) on the day of the encounter (includes time in activities that require the physician or other qualified healthcare provider and does not include time in activities normally performed by clinical staff). It includes time regardless of the location of the physician or other qualified healthcare provider (e.g., whether on or off the inpatient unit or in or out of the outpatient office). It does not include any time spent in the performance of other separately reported service(s).

Each service that may be reported using time for code level selection has a required time threshold. The concept of attaining a mid-point between levels does not apply. A full 15 minutes is required to report any unit of prolonged service codes 99417, and 99418.

Physician(s) and other qualified healthcare provider(s) may each provide a portion of the face-to-face and non-face-to-face work related to the service. When time is being used to select the appropriate level of services for which time-based reporting is allowed, the time personally spent by the physician(s) and other qualified healthcare provider(s) assessing and managing the patient and/or counseling, educating, communicating results to the patient/family/caregiver on the date of the encounter is summed to define total time. Only distinct time should be summed (i.e., when two or more individuals jointly meet with or discuss the patient, only the time of one individual should be counted).

When prolonged time occurs, the appropriate prolonged services code may be reported. The total time on the date of the encounter spent caring for the patient should be documented in the medical record when it is used as the basis for code selection.

Physician or other qualified healthcare provider time includes the following activities, when performed:

- Preparing to see the patient (e.g., review of tests)
- Obtaining and/or reviewing separately obtained history
- Performing a medically appropriate examination and/or evaluation
- Counseling and educating the patient/family/caregiver
- Ordering medications, tests, or procedures
- Referring and communicating with other healthcare providers (when not separately reported)
- Documenting clinical information in the electronic or other health record
- Independently interpreting results (not separately reported) and communicating results to the patient/family/caregiver
- Care coordination (not separately reported)

Do not count time spent on the following:

- The performance of other services that are reported separately
- Travel
- Teaching that is general and not limited to discussion that is required for the management of a specific patient

For split or shared visits, see the split or shared visits guidelines.

C. UNLISTED SERVICE

An E/M service may be provided that is not listed in this section of CPT® codebook. When reporting such a service, the appropriate unlisted code may be used to indicate the service, identifying it by "Special Report," as discussed in item E. The "Unlisted Services" and accompanying codes for the E/M section are as follows:

99429 Unlisted preventive medicine service
99499 Unlisted evaluation and management service

D. SPECIAL REPORT

An unlisted service or one that is unusual, variable, or new may require a special report demonstrating the medical appropriateness of the service. Pertinent information should include an adequate definition or description of the nature, extent, and need for the procedure and the time, effort, and equipment necessary to provide the service. Additional items that may be included are complexity of symptoms, final diagnosis, pertinent physical findings, diagnostic and therapeutic procedures, concurrent problems, and follow-up care.

CATEGORY III CODES GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to unit values for these services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® publication or HCPCS code and a code, guideline, identifier or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier, or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

Category III Codes are temporary codes developed to allow collection of data for emerging technology, services, and procedures. The five (5) character alphanumeric codes contain four numbers with one alpha character in the fifth place. If a Category III Code is available, this code must be reported instead of a Category I unlisted code.

HCPCS GUIDELINES

Information regarding the incorporation of HCPCS codes is found in the Introduction to the Fee Schedule. HCPCS codes are five (5) character codes with a leading alpha-character followed by four (4) numeric digits.

The following Commission guidelines are provided in addition to the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Services' (CMS) HCPCS codes and descriptions and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to services unique or uniquely utilized in Workers' Compensation. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated HCPCS code and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier, or modifier shall control. Codes that contain explanatory language specific to Arizona are preceded by Δ in this Fee Schedule. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

HCPCS codes in this section are used to bill for services, equipment, and supplies including:

- Medical and surgical supplies
- Durable medical equipment
- Physician-administered drugs
- Prosthetics and orthotics
- Vision and hearing supplies

In this section, any reference to Durable Medical Equipment (DME) includes reimbursable supplies, prosthetics, and orthotics.

A. REIMBURSEMENT

1. Materials and supplies normally necessary to perform a service, such as needles and syringes, ultrasound pads and gel, band-aids, and dressings are considered part of a healthcare provider's overhead and are not separately reimbursable. Please see Section J of the Introduction Guidelines to the Fee Schedule for more examples of non-reimbursable supplies and materials.

2. This section of the fee schedule includes maximum reimbursement amounts for DME, services, and procedures billed with HCPCS codes.

3. DME dispensed by a healthcare provider to the patient ancillary to an office visit shall be reimbursed at the lesser of the provider's billed charge or the value listed in the fee schedule.

4. DME may be reimbursed differently based on whether the zip code where the materials are provided are classified by CMS as rural or nonrural. The fee schedule includes different rates for rural and nonrural zip codes where applicable. The zip codes included on the list below shall be reimbursed based on the fees in the "Rural" column in the fee schedule. All other zip codes shall be reimbursed based on the "Nonrural" fee.

6. HCPCS codes describing physician-administered drugs and biologicals including, chemotherapy and immunosuppressive drugs, inhalation solutions and other miscellaneous drugs and solutions shall be used when billing for these products. 7. DME items that are listed as By Report, have no listed value, or are not included in the fee schedule, shall be reimbursed at one hundred forty percent (140%) of the actual cost. The DME provider shall include a copy of the original invoice for each item. No additional reimbursement for shipping or delivery shall be provided. If the DME was procured from an intermediary entity (e.g., wholesaler) and not the original manufacturer, the provider must disclose any rebates, reductions, discounts, or relationship with that intermediary entity and the impact on the original manufacturer's cost of that item. Reimbursement may also be based on a predetermined agreement between the provider and the payer.

8. Services that are listed as By Report, have no listed value, or are not included in the fee schedule, shall be reimbursed based on a predetermined agreement between the provider and the payer.

9. Reimbursement for DME shall not be less than the actual cost of an item. Specialized (e.g., bariatric) equipment may have an actual cost that is greater than the reimbursement value listed in the Fee Schedule. The DME provider must demonstrate the actual cost of the DME is greater than the listed reimbursement value by presenting a copy of the original invoice for that item. The reimbursement value for the item shall be based on a predetermined agreement between the DME provider and the payer. When the DME was procured from an intermediary entity

   a. NU – indicates the purchase of new equipment.

   b. UE – indicates the purchase of used equipment.

   c. RR – indicates that the equipment is being rented. Rental periods shall be considered monthly unless defined differently in the code description.

      i. The maximum rental period is 13 months. After 13 months, the equipment shall be considered purchased.

3. Certain DME may be rented. Determination to purchase or rent DME shall be based on CMS Medicare guidelines in effect on the date the patient takes possession of the DME.

4. Materials, supplies, and equipment billed with a miscellaneous code (e.g., E1399 – durable medical equipment, miscellaneous) shall include the brand name and model number of the DME being supplied when available.

5. Actual shipping or delivery costs necessary to transit DME to the injured worker may be billed except those DME items described in Subsection (A)(7). Documentation demonstrating the cost of shipping shall be included with the invoice.

ARIZONA SPECIFIC CODES GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CPT® guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to services uniquely utilized in Workers' Compensation in Arizona. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CPT® and a code, guideline, identifier, or modifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona code, guideline, identifier or modifier shall control. Codes that are unique to Arizona are preceded by an AZ identifier and numbered in the following format: AZxxx.

A. PEER TO PEER CONSULTATION: Healthcare providers may bill for Peer-to-Peer consultations by using Arizona state specific codes AZ001 and AZ002. Determination of the proper code is based on time spent in discussion and review.

AZ001 Peer-to-Peer interprofessional telephone consultations between treating physician or healthcare provider and Peer Reviewer; 5-10 minutes of medical consultative discussion and review.

AZ002 Peer-to-Peer interprofessional telephone consultations between treating physician or healthcare provider and Peer Reviewer; 11-30 minutes of medical consultative discussion and review.

B. NURSE CASE MANAGER MEETING: Healthcare providers may bill for meeting with a nurse case manager (NCM) by using Arizona state specific codes AZ003 and AZ004. Determination of the proper code is based on patient presence during the meeting.

AZ003 Meeting with NCM with patient.

AZ003 may be billed if time is spent discussing a patient's treatment plan or other related information with the NCM when the patient is present. This should not be billed if there is no interaction with the NCM who is present during the time that a service, which is billed using a separate CPT® code, is performed. The documentation must include:

- The name of the NCM.
- The name of the organization the NCM is representing.
- The purpose of the interaction.

AZ004 Meeting with NCM without patient.

AZ004 may be billed if time is spent discussing a patient's treatment plan or other related information with the NCM when the patient is not present. The documentation must include:

- The name of the NCM.
- The name of the organization the NCM is representing.
- The purpose of the interaction.

It is not appropriate for the payer on a per billing basis to require a healthcare provider to provide unnecessarily detailed documentation to justify payment. A healthcare provider is required to comply with A.R.S. § 23-1062.01 when submitting a bill.

The codes listed herein are CPT only copyright 2025 American Medical Association. All rights reserved.

C. SPECIAL REPORTS: Healthcare providers may bill for completion of workers' compensation insurance forms by using Arizona state specific code AZ005 when the request is submitted by the Commission, the payer or third-party administrator of the payer, or the Special Fund of the Commission and limited to one billing of code AZ005 per thirty (30) day period. The applicable form must be attached to the billing.

AZ005 Completion of workers' compensation insurance forms (i.e. return-to-work status, work restrictions, supportive care restrictions) which are requested or required either by the Commission, the applicable payer (insurance, self-insured employer, or the Special Fund of the Commission), or a third-party administrator of the applicable payer, not to exceed more than one billing in a thirty (30) day period. The applicable form must be attached to the billing.

D. TRAVEL REIMBURSEMENT: Healthcare providers may bill for collection and handling performed outside of a physician's office or laboratory.

AZ026 Mileage charge for collection and handling service performed outside of the physician's office or laboratory, within a radius of seven (7) miles.

AZ027 Mileage charge for collection and handling service performed outside of the physician's office or laboratory, per mile over seven (7) miles.

AZ028 When more than one patient is seen, apportion mileage charge among total number of patients.

AZ030 Mileage round trip: each mile in excess of eight (8) miles of travel by physician.

AZ031 Within large metropolitan areas a travel time basis may be appropriate. Code AZ031 would apply to Arizona's major metropolitan areas, to include Phoenix, Tucson, Flagstaff, Kingman, and Yuma. This code would only be used when travel times are 45 minutes or more.

E. EXPERT TESTIMONY: Medical testimony by personal appearance or deposition of a physician is reported using Arizona specific code AZ099. Reimbursement for time spent providing testimony at hearing is described in Section I of the Introduction Section of the Fee Schedule.

DENTAL GUIDELINES

Information regarding publications incorporated by reference is found in the Introduction of the Fee Schedule.

The following Commission guidelines are in addition to the CDT© guidelines and represent additional guidance from the Commission relative to dental services. To the extent that a conflict may exist between an incorporated portion of the CDT© and a guideline or identifier unique to Arizona, then the Arizona guideline or identifier shall control.

General requirements on reporting services are found in the Introduction of the Fee Schedule. In addition to the definitions and commonalities preceding the coded procedures, several other requirements unique to this Section (Dental) are defined or identified as follows:

A. Dental practitioners shall include dentists, dental specialists, denturists, dental therapists, dental hygienists, hospitals, and dental clinics. Practitioners shall be licensed in the state where they practice. Services provided by dental therapists and dental hygienists shall be billed by the dentist or dental specialist, except when a dental hygienist is providing service under an affiliated practice agreement and the State dental practice act allows individual billing by the hygienist or other providers.

B. A CDT© code shall be billed when a CDT© code exists that accurately describes the service provided. If a code is not listed in the rate table, reimbursement shall be By Report, and the bill must be accompanied by documentation to support the amount billed.

C. Laboratory services such as crafting dental appliances, including but not limited to crowns and dentures, are bundled with the MAR for the associated dental procedure. No additional reimbursement shall be due for these services. Laboratory services do not include imaging such as radiographs or scans, which shall be reimbursed based on the MAR of the CDT© code or the billed amount, whichever is less.

D. Preexisting or underlying conditions shall be covered only when required to successfully complete treatment related to the compensable workers' compensation illness or injury.

E. Prophylaxis or routine preventive care shall not be reimbursed.
